"We are waiting for Bishop Law and bring the matter to him," she said.

Both sides agree that the dispute started when a teaching nun, Sister Alice, left St. Mary's School following an incident involving the disciplining of a student.

Fr. McMahon said he asked her to take a leave of absence for her health and "immediately she said, 'I quit.'"

"She did not quit," said Mrs. Brennan. "She asked for a hearing and she was told 'You are fired.'"

Sister Alice, who had taught at St. Mary's School for 16 years is now in seclusion.

"Sister Alice is no longer the issue," said Mrs. Brennan. "This parish is a dictatorship."

She said two other nuns at the school, Sisters Barbara and Raymond, are planning to leave at the end of the school year. They are the last two nuns on the teaching staff.

On the other hand, Mrs. Eileen Dineen, a parishioner who supervises the bingo games for the church and the school, said the real issue is unpopular changes at the school.

"This is the first year that the school has ever had a lay person (Irene Marcoux) as principal," she said. "She has made some changes that some of the teachers don't like."

She said most of the parents are concerned that soon there will be no nuns at the school, although the order is welcome to stay if it can find nuns to teach.

"Some people went to talk to Fr. McMahon about Sister Alice," said Mrs. Dineen. "He and Mrs. Marcoux met them at the doorway and talked to them there. He told them Sister Alice had taken time off."

The delegation apparently was not satisfied so Fr. McMahon put in the parish bulletin that he would meet with them the following Monday.

"He was advised by the chancellor that it was not the proper thing to do," said Mrs. Dineen. "There were so many rumors around. He announced the cancellation of the meeting at mass."

"About eight people set up a meeting with Bishop

Hart. He told them that he was in support of Fr. McMahon and Mrs. Marcoux, that it was a dead issue.

"They didn't like the answer and they decided to push for a parish council."

Squantum Church Observes First Lenten Sunday

Hot cross buns and cocoa or coffee were served to worshippers arriving at the First Church of Squantum Sunday for the early service.

The buns, which reminded the congregation that it was the first Sunday in Lent, had been baked for the occasion by Eve Martin and served by Gretchen Bumpus and Patti Hurd.

Leaders of the service included Chris Dixey, Pat Olson and her two daughters, Kim and Krista, David Williams and Bonnie Adams. Ushers were Minda Hurd and Ruth Adams. Mary Ruth Scott and Andrew Ogilvie provided music with their guitars.

Church pastor, The Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin preached on the topic, "The Day That Jesus Lost

His Temper". His sermon included a slide show, a popular recording and an article from the newspaper for the congregation to consider.

At the second service, greeters were Leon and Edna MacIntyre. Ushers were Tore Wallin and Stewart Scott. The Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Sally Wainwright and Rocella Stamos.

During that service, the Chancel Choir sang "Sanctus" from the German Mass in F by Franz Schubert. The pastor preached on the subject, "Doing What We Must".

Hymns sung were "The Son of God Goes Forth to War", "Lord, Who Throughout These Forty Days", "In the Cross of Christ I Glory", and "He Leadeth Me, O Blessed Thought".

After the service, the Flea Market Committee met and set the date for the annual church flea market for Saturday, June 16. Persons wishing to rent table space may call Hazel Mayne at 328-4367 or the church office at 328-6649.

Each Wednesday evening during Lent, there is a home cooked dinner at the church to bring the church family together for fellowship and to help raise money for the youth ministry of the church.

Reservations may be made by calling 328-6649. The dinner begins at 6 p.m.

After each Lenten dinner, there is a time for worship and learning with the pastor. This year, the subject of the Lenten series is "American Church History".

On March 14 the topic was "The Great Awakening".

Topic will be "The Missionary Impulse" March 21. Worship and the talk begin at 7 p.m.

This Sunday, there will be an all-church breakfast at 9:15 a.m. with a single worship service for all at 10:30 a.m.

Proceeds from the breakfast will be used to help send children and teenagers to Christian camps this summer.

Menu for the morning will be orange juice, french toast and sausage, hash brown potatoes and a beverage. Reservations can be made for the breakfast by calling 328-6649.

The sermon next Sunday will be entitled "Confessing Our Sins". Both the Junior Choir and the Chancel Choir will sing.

There will be a meeting of the Church Council Sunday after the Fellowship Hour.

From now through Palm Sunday, worshippers are asked to bring canned goods with them to the service to be given to those in need.

"Your Community Church"

You are not alone. This Sunday, 61 million other adult Americans also chose not to go to church.

Does this sound like you?
You feel you are essentially out of step with conventional religious ideas. You have difficulty accepting those absolute truths and rigid dogmas you were told you had to believe.

And you're probably a little tired of being made to feel guilty because you have honest questions. If these sentiments express where you're coming from, relax. You are not alone. A large percentage of those 61 million nonchurch-going Americans feel the way you do.

Is there a church for people like you?

Yes. We're the Unitarian Universalists. We've been around for a long time, and we've attracted some of the most significant and independent thinkers in history: Thomas Jefferson, Charles Darwin, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Susan B. Anthony.

Dorothea Dix, Henry Thoreau, Clara Barton, Isaac Newton, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Adlai Stevenson, Dr. Linus Pauling, Elton Richardson and many others.

What goes on in a Unitarian Universalist service?

Frankly, that will vary from church to church, depending on the minister and the congregation. In fact, some of our organizations aren't called churches at all. Some call themselves societies, some are fellowships and are run by the lay people themselves. Essentially, though, you'll find a congenial and supportive climate that is intellectually free and spiritually exciting where you are encouraged to reach out and grow, not cut up and accept. We have no doctrines and dogma that you must accept. We believe that truth is ever evolving so we remain open to new scientific revelations and philosophical insights.

We are more concerned with the essential goodness of people, not some inherent selfishness. We are more concerned with the here and now, rather than a hereafter. Does this sound like the kind of church you've been looking for?

Board Continues Transfer Of Lodging House License

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The License Board voted Tuesday to continue to March 20 a request for transfer of the lodging house license for 180 Monroe Road, Quincy Center.

The request was continued to allow time for the joint inspection team to visit the premises.

Ward Councillor John Lydon said there have been problems in the past with "non-cooperation from the owner" but that does not apply to the applicants.

Lydon said he would like to know the number of occupants allowed in the rooming house, the name of the manager and that standards are up to code.

Realtor Russ Kelcourse of Beckwith Realtors told the board the applicants would pay $207,000 for the lodging house which he said is licensed for 14 rooms.

550 In Quincy Area Due Unclaimed Money

More than 550 people and organizations from Quincy are due money from forgotten bank accounts and other financial resources under the State's Unclaimed Money Law, according to a list released recently by State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane.

The list includes, among others, the city of Quincy, President Chevrolet Inc., the Quincy High School Class of 1969, and the junior choir at Quincy Point Congregational Church.

Crane said throughout the state there are 35,000 individuals or organizations that are owed more than $18 million in funds they apparently know nothing about.

Since 1980, the treasurer's office has collected more than $90 million in unclaimed accounts and has returned nearly one half that sum to the rightful owners or legal heirs.

The sources of the unclaimed money includes bank accounts, insurance proceeds, uncashed gift certificates, payroll checks, customer overpayments that have gone untouched for five years.

Until claimed, all funds are kept in the state's general fund where they are invested for the benefit of all residents and taxpayers in Massachusetts.

Davis Says He's In Ward 1 Race 'All The Way'

Kevin Davis says he is a candidate "all the way" for the Ward 1 City Council seat.

Davis said reports circulating that he is considering dropping out of the race are unfounded.

"Reports of my demise are somewhat exaggerated."

he said.

Davis said the reports apparently started because he had not been campaigning actively over a two week period.

He said the reason was that his father, Daniel Davis, had suffered a heart attack but is now better.

Davis, who is the local service manager for AT & T and lives at 226 Rock Island Rd., Houghs Neck said:

"I want everyone to know that I am definitely still a candidate for the Ward 1 City Council seat and I am going to be a candidate all the way."

A high point in the program will be two solos by Rev. Joseph Raeke associate pastor at St. Joseph's.

The program is under the direction of Sister Anne Judge, principal, assisted by the faculty of St. Joseph School. Accompanist for the evening is Miss Frances McDonald. Dances were taught by Miss Elaine Healy, Sandra Doherty and Lauren Morgan, all students at St. Joseph's.

Stylish suggestions for contemporary weddings

Wedding traditions are blend of old and new

Today, more than ever, traditions are what weddings are made of. Yet, in the 1980s, tradition takes on a whole new meaning. Not only is it a sense of retaining the customs of the past, but also one of incorporating the values and ideals of the present, thus blending traditions in the making with traditions of old.

Though the days are past when Early American newlyweds drank a brew of sack posset and hot spiced milk to give them energy for the night ahead, also gone are the wedding ceremonies of the 1960s and '70s when time-honored customs and values were tossed to the wind.

Young couples of the '80s have found a comfortable place somewhere in between. While keeping what they find best and most beautiful of past traditions, they add to their weddings personal touches that express their individuality.

For example, today many brides have both father and mother walk them down the aisle so that both parents may enjoy the pleasure and the privilege of "giving away" their daughter.

Other changes in the type-ical "old-fashioned" wedding include changing ritual phrases such as "love, honor and obey" and "man and wife" so as to be more in keeping with today's ideal of equality.

In present-day ceremonies you'll more often hear "love, honor and cherish" or "husband and wife."

Today's ideas of equality are also bringing the groom more into the limelight. Until recently, all eyes were focused on the bride on her "big day" with the groom himself often feeling like a spectator.

Today's groom, however, is taking on all sorts of new responsibilities such as helping to pick the wedding site, choosing china patterns, addressing invitations and writing thank-you notes. Some men even wear engagement rings and have showers thrown in their honor.

The question of who pays for the wedding has also been affected by the present day attitude towards equality.

Traditionally, the bride's parents took on most of the expense, but now there is a definite trend towards the groom's family sharing a larger portion of the bill.

Though some of this chipping in reflects the economy, it is also a sign of our times. We no longer consider the bride's parents to be "marrying off" their daughter. Instead, the wedding is seen as a celebration of the joining together of two people.

With fewer of the old-fashioned "rules" of etiquette applying to today's weddings, creative additions to make the occasion unique are unlimited.

They range from substituting carrot cake for the traditional white sponge cake, to honoring the bride or groom's heritage by serving slices of Italian cheesecake or Irish fruitcake.

Music may be as unique as having bagpipes play as the newly-married couple leave the altar. Or, the couple may decide to have a girl instead of a boy act as ring bearer.

The choices are many, "right" being determined only by whatever combination of past and present most pleases the bride and groom, and their families.

FOR THE BRIDE WHO FEELS LIKE A PRINCESS . . . This royal creation, designed by Michele Piccione for Alfred Angelo Bridals, is made of Venice lace and taffeta. The Victorian sleeves can be worn on or off the shoulder. The flattering emphasis of the molded line bodice with basque waistline is trimmed with Venice lace. The rich look of the dress is completed with the full taffeta skirt and cathedral train, trimmed with lace.

Enjoy the comfortable, relaxed atmosphere of our restaurant. Fine food, good service, long history of entertaining.

"Tying the knot" with a gold ring

Marriage — it's back in style! And with the increasing numbers of couples heading to the altar, a trend towards heavier carved gold wedding ring styles has developed, in keeping with the renewed consumer emphasis on quality and lasting value, according to the Gold Information Center.

Although most Americans typically purchase 14-karat (14K) gold wedding bands, a recent "upgrading" to higher ring karatages, particularly 18K, has also been observed. (Note: 24K is pure gold. Eighteen karat is 18 parts pure gold alloyed, or mixed, with six parts other metals; 14K is 14 parts pure gold alloyed with 10 parts other metals.)

Another significant development: The majority of married men in America under the age 30 currently wear wedding rings, unlike many of their fathers. Today, nearly 90 percent of new grooms receive a wedding ring, compared with virtually 100 percent of their brides.

Gold wedding ring styles: traditional to contemporary Classic and updated wedding ring styles abound for those intending to "tie the knot." Unmatched gold bands for the bride and groom are often preferred over matching his-and-her ring sets, yet both options are readily available.

The past few years have ushered in the acceptance of two-tone and tri-color rings of gold, as well as satin-finished and sandblasted matte surfaces which offer interesting color and texture alternatives to polished yellow gold bands.

Texture also comes into play through the inventive use of wrapped wire, woven and braided gold, twisted ropes and ribs. For the rugged Western look, there are gold nugget patterns and rough bark finishes.

THE GOLD WEDDING RING . . . more precious than the moment. Available in 14, 18, 22 and 24K gold at fine jewelry stores, by Kremenetz. Photo courtesy of the Gold Information Center.

A range of contemporary rings features reflective, diamond-cut patterns of shimmering surface treatments achieved through intricate etching or Florentine work.

There are highly-polished bands comprised of dimensional planes or faceted angles; clean, tailored geometrics; and sculptural, freeform bands, often sold with interlocking engagement rings, nicknamed "engagement" rings.

For those preferring a more retrospective look, there are wedding rings of gold which incorporate a sentimental antique pattern, stone accents or granulation.

Favorite classics include carved and embossed florals in yellow or multi-colored hues, the traditional yellow gold circlet and the popular trilogy ring of interlocking yellow, pink and white gold bands.

For the purist, wedding bands of pure (24K) gold are now offered by some trend-setting jewelry stores around the country.

Next to Your Advantage

Attention to detail makes brides perfect

Careful planning has always made for the most beautiful and memorable weddings. Attending to details is part of the pleasure for the smart bride. Alfred Angelo Bridals has created marvelous calendars and bridal planners that make the planning so much simpler, with built-in check-lists and references.

Required reading

The best book on the subject is Your Wedding, How To Plan and Enjoy It by Nancy Piccione and published by Random House. Michele Piccione, designer of magnificent wedding gowns for Alfred Angelo, says, "The bride must be aware of the vital importance of choosing accessories to complete the picture she wants to make for a memorable wedding day."

Organize!

She suggests that you make a list of what you think makes a complete ensemble, Hail wedded love, mysterious law, true source Of human offspring, sole propriety, In Paradise of all things common else.

—John Milton

FRILLY ACCESSORIES to complete bridal attire by Tina Michele, a division of Alfred Angelo.

and then discuss it with your bridal consultant. The list should include (from the top, down) headpiece or hat and veil, gloves, the item or items you wish to carry — flowers, parasol, fan — then, crinolines, hosiery, and shoes. (Almost all can be found with the "Tina Michele" label.)

A beautiful gown requires the right crinoline to give it the desired shape and fullness. Ms. Piccione advises brides to select their headpieces when they choose their gown. Alfred Angelo gowns all have a beautifully coordinated headpiece.

Finishing touches

A garter is important at many weddings (as is a pillow for your ring bearer!). What a grand feeling to walk down the aisle knowing every detail is perfect.

Current wedding trends

By MICHELE PICCIONE

Spring '84 brings with it the best of traditional bridal looks mixed with the latest fashion touches. From fantasy gowns fit for a princess, to sleek, tailored, contemporary looks — today's bride-to-be will have no trouble finding her perfect wedding gown.

What's new and exciting for spring? Look for... the Southern Belle ruffled look, complete with hoop skirts, and lace parasols. Look for... Victorian gowns with high necks and soft, ruffled yokes. Look for... simple taffeta gowns, with molded asymmetrical bodices trimmed with taffeta roses.

Sleeves are important this spring, influenced by the romance of historical costumes, and even more important are tiny details, feather-edge satin ribbons, handrolled silk flowers, Schiffl embroidered yokes, antique lace cameos, all combined to make a special dress even more special.

Choosing a wedding gown is a very emotional, and a very wonderful experience. The perfect wedding gown isn't simply a dress; it makes dreams come true.

For a free wedding guide, write Alfred Angelo Bridals, PO Box 618, Wilton Grove, PA 19090.

Porcelain to cherish

SOMETHING OLD, SOMETHING BLUE, something borrowed and something new... Brides can now select a contemporary-design porcelain ornament to decorate the top of their wedding cake. Keepsake Wedding Cake porcelains are cherished remembrances of a wedding day. The ornaments are available in three styles and a choice of colors. The "Cherish" ornament, illustrated here, has a sculpted white porcelain bride couple framed with a porcelain plate decorated with lilac ribbons and rings. Two other plate designs feature borders of yellow wild flowers or pink bells and florals. The keepsake ornaments are available at Wilton Cake Decorating Centers in department stores and specialty cake decorating shops, and may be ordered from the 1984 Wilton Yearbook.

For the bride, groom: good advice on advice

How to handle a never-ending stream of advice from family and friends is a challenge all marrying couples face, according to an article in a recent issue of Bride's Magazine.

"It's not good for a marriage if a wife makes more money than her husband," the bride's mother might say. "You really should buy a condominium instead of renting," the groom's uncle will insist. Everyone is eager to help a bride and groom adjust to their new roles.

The only trouble with all this help is that it can be so overwhelming that the couple end up feeling confused and pressured. Which advice should they take? How can they turn down a piece of advice without hurting a loved one's feelings?

Coping in advance

In order to deal with this situation, the couple must know what they want, says Bride's. They should sit down together before the wedding and ask: "Where do we want to live?"

How important will our careers be? "How do we hope to spend our free time?" Pre-marital counseling — available through churches, universities, and psychological associations — can help by providing a framework for these talks.

The answers the couple arrive at should be as specific as possible — for instance, "We'll try to start a family within three years," or "We'll plan to spend one weekend a month alone, just the two of us."

When the couple disagree, they should push to find a compromise rather than one or the other simply give in, since "easy" solutions often lead to anger and resentment.

Once a couple feel secure in their decisions, says Bride's, they'll be able to react calmly to the advice coming their way.

Determine reasons

First, they should determine if there's an underlying reason why a person is so eager to offer advice. If a bride finds her mother-in-law-to-be taking a little too much interest in the wedding, she should stop and examine what's going on: maybe the woman always wanted a daughter of her own.

The bride can then respond on this level instead of with anger and perhaps think of ways to get her fiancé's mother more involved.

Second, the couple should realize that all the advice they get won't be useless — especially when an advice-giver has experience in the area.

A harried bride and groom may feel that yet another opinion on where they should go for their honeymoon is the last thing they need, but if it's coming from a cousin who has traveled all over the world it could prove invaluable.

Finally, the bride and groom must know how to stop listening and turn down unneeded advice. Since most advice-givers mean well, it's only kind for the couple to let them know that they do value their opinions even if they can't use all of them.

But, at the same time, they should make it clear that they are rejecting the advice: "We've thought about what you said, but it's just not right for us," or "Thank you, but we've already decided on another plan." In the end, a couple must be able to say, "We did it our way."

The Bahamas: honeymoon islands made to order

By PATRICIA KENNEY

Your honeymoon, a time you'll always remember; you will want to choose the place you spend it in with care.

The honeymoon spot you look for should be as special as your love, and as exciting as your embraces. Its sun should sparkle like the happiness in your eyes; it should hold as many wonderful surprises as your future together.

Where can you find such an ideal spot without splurging dangerously just when you need to budget for a thousand things? In the Bahamas!

Just 50 miles from Florida, but worlds away in experiences, a Bahamas honeymoon will introduce you to some 700 islands — and an airfare you can afford. There are many honeymoon packages available from budget to elaborate.

Each of the populated islands of The Bahamas offers its own brand of warmth and hospitality. You'll decide on which one (or more) you want to visit, based on how you plan to spend your time.

Even though temperatures are ideal, ranging from the 70s to the low 90s, you can plan on more than just sun, sand and sea.

Try discovering one of the picturesque Family Islands, such as Harbour Island. Only three and a half miles long and a half mile wide, it boasts magnificent pink sand beaches and a lover's languid pace.

WITH SO MANY ISLAND PLEASURES to share on your honeymoon, you'll feel The Bahamas was created just for you.

Minutes away by ferry, situated just south of Cupid's Cay, is the island of Eleuthera. Here you can spend a leisurely afternoon visiting Preacher's Cave or the "Glass Window," where a mesmerizing ocean meets a spirited sound — the contrast, barely believable.

More to do

When you aren't trying your luck at the gaming tables, enjoy the lavish revue or the many fine restaurants.

Daytime tours around Freeport in a double-decker bus will assure that you don't miss the Garden of the Groves, the perfume factory or the community of West End.

Nighttime entertainment is one of the most glittering offerings of Grand Bahama. You'll find nightclubs and lounges where music runs the full range from disco to the Goombay beat.

During the most primitive times, men acquired their wives by stealing them, and then hiding them until the families anger was lessened by the passing moons. This time when the couple was in hiding was sweet, which is why the period after the wedding is still called the honeymoon.

Freeport was built specifically for vacationers, and especially for honeymooners. It has a beautiful International Bazaar where honeymooners can begin their very own collection of fine crystal and china, and scout for bargains on perfumes, cashmere sweaters and scores of other imported items.

There are, of course, fabulous beaches with more than 60 miles of soft sands to sun on. Championship golf and tennis facilities are never more than minutes away.

Capital attractions

Visitor attractions are plentiful in Nassau, capital of The Bahamas. Start with the straw market on Bay Street.

Climb the Queen's staircase; visit Fort Fincastle and the water tower, the highest spot on Nassau, where you are afforded a breathtaking view of Nassau, Paradise Island and the brilliant blue sea.

Settle into an intimate horse-drawn carriage and ride by Nassau's oldest building, the Vendue House, or Government House, or go "over the hill" to Grants Town where freedmen built their homes hundreds of years ago.

You can do it all, or nothing at all! Whatever your pleasures, you'll find them here. Experience The Bahamas, the ideal destination for a trip of a lifetime and the beginning of one...

HONEYMOON TIPS

Today, fewer couples are choosing to take the sort of honeymoon where,

Instead, they prefer more action: resorts that include sports, entertainment, and gourmet food and locations that have plenty of sights.

What advice does Bride's Magazine have for the couple planning a honeymoon?

- Be honest with each other. How do you both really want to spend your honeymoon. Hiking? Shopping? Or just lazing away on a beach?

- Make your plans early. You'll have a better chance of getting exactly the space at the time you want instead of being disappointed or having to pay more because the room's in your price range are all taken.

Steppin' in style

On your wedding day, you should take into consideration two very important items — your feet. Since you'll be on them most of the day, comfortable shoes are a must. Tired aching feet will only make for an uncomfortable bride.

But wanting comfort doesn't have to mean forsaking style. Your shoes should be the finishing touch on the beauty of your dress.

For stylish comfort, think pumps. "Classic white pumps give the allure of simple elegance and gracefulness yet give sturdy support," says Steve Cassidy, women's dress shoe buyer for Kinney Shoes.

From the newer low-heeled versions to the traditional high, there is a pump suitable for everyone. And a pair of white pumps will be a staple in your wardrobe on your honeymoon and all through spring and summer.

If you don't wear high heels everyday, don't wear them on your wedding day. There are many low-heeled and flat styles that can complete your look. If you do opt for high heels, make sure the fit is right. Here are some guidelines to follow when shopping for those special shoes:

- Have both feet measured; the two are not identical.
- Accommodate the larger foot and, if necessary, alter the fit of the other shoe.

- Shop after you've been on your feet awhile, not early in the morning.
- Wear hosiery similar to what you'll wear on your wedding day.

- After both shoes are on, wiggle your toes, walk on tiptoe and arch your feet.

Sit down. Walk again. If the shoes don't fit now, don't count on breaking them in.

- Use a full length mirror to see how shoes will look to others; you're the only one who will look down at them.

The Kinney Shoe Corporation has published An Insider's Guide To Footwear, a series of brochures explaining how to properly fit, buy and care for shoes. For a copy, send $1.00 for postage and handling to Kinney Shoes — "Insider's Guide," P.O. Box 5006, New York, NY 10150.

Tips on watching the wedding costs

- Know what the average wedding costs in your area are — if your friends will tell you. Though we can give a national figure, prices vary tremendously.

- Talk openly about the possibility of both families sharing expenses. Then, get everyone's idea of how much they think the wedding should cost.

- If cash is limited and your guest list enormous, scale down visions of prime ribs and an open bar, rent a hall big enough for everyone and serve cake and punch instead. (The punch can still be spiked!)

- Consider wedding packages that may save time as well as money — packages where flowers, cake, liquor, etc. are included.

- Do work with a budget, but leave a portion of money unmarked to deal with all the little things that come up (cake boxes for the groom's cake?).

- If you must pare the guest list, agree on a formula that's arbitrary. For instance, no first cousins; no business clients. Apply the rule to both families.

- When working with the bridal shop or salon owner, the florist, the photographer, etc., be very clear about what you want and don't want.

- Don't forget things like tips for the banquet manager, the minister's fee, any church or temple rental, etc.

- "Nice guys" expect to be paid for their work too!

- Ask how much things will cost; find out answers to the "what-if's" too: What if we want the band to play another two hours? A dozen more four-color prints made?

Additional Storage, Bays Approved For Goodyear

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
The License Board granted permits Tuesday for additional storage and two more lifts at the Goodyear Auto Service Center, 1132-1138 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The permits are for 550 gallons of motor oil, under ground; 80 gallons of motor fuel, above ground in addition to present storage of 120 gallons.

K.M. Wetzonis, zone manager, said Goodyear has storage space that is not being used.

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald explained that two lifts will be installed in a storage room and no extra changes will be made.

Patricia Ben, on behalf of William Kendrick, and Frank Evans, developer of the nearby Dimmock Building, said they were concerned about any impact on the neighborhood.

Police Chief Francis Finn said the only impact would be to lessen the amount of parked cars outside.

"There will be four cars inside now, instead of two," said Finn.

THE COUNTER OFFER

QUESTION: I received a written offer to purchase my property. What happens to the original offer if I make a counter offer?

ANSWER: A counter offer is a combination of a rejection of the initial offer and a new offer by the seller. When the seller demands a higher price, more down payment, or different terms, the buyer's original offer is automatically cancelled. In effect, this may burn bridges behind you. If the buyer refuses your counter offer, there is no way you can force him to make good on the original offer because it will have been wiped out with the rejection and counter offer. This is a tricky area of negotiation that calls for expert advice.

THERE ARE IMPORTANT

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Do you ever feel an emptiness or unfulfilled desire in your life? If so, have you ever considered your view is perhaps nearsighted, instead of farsighted enough to vision your capabilities? The plain fact is that every one possesses certain energies and resources that are often unused or wasted.

Very few people, of course, can be a Benjamin Franklin, a printer by trade, but who also became a scientist, inventor, philosopher, diplomat, educator, politician and public servant. He is an excellent example of a self made man. He was the 15th child born to a poor couple. His father was a soap and candle maker. Franklin only had two years of formal education. He refused to limit his energies, resources and abilities. While we may not be able to duplicate his feats, we surely can strive for his idealism, his thinking, and his step by step progress in a way of life. When depressed by our own limitations, a reminder of a man such as Franklin, a man undimmed by difficult problems can be a sobering and helpful experience...

Take care of your own funeral arrangements now. So your family won't have to later.

By not taking care of your own funeral in advance, you force someone close to you to do it for you.

For the person who accepts the responsibility, making arrangements at the time of need is likely to be filled with uncertainties. The uncertainty of not knowing what you really wanted. Your personal preferences. Perhaps, a favorite dress or suit. A special prayer. A clergyman with whom you are especially close. The uncertainties are endless.

The kindest thing you can do for your family is make your own funeral arrangements far in advance of need. That way everybody will know the kind of funeral you would like to have

Quincy Freshmen End Season With First Win

The Quincy High School freshmen boys' basketball team gained its first win with a 68-49 victory over North Quincy.

The game brought to a close the first freshmen basketball season in Quincy High School history.

"We were very proud of the progress and achievement of the young men on our team all season long," said Quincy coach Mitch Finnegan. "We finally put together four solid quarters of basketball, and the final score indicates our ability."

Quincy began the season with losses to Newton North by 14 points, Brookline by 16 points, and Waltham by 17 points. In the re-matches during the second half of the season, Quincy was in every game until the final buzzer, losing the three games by a total of 15 points. The win over North Quincy avenged an earlier 19-point loss to the Raiders.

The Presidents jumped to an early lead in the game, holding North scoreless for the first three minutes. Led by the strong inside games of Mike Snow (7 points, 6 rebounds) and Tom Logan (10 points, 10 rebounds), Quincy closed the first quarter with a 13-4 lead.

In the second quarter, Quincy extended its lead to 12 points behind the solid play of guards Billy Palmer (4 points, 5 assists) and Joe Innello (4 assists, 2 steals).

Co-captains Gary Bright (17 points) and Steve Austin (19 points) led the way in the third quarter, as Quincy built its lead. The strong defense and rebounding of George McGuinness, Steve Davis and Pat Nee helped the Presidents to a 49-27 lead at the end of the third period.

The Raiders attempted to mount a charge in the fourth quarter behind the shooting of Jim Phelan (12 points), Peter Tufts (10 points) and Joe Barresi (14 points), but Quincy held on to win the game, 68-49.

"This game was indicative of the progress we've made this season," said Finnegan. "The improvement in skills-level has been tremendous. But, the thing that we're proudest of is the maturity and poise that the boys have shown all season. We came into this game with an 0-11 record. It would have been easy at any point for the boys to have given up, but we didn't. We took the court every day with a winning attitude, and ended every game with our heads held high.

Finnegan had praise for every member of the team. "We could not have asked for a finer group of young men to be a part of our first freshmen team. Dan Wahlberg, Dave Bouley, Tim Wong, and Keith McCray, who did not see a lot of game time, maintained their commitment and dedication throughout the entire season. No team can be successful without people like these working hard every day at practice, and being important members of the team."

"The success of our team in terms of improvement and fortitude and competitiveness is really a reflection upon the entire Quincy High School boys' basketball program," said Finnegan. "Coaches DeCristafano and Dacey and the members of the varsity and junior varsity teams really made the freshmen feel a part of the entire program. Quincy High basketball can't help but continue to grow successfully with that type of leadership. And with the example set by the members of our first freshmen team, we can't help but attract outstanding young people to be a part of our program."

The Deardens: A Sports Family Affair

Ron Dearden was an outstanding basketball player for Quincy High in the mid-1950s and his four sons have followed in his footsteps in Florida.

Ron, whose parents still live in Quincy, is a resident of Tallahassee, Fla., where he works for the State Department of Education. Each of his four sons starred for Lincoln High School in that town.

Oldest son Brian went on to shine for Flagler College where he played for three years, was voted the most improved player his senior year and was selected to the Ancient City Tournament team. He graduated with a BA degree in business administration and is working in Orlando.

Mike followed Brian and this year is completing his senior year at Florida State University and is working toward a BA degree in business administration.

Mike is the all-time scoring leader at Lincoln High, was named the best defensive player for the varsity and as a junior took Big Bend and All-State honors.

Craig, another standout at Lincoln High, will complete his AA degree at Tallahassee Community College this year and will enter Florida State U. next year.

The youngest son, Bob, is completing his junior year at Lincoln and has been a starter after overcoming knee surgery earlier in the year. He has had an outstanding season for Lincoln, being one of the top scorers.

"I thought my friends in Quincy might be interested in what my sons have accomplished," said Ron Dearden. "I was recently sent one of Tom Henshaw's 'Sports Memories' columns in The Quincy Sun and it brought back some fond memories for me."

The column led with a story on Quincy's 57-55 come-from-behind win over Kalamazoo in the Greater Boston League in January, 1955.

Dearden hit on two free throws in the second overtime period to give the Presidents the win. He also tapped in a basket to tie the game at 51-51 with 40 seconds left in regulation time and then scored the basket which tied the game again, 55-55, with seconds remaining in the first overtime session. Ron led Quincy that night with 21 points.

Park Dept. To Meet With Managers, Coaches

The Park and Recreation Board and Park Department officials will conduct the annual managers and coaches meeting on the use of municipal ballfields for the 1984 season Wednesday, March 21.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the meeting room of the Park and Recreation Complex, 100 Southern Artery, Merry-mount Park.

Purpose of the meeting is to resolve any duplication of requests preceding the Monday, April 2, meeting when Park and Recreation Board Members approve applications presented by baseball and softball league and teams.

Also discussed will be utilization of fields by adult softball teams and the problems created for the abutting property by indiscriminate parking, thoughtless discarding of debris and lack of compliance with the rules and regulations governing the use of public park, playground and beach areas.

Richard J. Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments, stated that despite the decline in children of school age during the past 15 years with the public and parochial school population decreasing from 20,000 to 10,000, the request for permits to use public fields has increased from 1360 dates in the same period to 2900 as of 1983.

The permit increase has been largely due to the interest generated by adult softball participation and the influx of girls and women's recreational programs during the same 15 year period as well as the new enthusiasm of youth soccer programs in Quincy.

Presidents Bow To Walpole, 3-0 In State Hockey

Defensemen Ted Houghton and Joe Chase came up with the finest games of their careers and Earl Mooney made 17 difficult saves in goal but it was not enough as the Quincy High School hockey team bowed to Walpole, 3-0, in the second round of the State Tournament.

Walpole, coached by Len Ceglarski, eventually won the New England championship.

"Walpole has a fine team," said Quincy Coach Bill Hutchinson. "We didn't have a thing to be ashamed of. Walpole had to work for everything it got. Even at that, with a break here or there, we might have made it even closer."

"You couldn't help but being proud of those kids; they put out plenty. They went just as far as they could with their talent."

It was the third tournament appearance for a Quincy hockey team since Hutchinson took charge in the 1953-54 season and it was clear that the Presidents had gone as far as they could without a feeder system of youth hockey to prepare players for high school.

The Quincy lineup included: Morrell, McCabe, Wilson, forwards; Houghton, Chase, defense; Mooney, goal; Bina, Dettoni, Gunning, Sachetti, Marini, Person, spares.

NORTH ELIMINATED

Peter Frederickson scored 22 points and Jim Baldwin had 12 as the North Quincy High School basketball team led by two points at end of three quarters and then collapsed in the finale to lose to Taunton, 59-52, in the quarterfinals of the Bay State Tournament.

The North Quincy lineup included: Baldwin, LaBrecque, forwards; Frederickson, center; Green, Scanlon, Schumacher, Landberg, guards.

ENC ENDS UNBEATEN

Dave Hutchinson, a 6-foot-4 center from New Bedford, and Dick Mann, a freshman from North Quincy, propelled the Eastern Nazarene College basketball team to a 42-29 halftime lead and the Crusaders coasted to an 88-57 victory over Providence Barrington Bible College.

Hutchinson and Mann had 19 points each, Merritt Mann had 15 and Jack Smith 11 as Eastern Nazarene concluded its season undefeated and prepared to enter the Kings College Tournament in New York.

The ENC lineup included: M. Mann, Holcomb, R. Mann, Reeves, forwards; Hutchinson, Bricker, centers; Smith, Green, Chambers, Pillsbury, guards.

NQ INDIES WIN

The North Quincy Independents, led by Walter and Richie Bryan with 21 and 17 points respectively, rallied in the third period for a 57-54 victory over the Natick Clippers in the second round of the Boys Clubs of Boston Cub Division tournament in Charlestown.

HOW NOT TO LOSE WEIGHT

Fad diets are bad diets. They miss the point of proper dieting. Good diets reduce caloric intake to the right level and at the same time develop permanent and sensible eating habits.

Reducing pills are not a wise way to lose weight. You should see your doctor before taking any kind of diet pills. There are dangerous side effects. Snacking between meals and improper diets are the major causes of obesity. Get in the life-saving habit of eating balanced meals.

Eating Tips: Cut down on your portions at mealtime. Eat less red meat, more chicken and fish. When you do eat meat, trim off all the fat. Eat fewer egg yolks and more cereals. Eat more polyunsaturated fats (fats from soy, corn and cotton seed oil). Eat more fresh fruits and vegetables. Drink skimmed milk. Don't add salt to your food after it's cooked.

Uninsured Auto Penalties Hiked

The penalty for operating an uninsured or unregistered motor vehicle has been increased, Sen. Paul D. Harold reports.

Under a new law now in effect, whoever operates or permits to be operated, a motor vehicle that is not properly registered or insured, will be fined not less than $100 and not more than $1,500 or by imprisonment for not more than one year in the house of correction or both.

Harold noted this new law amends a previous law where the punishment was a fine of $100 to $500 or imprisonment of up to one year not both.

Most sports fans know the length of a football field (120 yards including end zones) but few know its width...which is 53 and one third yards.

At last! A Home Mortgage with no unpleasant surprises.

Colonial Federal's new Fixed Payment Adjustable
Rate Mortgage
is now available.

The adjustable interest rate home mortgages offered by most banks today have one major drawback. Because the interest rates vary, your monthly mortgage payments can vary. They can go up and they can go down. You have no way of knowing what your payments will be in the future. That's enough to discourage you from buying a new home.

Colonial Federal doesn't believe that mortgage payments should act like elevators. So, to make it easier for you to finance your new home, we've designed a brand new adjustable rate mortgage which offers you guaranteed fixed monthly payments for the first ten years. After this, the mortgage may be continued modified or paid off without penalty.

No unpleasant surprises means that you can borrow and budget with confidence, knowing that your payments are unconditionally guaranteed to remain the same for ten years. And, that's a long time to have peace of mind.

This new mortgage is available only from Colonial Federal Savings Bank. It's just one more example of our continuing dedication to giving our customers the very best in personal banking services.

For more information, visit one of our convenient offices today or call 617 471-0750.

Kathy Troccoli Concert At ENC Saturday

Reunion Records recording artist Kathy Troccoli will appear in concert at Eastern Nazarene College, 23 East Elm Ave., Wollaston, Saturday, March 17, at 7 p.m.

Miss Troccoli is from Long Island, N.Y., now lives in Nashville, Tenn.

She will perform songs from her first album, "Stubborn Love," as well as from her soon-to-be-completed second album.

Her music carries a Christian theme. She believes when people are touched emotionally through a song, something special happens.

"When I was singing as a teenager in clubs, I viewed singing as painting a picture in the air. I mean, really putting your whole heart and soul into it so people can really feel it."

Appearing with Miss Troccoli will be her pianist, Phil Medeira, and John Polce, both from Rhode Island.

Reserved seating and group rates are available. For more information, call New Sound Concerts at 617-227-1362.

Stars Shine At Wollaston Theatre Talent Contest

The talent may have been amateur at the Wollaston Theatre Sunday, but the performers were first rate.

Thirteen acts from Quincy and surrounding communities put their talent on the line to compete in the first of three semi-finals in the "Search for Future Stars Talent Contest."

The performers had been chosen by audience voting in the past eight elimination contests.

A panel of three judges rated the performers Sunday on stage presence, personality, natural ability and performance.

The five acts selected were: Lisa Modano, a 12-year-old singer from Hingham who was a crowd pleaser with "Somewhere Over the Rainbow"; Timothy Marshalsea, a talented dancer from Hyde Park whose numbers included tap dancing to "Anchors Away"; Yvonne Dhimitri, a polished, exciting singer from Braintree who performed Irving Berlin's "I've Got Sun in the Morning"; Jerry Shamitz of Allston who had the audience clapping along with "If I Were a Rich Man"; and Bernard Haugh, 14, of Quincy who sang and played the piano to numbers such as "The Entertainer".

BERNARD HAUGH, 14, of Quincy, was among five winners Sunday in the first of three semi-finals in the "Search for Future Stars Talent Contest" at the Wollaston Theatre. The contest continues Sunday.

Veteran showman Ed Bennett, who was master of ceremonies, introduced the acts and led the audience in "My Wild Irish Rose" and "When Irish Eyes are Smiling", and strutted on stage to "McNamara's Boat".

Not all of the performers may be destined for stardom, but they each deserve a round of applause for getting out on that stage and taking the first step.

Next week's show, which starts at 2 p.m., will include Nemesis, a group of musicians, and Floor Patrol, a group of dancers which performs the new craze, break dancing.

Doors open at 1:30 p.m. The Grand finale will be held April 1.

TOM SELLECK EXCLUSIVE!

HONOLULU - Your video connection has hopped the Pacific from Hollywood to Hawaii for an exclusive interview with one of the world's top celebrities, Tom Selleck. For the next two weeks I'll be giving you an inside look at the man, and the people and places surrounding this hotter than hot hunk of good looks, and even greater personality.

Today's first of two columns based on my days with Selleck will offer tidbits of first-hand, mostly unheard-of information about this gigantic CBS Television star.

Fittingly enough, this heartthrob of nearly every lady on this planet was born in a Detroit hospital named Woman's!

Two autographed pictures grace his office wall; one of Burt Reynolds where Burt jokingly notes being Tom's real father, and thus responsible for Selleck's good looks, and the other, a very sincere reflection penned over a smiling 8x10 of Tom and his close friend, Carol Burnett...

Selleck's boyhood hero was and still is baseball's Hall of Famer, Al Kaline, the former right-fielder of Tom's favorite team, the Detroit Tigers...

"Magnum P.I." is filmed on the same lot, and in the same building formerly used by the CBS classic, "Hawaii Five-O"...

Roger Mosley, who plays Magnum's buddy, T.C., will direct an episode centered around a series of flashbacks tracing the characters from their post-Vietnam War days up to the present...

Larry Manetti, who plays Magnum's other sidekick, Rick, is just about ready to open his own night club in Honolulu called Larry Manetti's Copacabana. He is also the national chairman of Missing Children's Help Center.

That English accent so perfectly perfected by John Hillerman who plays Magnum's crafty counterpart, Higgins, is really a very refined form of American English. Hillerman was born and raised in the small Texas town of Dennison, and at the drop of a ten-gallon hat, he easily reverts back to his native Texan drawl...

Watch for Hillerman to play a three-part role where, in addition to Higgins, he plays the major domo's twin brother, and also his long-lost father...

One of Selleck's favorite pastimes is weeding his garden. Also he relishes moments spent alone reading, without interruption, an entire Sunday paper.

Yes, he does watch "Magnum P.I." To make him mad, tell him a lie. In his mind a hand shake is a bond...

O.K., there's a little to what your appetite for next week's exclusive VIDEO CONNECTION interview with Tom Selleck. In it you'll read his views on himself, his future, and his current status as one of the world's most popular stars.

Got a question for your favorite star? I'll track 'em down for you. Send questions and comments to James S. Leach c/o THE VIDEO CONNECTION, 22761 Pacific Coast Hwy., Malibu, Calif 90265.

WEEK OF: MARCH 15

AQUARIUS — January 21-February 19
Happy financial news may arrive by weekend, but don't reveal too much too soon. Favorite friend sets out to impress you, and colleague becomes more amiable.

PISCES — February 20-March 20
Correspondence is unusually lively, leading perhaps to travel opportunity. Be wary of get-rich-quick schemes and evasive salespeople. Romance is upbeat through the week.

ARIES — March 21-April 20
Week finds you in a highly sentimental mood — and loved one is quite receptive. If negotiating any deal, avoid short-cuts and opt for a traditional approach.

TAURUS — April 21-May 22
Creative spirit shines — you add originality to any job now tackled. Spring cleaning can bring about hidden treasure. Volunteer assignment includes a fringe benefit.

GEMINI — May 23-June 21
A week for quiet reflection. Goals are more clearly defined and priorities are sorted. Sports activity can lead to new friendship. Family member shows generous side.

CANCER — June 22-July 22
Best to tackle one or two key jobs than to dabble in a multitude of activities. Visits may take place ahead of schedule. Friend invites you to join in his/her good fortune.

LEO — July 23-August 22
Intuition is strong. Play romantic hunches but avoid big risks on the job. Long awaited call or letter comes by weekend. Small pets are featured after Monday.

VIRGO — August 23-September 22
Romantic relationship becomes more carefree and you can say what's in your heart. Communications delays are sprinkled through the week but travel is spotlighted on weekend.

LIBRA — September 23-October 22
Realism is the keyword of the week — don't hide from unpleasantness. Taste is impeccable now, a superb time for redecorating. Salesmanship is strong, too, especially after the weekend.

SCORPIO — October 23-November 21
Week sees you involved in detective work, and you may make an unexpected discovery on the weekend. Details demand your time. Bargain-hunting brings results through the period.

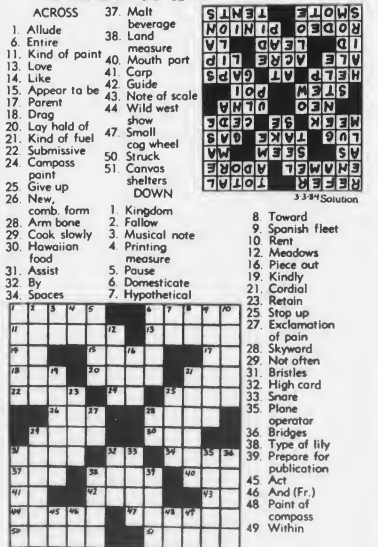

SAGITTARIUS — November 22-December 22
This can be a profitable week, so long as you are sensitive to trends and generally observant. Willpower is strong — it's still not too late to make New Year's resolutions.

CAPRICORN — December 23-January 20
Partnership projects are generally favored but enterprises involving more than three people can become chaotic. This can be a successful week if attending an interview, filling out applications.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
Shy, generous, kind, vague, offbeat — and a generally complex individual. Building upon current relationships is the focus this year. Intellectual activities are spotlighted in the autumn. Attention to financial detail is a must all year long.

BORN THIS WEEK

Roads Through Open Space Run Into Strong Opposition

A proposal to amend the city's zoning ordinances to permit construction of roads through open space drew an outpouring of opposition at a City Council hearing Tuesday night.

A total of 21 persons spoke in opposition to the plan and 80 recorded themselves as opposed.

Only two spoke in support and no one registered approval in writing.

The proposed zoning change is designed to help the developers of a condominium complex in the Boston Harbor Marina area to construct a required second access road to their site.

They want the road to pass over a corner of a tract of land, that includes Billings Creek and is zoned as open space. Current zoning bylaws prohibit such a road.

Richard W. Barry, attorney for the developer, said a variance for the road probably would be denied by the Board of Appeals since the developers could not prove financial hardship.

Speaking in opposition, Arthur Chandler, president of the Quincy Citizens Association, said the zoning change would "open a can of worms" for roads to be built through open space all over the city.

He called for the Planning Department to use its time more fruitfully by drawing up a master plan for the development of the whole city.

Eleanor Johnson of 180

Lansdowne St., Squantum, opposed the proposal, which she said she saw as "a smoke screen for something else that might be built in the city" without approval of the residents.

Many of those opposed to the zoning change were from the Houghs Neck area, where the Broad Meadows marsh has recently been rezoned to open space.

Classification Hearing Set For March 26

The City Council Tuesday night called for a public hearing Monday, March 26, at 7:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers on a proposal to classify real and personal property in the city for taxation.

The request for the hearing was sent to the Council by Mayor Francis X. McCauley with word that he would announce his proposal just prior to the hearing.

Now that 100 per cent revaluation has been approved by the state, the next step toward setting a tax rate for the fiscal 1984, the current year, is classification.

The Mayor and the City Council can classify property in the city as residential, open space, commercial, industrial and personal, each with its own tax rate.

McCauley has indicated that his proposal, which is expected to be announced next week, will have two rates, residential and commercial-industrial.

TRAFFIC appeared to be normal on the Southeast Expressway during the rush hour Monday, the day reconstruction work on the highway was scheduled to begin.

RIDERSHIP on the MBTA's Red Line was only 5 per cent above normal Monday as work on the Southeast Expressway opened as these sparse crowds at the Quincy Center station at 7:45 a.m. indicate.

Smooth Now But — Real Expressway Test Expected Monday

Reconstruction of the Southeast Expressway began Monday but the much-feared disruption of the rush hour commute failed to materialize.

But a spokesman for the State Department of Public Works said the real test will come next Monday when two of the eight lanes will be closed.

"We had the usual Monday morning commute considering the rain," said the spokesman. "There were no unusual tieups but there was some rubbernecking at the crews that are installing barriers.

"There were four inbound lanes open so it won't be bad until construction actually starts."

The same conditions prevailed on Tuesday.

The DPW spokesman said only about 400 feet of barrier was placed in the southbound lanes on Monday due to a "slight union problem." The crews were working faster Tuesday he said.

Bernard Cohen of the MBTA said there was about a 5 per cent increase in ridership on the Red Line Monday morning, an increase of 750 over the normal 14,000.

"That is within the range of normal fluctuation," he said. "We expect it will go up as work on the Expressway goes on. People are slow to change their habits."

City Pays Rent, Golf Club Pays Taxes

The City Council Monday night appropriated $147,478.50 to pay back rent to Furnace Brook Golf Club so that Furnace Brook Golf Club can pay back taxes to the city.

The city has an arrangement with the club dating back a dozen years under which the city rents the club grounds for winter sports for a sum equal to the club's tax bill.

The city had not paid its rent to the club since 1979 and the club in turn had not paid taxes since that date, placing the golf course in danger of being foreclosed for back taxes.

"In other words," Councillor Stephen J. McGrath, "we put it in tax title by not paying the rent."

City Solicitor Dean Nicastro said Mayor X. Francis McCauley has the agreement under review to see if it should be terminated.

The agreement is for 50 years, said Nicastro, after which the golf course becomes the property of the city.

McCauley's Classification Plan Tax Rates: Homes $21⁹⁵ Business $32⁵⁰

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Francis X. McCauley has proposed a system of classification of taxable property that would result in a $21.95 residential tax rate for fiscal 1984, the current budget year.

Under the system, the owner of a single family home, valued at $56,000 under 100 per cent valuation would pay a tax bill of $1,242, down $335 from fiscal 1981 but up $91 from fiscal 1983.

The City Council will hold a public hearing on the proposal Monday, March 26, at 7:30 p.m. in the Council Chamber at City Hall.

Basically, what McCauley is proposing is that residential property in the city be taxed at 87.8007 per cent of full cash value while industrial, commercial and personal property be taxed at 130 per cent.

State law permits a city to tax industrial, commercial and personal property at a rate of 150 per cent of full valuation.

The State Department of Revenue has set a residential factor of 79.6678 for Quincy, which means that residential property can be taxed for no less than that percentage of full value.

McCauley told a news conference Tuesday that he feels his system is fair to both homeowners and businessmen.

"We want to help the homeowner," he said, "but we don't want to discourage the favorable business climate that has been built up in the city over the past few years."

McCauley used as an example an average single family home that was assessed at $6,500 before revaluation and at $56,600 after property was reassessed to reflect 100 per cent of market value.

In 1981, when the tax rate was $242.60, the homeowner paid $1,577 in property taxes.

In 1982, after Proposition 2 and one half had lowered the tax rate to $205.60, he paid $1,336.

In 1983, the second year of Prop 2 and one half, with the tax rate at $177, he paid $1,151.

If McCauley's classification system is adopted by the City Council and the tax rate set at $21.95, the same homeowner will pay $1,242.

If the $21.95 tax rate holds up, it would be the lowest in the city since 1916 when Mayor Gustavus B. Bates turned in a rate of $17.20.

Conditions, however, are not comparable.

On the other hand, commercial industrial property valued at $100,000 and taxed at 130 per cent of value for a tax rate of $32.50, would yield $3,250 in tax revenues for fiscal

Pay Raise Dispute Matter Of Principle

The issue of pay raises for city department heads has become a matter of principle in a dispute between members of the City Council and Mayor Francis X. McCauley.

The Council's Ordinance Committee last week made some changes in the Mayor's proposal, increasing some raises and decreasing others after an exhaustive examination of the duties of the jobs.

Monday night, after learning that the Mayor was unhappy with their tinkering, the councillors decided to leave the order in committee until the Mayor changes his mind.

The likelihood of that is dim.

"The Council cut some of the percentage increases and some of the adjustments," said McCauley. "I have no problem with that."

"The problem is they have gone and chosen some others for raises. That is an infringement on the mayor's prerogative to appropriate money."

"It is important down the line that the Mayor's and the City Council's prerogatives be kept."

Patricia Toland, chairman of the Ordinance Committee, informed the Council Monday night that the Mayor did not approve of the Council's work last week.

"I'm disappointed," said Councilor Joanne Condon. "Letting the order stay in committee might send a message to the Mayor."

Council President James A. Sheets put it more bluntly.

"It will stay in committee indefinitely until the Mayor indicates that he is ready to consider the committee's action," he said. "Unless we hear otherwise we will stand by the decision we made."

McCauley said City Solicitor Dean Nicastro is drafting an opinion for him on the legality of the Council's action in granting bigger raises to some department heads.

"I hope something can be worked out," he said. "I want Dean to define the parameters of the Mayor's and the Council's prerogatives. When I get his opinion I'll review the entire situation."

McCauley To Appoint 2 Lts., 7 Patrolmen

Mayor Francis X. McCauley said Tuesday he has asked for Civil Service lists in order to appoint two lieutenants and seven patrolmen to fill vacancies in the Police Department.

Candidates for patrolmen will be required to pass physical and psychological tests and attend the police academy before going on street duty.

Starting pay for patrolmen is $20,604 a year while a lieutenant gets $31,140.

Last summer, McCauley appointed nine new patrolmen and promoted other superior officers to fill two lieutenant and four captain positions.

Fur Coat Taken

Marie Pomeroy of Quincy reported to police Sunday that her red fox coat valued at $1,500 was stolen from the coat room at Montello's on Mass Ave., Quincy Point, while she was attending a St. Patrick's party.

Ford Taken

William McGrail of 189 Taffrail Rd., Germantown, reported to police that his 1976 Ford Elite was stolen from the home address.

McKeogh Firing Upheld By Appeals Court

Mayor Francis McCauley had the authority to fire former Health Commissioner Dr. Robert McKeogh, according to a ruling by the state Appeals Court's judge panel.

The Appeals Court upheld a Superior Court decision on the dismissal, which took place in June, 1982, after it reviewed legal briefs filed by both sides.

McCauley ousted McKeogh for failing to work full time during business hours.

McKeogh said he worked more than 40 hours a week as health commissioner and was on call 24 hours a day.

Last April, Superior Court Judge George Cashman dismissed the case and ruled that the mayor can remove a city official for cause and decide if the cause is sufficient.

Council Appropriates Good Luck . . .

$250,000 For School System

By TOM HENSHAW
The City Council Monday night approved a $250,000 appropriation for the School System after first beating back a minority move to have the sum earmarked for certain capital outlay items.

The appropriation is from the expected revenues of fiscal 1984 which unexpectedly became available when the total value of the city came in at $1.8 billion, more than was predicted.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon told the Council that the money would go $150,000 for equipment for the Vo Tech School and $100,000 for new typewriters in Quincy and North Quincy High Schools.

But some members of the Council, led by Councillor John J. Lydon Jr., wanted it spelled out in writing. They wanted the order sent to committee until the city solicitor could rule on its legality.

"I'm not sure the City Council can instruct the School Committee on how to spend the money," said Solicitor Dean Nicastro.

But the Council voted down the move by a 5-3 vote, with Lydon, Joanne Condon and Stephen McGrath voting to send it to committee.

Creedon told the Council that the high schools are in a serious situation for typewriters, most of which are seven to nine years old and are used daily by 25 percent of the students.

"We used to replace them every three or four years," Creedon said. "These typewriters are so old that they have no resale value."

Lydon noted that the $250,000 for the School System and another $260,000 also made available by the new city valuation could be used to reduce the fiscal 1984 tax rate by some $2 under the old rule of thumb that equates $275,000 to $1 on the rate.

"School equipment is desperately in need of upgrading," said Peter Kenney, the mayor's executive secretary. "This is just a small beginning to upgrade the School Department."

In a general discussion on the trials and tribulations of the School Department, Creedon told the Council that the Schools would need a minimum of $5 million to bring the school system back.

"Four million of it would go for instructional materials and plant needs," he said.

"The school system is approaching the point where the decade of the 1980's does not exist in the school libraries. The library budget is down from $100,000 to $14,000.

TRAFFIC CROSSOVER at Granite Ave., Milton, during reconstruction work on Southeast Expressway is explained in this diagram. Work on the outer two inbound lanes will be done between Quincy-Braintree interchange and Granite Ave. and work on the inner two inbound lanes will be done between Granite Ave. and the Massachusetts Ave. interchange in Boston, thus necessitating the crossover.

Video Games And Workouts Don't Mix

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
Video games and fitness centers don't mix, according to the Quincy License Board.

Board members suggested Tuesday the applicant withdraw without prejudice a request for four video machines at NuWave Aerobic & Fitness, 1569 Hancock St., Quincy Sq.

"People are in there for fitness," said City Clerk John Gillis, "I don't see what video games have to do with fitness."

Applicant Frederick

Forte said that games have been requested by members and the public would not be allowed to use them.

Forte said members could play the games while relaxing after a workout. He also said it would generate cash flow.

Police Chief Francis Finn said the board has had problems with video games, and added he didn't think they were necessary in a fitness center.

When it appeared there were not enough votes to grant the license, Gillis suggested the applicant wait until board members Fire Chief Edward Barry and Building Inspector could be present, or withdraw the request.

The applicant can reapply.

Wahlberg Renamed To Housing Board

Rosemary Wahlberg, director of Quincy Community Action, has been named to a five-year term as the state member of the board of commissioners of the Quincy Housing Authority.

The appointment was announced Monday morning and Mrs. Wahlberg was sworn in by City Clerk John Gillis Monday afternoon.

It is the second time that Mrs. Wahlberg has served on the board. She was originally named in 1974 by then-Gov. Francis W. Sargent.

Gov. Edward J. King named Mrs. Lolita Harris

McCray to replace her in 1979 and appointed Ralph Maher to the post when Mrs. McCray moved out of town.

Brockton Man In Drug Arrest

A 26-year-old Brockton man was arrested on drug charges Monday after police said they found drugs and paraphernalia in his car outside Sam's Variety, Tyler St. and Billings Rd., North Quincy.

Thomas P. McDonough was charged with possession of a Class B substance and possession of a hypodermic needle.

Police said they were summoned to the scene by reports of a suspicious car outside the variety store and when they looked in the trunk they found the drugs and the needle.

Wayne Needs A Home

Wayne is a 12-year old boy in need of a foster home. Wayne's father died in Vietnam three months before Wayne was born in 1971.

Wayne is the youngest of five children. Wayne's mother cared for the children until she was diagnosed as having terminal cancer in 1974. She died a few months later, leaving Wayne and his brothers and sisters homeless.

The Department of Social Services was unable to locate any living relatives, so the children were placed together in a foster home. The foster mother had difficulty caring for the children, ranging in age from three to 15 years. The children were then moved to Nazareth Child Care Center and later to the New England Home for Little Wanderers.

As a result of many years without a stable home or family life, Wayne has developed some behavioral problems. He is short-tempered and impulsive. Wayne has a difficult time relating to his peers and has difficulty trusting adults. Wayne was recently put on medication and his behavior has dramatically improved. He is getting along better with people and is more even-tempered. Given these improvements, his social worker thinks he is ready to be placed in a family situation. She feels he would do best with a slow, gradual transition into a foster family.

Wayne's oldest brother, now 26, is eager to see him placed with a foster family. While the older three children remained at New England Home until they were 18, his brother is anxious for the two younger boys to experience family life. Because each boy needs so much individual attention and is competitive with the other, the social worker feels they would do best in separate homes, although periodic visits between the children should take place.

Wayne is a small, cute boy. He is very verbal and talks about wanting to live with a family who has a pet. He would love a puppy, but would settle for a turtle. Wayne is an athletic boy, who likes baseball, football, bowling and roller skating. He watches sports on television occasionally and would love someone to take him to see a Celtics, Red Sox or Bruins game.

Wayne's transition into family life would begin with overnight visits. He needs a safe, secure and loving environment. Wayne would do well in a variety of home environments, including a single adult, a childless couple or a family with lots of room in their heart for one more.

If you have room in your heart and home for a child like Wayne, call Jennifer Holme, the Foster Care Recruiter for the Quincy Department of Social Services at 773-8920.

Comprehensive training and support, along with limited financial reimbursement and medical coverage is provided to all foster families.

Interested In Becoming A Foster Parent?

A meeting for Quincy residents interested in becoming foster parents, sponsored by the Department of Social Services, will be held Wednesday, March 21 at 7 p.m., 1419 Hancock St., Quincy. Geared towards residents of Quincy, Milton and Randolph, the meeting will address the responsibilities and rewards of foster parenting.

There are children in need of homes today. The Department of Social Services is seeking homes for infants, pre-schoolers, school age and teenage children. Single adults as well as working parents are eligible to become foster parents.

For further information on foster parenting call Jennifer Holme, Foster Care Recruiter at 773-8920.

Bite The Bullet On Ballots

City Clerk John Gillis looked and sounded tired on the Quincy Sun's Channel 8 last week as he read off the final Quincy results in the Presidential primaries.

And, no wonder.

Observant viewers must have seen the clock on the wall behind him. The hands were at 4 a.m. Even they looked tired.

Quincy is still in the dark ages when it comes to elections. Paper ballots are as obsolete as the Model-T.

The polls closed at the usual 8 p.m.

Not long after, radio and TV stations were calling Senator Gary Hart the winner. But the first Quincy return didn't drag in until about 10:30 p.m.

Waiting for the Quincy results seemed almost like a waste of time.

One of the problems is that election workers are getting older and tire faster, according to Gillis. They put in a long, long hard day. Younger people aren't interested in the job.

In last week's election, the polls opened at 7 a.m. Workers started at 6 a.m. and continued through until their precincts had been tabulated and the figures proven late at night.

Workers at the last three precincts who had some problems were still at it until 2 and 3 a.m.

The workers who have been making only $3.15 an hour just got a 35 cent pay raise to $3.50. That's why the younger people aren't interested. The job doesn't pay enough for them.

When Gillis became city clerk in 1959, he advocated voting machines. He figured 400 machines were needed and at that time the total cost would have been about $228,000.

Gillis suggested the city could equip one ward a year carrying the cost over six years. That would be only $38,000 a year.

DELIA CHIESA

But Amelio Della Chiesa was mayor then. He was a penny pincher. He pinched them so tightly, Abe Lincoln turned blue.

Della Chiesa was interested in keeping the tax rate down. One of his great fears was that Quincy someday would have God forbid a $100 tax rate.

To help prevent it getting to that mark, he even walked around City Hall turning off lights in rooms that weren't being used at the time.

With all due respect to Della Chiesa who was a good mayor, Gillis had the right idea back then.

"The machines would have paid for themselves," he said.

Those same machines today would run close to $1 million, he estimates.

That's too much money, he says.

But he has another idea: a punch card system similar to that used in Milton, Weymouth and Hingham. It's a fast and accurate system, he says.

The cost: about $200,000.

"They would pay for themselves," he says, echoing words he uttered 25 years ago.

Although election workers will make only $3.50 an hour, the cost of police overtime and custodian services boosts the cost of a Quincy election to somewhere in the neighborhood of $44,000, Gillis says. That's $88,000 for two elections per year.

A punch card system would cut that to about $12,000 per election, he says. That's a savings of about $24,000 a year for two elections.

So, in 10 years the savings alone would easily pay for the system.

And after that put money in the city till.

Quincy now has another penny pinching mayor in Francis McCauley. But as a former banker who knows the value of computers, he might just agree with Gillis that this is really the right way to go.

At least it should be looked into.

The situation now is ridiculous. And it's going to get worse if Quincy doesn't bite the bullet and the ballot, too. One of these elections there may not be enough workers show up. We'll be counting votes all week.

before and Chin told him, "I'll see you at Riley's tomorrow."

"Riley's" questioned Foley, "You mean Kelly's."

"Oh, well," replied Chin, "They all look alike."

Foley also reached behind the podium and came up with a red telephone. He lifted the receiver, listened a moment and turned to Lydon: as though he were Billy Bulger, "It's the President, he wants to talk to you."

"Happy St. Patrick's Day," Lydon said into the telephone to no one on the other end.

LYDON

JIM NANCE, the former Boston Patriots great who suffered a heart attack and stroke, recently showed his appreciation to the nurses who took care of him at Quincy City Hospital.

Nance was honored at a recent gala night at the Sheraton Hotel in Boston with more than 150, including some of the biggest names in sports and the entertainment field present. Tickets were $100 each.

Nance sent 10 complimentary tickets to the hospital to give to the nurses in appreciation of the care he received there.

THERE WERE a few familiar local faces among those being honored by the Publicity Club of Boston the other night at the Hyatt Regency in Cambridge: Paul Benzaquin, Bill Hahn, John Herbert, Herb Fontaine and Don Wilder, Walter Green, Jim Pansulo all of whom have Quincy ties. As does The Quincy Sun's John Noonan who is a member of the club.

2. In what section of the city is 470 Sea St.?

4. The Bargain Center in Quincy was established in 1937? 1946? 1951?
5. What well-known Quincy institution is located at 20 Greenleaf St.?

Answers to last week's Quincy Quiz:

1. James R. McIntyre served three terms as mayor of Quincy.
2. False. James R. McIntyre lost to Amelio Della Chiesa for mayor in 1959.
3. William C. Ellis succeeded James R. McIntyre as president of the City Council in 1960.
4. James R. McIntyre served in all three of the posts named: City Councilor, State Senator, State Representative.
5. James R. McIntyre was Senate Counsel when he died.

Senate In Tribute To McIntyre

Sen. Paul D. Harold led the State Senate Monday in paying tribute to the late James R. McIntyre, the former mayor and senator who died March 7.

Following is the text of Harold's remarks to the Senate:

I welcome the opportunity to pay tribute to the late Jim McIntyre.

Earlier today, my staff distributed copies of The Quincy Sun newspaper which, in an unprecedented nine-page special section, summarized Jim McIntyre's career and accomplishments. Nine pages was hardly enough to give an overview of his public service.

In planning my remarks this afternoon, I considered many possibilities. But this morning, when I was up in the helicopter with the Commissioner of Public Works to view the Southeast Expressway reconstruction, I was struck by the legacy of Jim McIntyre across the horizon.

His legacy, indeed, is as enduring as our granite hills. The Red Line Extension, the largest rapid transit extension in the United States when opened, has led to enormous development at both ends of Quincy which, when completed, will triple the city's valuation.

The preservation of two golf courses was Jim McIntyre's work, as was the major watershed project at Black's Creek.

The founding of Quincy Junior College, forerunner of our state community college system, was a McIntyre accomplishment, and while the bids will be opened next week for the new central artery, Burgin Parkway Extension, the groundwork for this project was laid 15 years ago by Jim McIntyre.

These projects, and the many other accomplishments of this rare man, indicate his unique vision of the role Quincy should play in the prosperity of the South Shore and the Commonwealth.

The best memorial we can give Jim McIntyre is to continue his record of public service, and his vision of what we can accomplish.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Safety Council Governing Board Resigns En Mass

The 12-member governing board of the Quincy Safety Council submitted its collective resignations to Mayor Thomas S. Burgin because of what Council Secretary Robert Iggat called "the futility of carrying on under present cooperation."

Mayor Burgin declined to release the text of the mass resignation but he added, however, "there is no reason that the Safety Council should submit their resignations to me" since the group had no official standing under the ordinances of the city.

JOB LOSSES SEEN

City Councillor Laurence J. Curtin said he believes there are many items of materials and miscellaneous expense that could be cut from Mayor Burgin's proposed city budget for 1939, but the Mayor disputed Curtin's opinion.

"If you make further cuts the only place reductions can be made will be in city labor," said Burgin.

BILL OPPOSED

A bill filed by Yrjo Matson and John Savage, chairman of the Republican and Democratic City Committees respectively, which would create a $5,000 a year election commission in Quincy drew the opposition of William M. Edmonston, executive secretary of the Quincy Taxpayers Association.

"When the politicians get hold of a thing like this it will likely cost nearer $8,000 a year," he said.

Tax Rates: Residential $21.95, Commercial $32.50

Late last year, when the State Department of Revenue was considering Quincy's revaluation figures for approval, McCauley projected a $22 residential tax rate and a $32 tax rate for business.

"We put those figures out because we did not want people to panic when they saw the large increases in their property values," he said. "We want to impress upon them that as the values went up, the tax rate would go down. "The $22 tax rate was favorably received at that time when it was related to values."

McCauley said the reaction of businessmen to the estimated tax rate was "basically mixed, but there was no hard-nosed opposition."

"Businessmen believe in no classification at all," he said. "I understand that. Businessmen are concerned with being competitive with business in the surrounding towns."

If there were no classification, residential, commercial, industrial and person property would all be taxed at a rate of $25 per thousand valuation.

McCauley said he gave his classification plan to members of the City Council also on Tuesday but he has obtained no reaction from them.

"I believe the councillors will keep an open mind on the issue," he said. "They will probably wait to see the citizens reactions before forming an opinion."

Actually, under state law, it is up to the Council to provide the classification plan and submit it for the mayor's approval.

McCauley said he took the lead in the matter because "I am much closer to the situation than the City Council and able to take a leadership role."

"The Council is free to accept it or set a different scheme of classification," he said.

The new tax rate, whatever it is, will go into effect on tax bills for the second half of fiscal 1984, which are due to be in the mail in April.

Bills for the first half of the fiscal year were based on one half of the total bill for fiscal 1983 so the difference will be made up in second half bills.

They probably will be considerably higher than the first half bills since the total for the year will be higher than fiscal 1983.

McCauley said he hopes to have a proposed tax rate before the State Department of Revenue for approval before April 6 so that second half bills will be in the mail by April 15.

Even at that, he said, the city will still have to borrow money to pay day-to-day expenses for the first few weeks of fiscal 1985.

McCauley said he hopes to have a proposed tax rate before the State Department of Revenue for approval before April 6 so that second half bills will be in the mail by April 15.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

CITY OF QUINCY IN COUNCIL

ORDERED:

March 13, 1984

That the Quincy City Council conduct a public hearing, in accordance with Mass. G.L. Chapter 40, Section 56 and applicable guidelines of the Massachusetts Department of Revenue, on Monday, March 26, 1984 at 7:30 P.M. in the Quincy City Council Chamber (Harry W. Tirell Hall), Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, Massachusetts, 02169 on the question of the adoption of the percentages of the local tax levy to be borne by each class of real and personal property for fiscal year 1984 (July 1, 1983-June 30, 1984), including in connection therewith the question of the adoption of a residential factor.

That by this notice the general public be advised that the policy decisions available with respect to the aforesaid questions are as follows:

Pursuant to Mass. G.L. Ch. 59, s. 2A the Board of Assessors is to classify real property according to four (4) uses:

Class One, Residential;
Class Two, Open-Space;
Class Three, Commercial;
Class Four, Industrial.

Pursuant to Mass. G.L. Ch. 40, s. 56 the City Council, subject to the Mayor's approval, is to determine the percentages of the local tax levy to be borne by each of the above four classes of real property and by personal property for fiscal year 1984 (July 1, 1983 - June 30, 1984).

In determining such percentages, the City Council, subject to the Mayor's approval, shall first adopt a "residential factor," i.e., the key number which is used as a multiplier to calculate the classification percentages. The residential factor may not be less than the minimum residential factor determined for the City of Quincy by the Massachusetts Commissioner of Revenue. The Commissioner has determined that the minimum residential factor for the City of Quincy for fiscal year 1984 is 79.6678.

The residential factor adopted by the City Council will govern the percentage of the tax levy to be borne by Class One, Residential property. A residential factor of "1" will result in the taxation of all classes of property at the same rate. If the City Council adopts a low residential factor, Class One, Residential property will bear a proportionately lower share of the total tax levy. The City Council is permitted to adopt a residential factor greater than "1", which would have the effect of favoring commercial, industrial and personal property, and taxing residential property and open space at a higher rate.

In addition, when determining the residential factor, the City Council is permitted to select a classification percentage for Class Two, Open Space, which may not be less than 75% of its full and fair cash value percentage. If this were done, Class One, Residential alone would absorb any discount applied to the open space class.

Once the residential factor has been determined and a decision made as to the classification percentage to be used for open space, the formulas for calculating the classification percentages for the five classes of property are set forth by statute as follows:

Class One, Residential - The full and fair cash valuation of the Class One property divided by the full and fair cash valuation of all real and personal property in the City multiplied by the residential factor;

Class Two, Open-Space - The full and fair cash valuation of the Class Two property divided by the full and fair cash valuation of all real and personal property in the City multiplied by not less than 75% of the residential factor;

Class Three, Commercial - The full and fair cash valuation of the Class Three property divided by the sum of full and fair cash valuation of Class Three and Class Four real property and personal property in the City multiplied by the difference between 100% and the sum of the Class One and Class Two percentages;

Class Four, Industrial - The full and fair cash valuation of the Class Four property divided by the sum of the full and fair cash valuation of the Class Three and Class Four real property and personal property in the City multiplied by the difference between 100% and the sum of the Class One and Class Two percentages; and Personal Property - The full and fair cash valuation of the personal property in the City divided by the sum of the full and fair cash valuation of the Class Three and Class Four real property and the personal property in the City multiplied by the difference between 100% and the sum of the Class One and Class Two percentages.

For purposes of these formulas, the "full and fair cash valuation" amounts are those amounts as determined by the Commissioner of Revenue. The Commissioner has determined these amounts for the City of Quincy for fiscal year 1984 as follows:

Class One, Residential - $1,305,789,319
Class Two, Open Space - No valuation; vacant land in Quincy has been classified with the other classes, as applicable.

Class Three, Commercial - $323,293,401
Class Four, Industrial - $139,928,000
Personal Property - $67,770,015

That as such public hearing reasonable opportunity to be given to the Board of Assessors to provide all information and data relevant to making the determinations on the aforesaid questions, including the fiscal effect of the available alternatives.

That the following agenda and procedures be adopted to govern the conduct of such public hearing:

- 1) Presentation by the Mayor of his views, comments, plans, proposals or recommendations concerning the aforesaid questions, without limitation of time;
 - 2) Questions and comments by the City Council as to the Mayor's presentation, without limitation of time;
 - 3) Presentation of views, comments, plans, proposals, and recommendations by members of the general public concerning the aforesaid questions, with time limitations as follows:
 - (a) ten (10) minutes per speaker as to whom views, comments, plans, proposals or recommendations have been received in writing in accordance with the deadline and place of receipt hereinafter indicated.
 - (b) five (5) minutes per speaker as to whom no such views, comments, plans, proposals, or recommendations have been so received in writing.
- The City Council reserves the right to pose questions and make comments upon presentations made under this paragraph No. 3 immediately following each speaker's presentation.
- 4) Questions, comments, views, plans, proposals, and recommendations by members of the City Council, without limitation of time; and
 - 5) Such other items and procedures as may be required by law.

That the foregoing agenda and procedures may, consistently with law, be varied or amended as may be reasonable, useful and proper in order to further the intent of state law to provide an open forum for the discussion of local property tax policy on the aforesaid questions at such public hearing.

That, pursuant to Rule 23 of the Rules of the Quincy City Council, said Rules be suspended for the conduct of such public hearing, but only to the extent the same are inconsistent with the procedures set forth herein.

That, in connection with such public hearing, written views, comments, plans, proposals and recommendations on the aforesaid questions may be presented to the City Council by members of the general public, provided such written views, comments, plans, proposals, and recommendations are received in the City Clerk's Office, Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA 02169 by 3:00 P.M. on Friday, March 23, 1984; but that no one shall be required to make a presentation of views, comments, plans, proposals and recommendations in writing in order to be permitted to speak at such public hearing.

That this notice be adopted by the City Council.

SELF POLLUTION

If you haven't smoked your first cigarette, you're a lucky person! Cigarette smoking is the greatest cause of preventable death in this country. If you smoke, you should be aware of the hazards: 70% greater chance of heart attack; 5-20 times greater chance of lung cancer; 10 times greater chance of mouth cancer; 18 times greater chance of emphysema and chronic bronchitis.

You can prevent half of your health problems by fighting self pollution. Preventive medicine works. The answer is in your hands. Here are some "Quitting Tips." Make each cigarette a special decision and put off making the decision. Don't quit "forever." Just stop for a day and then the next day, and the next. Tell your friends and your family you're quitting. A public commitment bolsters willpower. Hide all evidence of cigarettes, ashtrays, matches, etc. so you aren't reminded of your old habit.

Hurley, Herbert To Be Honored By Chamber

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce will honor two Quincy business leaders as this year's recipients of the organization's distinguished service awards.

Paul E. Hurley, Sr., founder and president of The Hurley Insurance Agency of Quincy and Braintree will be given one award, and John R. Herbert, the recently retired president of the Quincy Cooperative Bank will receive the other award.

The Chamber's leadership awards committee, headed by Paul MacElhiney of the Duncan MacKellar Insurance Agency of East Weymouth, said the committee feels the two South Shore businessmen are worthy of special recognition for their years of business and civic service.

Both Hurley and Herbert will receive their awards at the annual dinner of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce Friday, March 23, at the Lantana in Randolph. According to Chamber president John C. Doody, some 700 members and guests are expected to attend the function.

Hurley serves as chairman of the board of directors of the Bank of New England-Hancock and is a member of the board of directors of the Bank of New England Corp. A World War II veteran who served in the South Pacific, Hurley is a retired commander in the U.S. Naval Reserve.

Active in community affairs, Hurley is a former member of the board of managers of Quincy City Hospital and served as chairman for two years. He has headed such organizations as the Quincy Heart Fund, the Cerebral Palsy Fund, Quincy Community Chest, Quincy Visiting Nurses Association, the Quincy YMCA, the Wollaston Golf Club, and the Quincy Tennis Club.

JOHN R. HERBERT

R. Herbert served as managing editor of The Patriot Ledger, when he was appointed editor of the newspaper. In 1967, he became editor of the Boston Herald and then executive editor of the Herald Traveler in 1972. From 1972 to 1975, Herbert served as first executive director of the Massachusetts Newspapers Publishers Association.

Herbert recently retired as president and chairman of the board of the Quincy Cooperative Bank and president of the Squanto Corp., the bank's real estate holding company.

For a brief period in 1983, Herbert was the interim chief operating officer of the Boston Bank of Commerce, a position he was asked to fill by the chairman of that bank's board of directors, Eugene V. Roundtree, president of All-Stainless, Inc., Hingham.

A trustee of Quincy Junior College, Herbert is a chairman of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, and is an active member of Progress Downtown Quincy and the Chamber's South Shore Economic Development Corporation.

PAUL HURLEY, SR.

Along with the two distinguished service awards, the Chamber will honor its 1983 president, D. Currey Pettus of Armstrong World Industries, Inc., Braintree. During his year of service, Pettus was promoted by Armstrong and is currently supervising six of the company's east coast manufacturing plants. His offices are in Lancaster, Pennsylvania. Pettus and his wife, along with his parents, will attend the dinner.

The Chamber has also invited Washington, D.C.-based political satirist Peter Markham to speak. He is noted for his barbed attacks on Washington's political community.

The Bo Winiker Orchestra of Boston's Parker House will provide entertainment and music for dancing.

At last! A Home Mortgage with no unpleasant surprises.

Colonial Federal's new
Fixed Payment Adjustable
Rate Mortgage
is now available.

The adjustable interest rate home mortgages offered by most banks today have one major drawback. Because the interest rates vary, your monthly mortgage payments can vary. They can go up and they can go down. You have no way of knowing what your payments will be in the future. That's enough to discourage you from buying a new home.

Colonial Federal doesn't believe that mortgage payments should act like elevators. So, to make it easier for you to finance your new home, we've designed a brand new adjustable rate mortgage which offers you guaranteed fixed monthly payments for the first ten years. After this, the mortgage may be continued, modified or paid off without penalty.

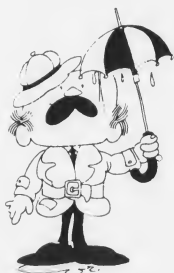

No unpleasant surprises means that you can borrow and budget with confidence, knowing that your payments are unconditionally guaranteed to remain the same for ten years. And, that's a long time to have peace of mind.

This new mortgage is available only from Colonial Federal Savings Bank. It's just one more example of our continuing dedication to giving our customers the very best in personal banking services.

For more information, visit one of our convenient offices today or call 617 471-0750.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Since his first appearance on Earth, man has been building. From the first caves, the first shabby huts, man has progressed tremendously. Today we see architecture of beautiful detail with iron-like strength. Bricks are one of the basic building blocks for structures of engineering skill. But bricks alone cannot form either a longlasting or strong wall. Mortar or cement must be added between them.

Physical structures are not the only things man has built since his creation. He has built ideas - and relationships. And these have been longer lasting than any physical structure ever built.

Like the bricks in a house, all of us are only the basic blocks in a relationship with other people. Yet, no one has yet been able, or will ever be able to form a long lasting relationship by himself. It takes two - and or more - to form the cement of human relationship. The cement of brotherly love and respect must be spread. There is NO other way regardless of how strong an individual brick or block may be.

'One Great Hour Of Sharing' To Be Observed At Bethany

There will be two worship services Sunday, March 25, in Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Centre, at 9 a.m. in the chapel and 10 a.m. in the sanctuary.

Emphasis at both hours will be on Christian response to world wide human need, including emergency relief for victims of flood, famine, earthquake and war, and the long range goals of self-development requiring tools, seeds, wells, and upgrading of agricultural methods and crops.

Bethany Church will be joining with thousands of United Church of Christ congregations throughout the United States who are observing "One Great Hour of Sharing" during Lent, seeking to raise $3 million for these world concerns.

The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will preach the sermon at both hours on the question, "Why Care?" based on the scriptural text in Matthew 15:29-38. Scripture readers will be Lois Nordstrom in the chapel and Shirley D.

Pine in the sanctuary. The Rev. Joel F. Huntington, associate minister, will serve as liturgist.

During the sanctuary service, the chancel choir under the direction of Peter E. Krasinski, organist, will present the anthem, "O Taste and See" by R. Vaughn Williams. Guest soloist, Marie Terese Giordano, lyric soprano, will sing, "My Heart Ever Faithful" by J.S. Bach.

The worship service will be broadcast by delayed-tape over WJDA, 1300 kc, at 11 a.m.

Sunday School will be in session from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. with classes for preschool through ninth grade. Nursery care will be provided for babies and young children.

At 11 a.m., there will be a coffee hour in the Allen Parlor. Individuals and families from the community are welcome to share in the worship and fellowship, and to enroll children in the Church School.

An adult forum is scheduled from 11:30 to 12:30 in Bethany Chapel on the topic, "Nuclear Weapons Freeze Update." Guest leader will be John Malcolm Forbes of Cambridge, who will make a presentation followed by questions, answers and open discussion. Persons from the community are cordially invited.

Joel and Tora Huntington will lead a session on "Listening Prayer: Exploring the Spiritual Life," Sunday from 2 to 3:30 p.m. in the Allen Parlor.

On Wednesday, March 28, at 7 a.m. there will be a Lenten devotional service in Bethany Chapel, with Pastor Arnold giving the meditation on "Unswerving Prayer."

Following the 30-minute service, a light breakfast will be served in the parish house. Both the brief worship service and the breakfast are open to the public and people can leave for work by 7:45 a.m.

For information on any of Bethany's services or programs contact Pastor Arnold or the church office at 479-7300.

Squantum Church Opposes Full Liquor License

After a breakfast, participants from both services at the First Church of Squantum worshipped together Sunday morning in a single worship service.

Church pastor, the Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, preached on the subject, "Confessing Our Sins".

Following the service, there was a time of fellowship and a quarterly meeting of the Church Council.

One item on the agenda of the Church Council meeting was an inquiry from the Nickerson Legion Post about how the church would regard its request for a full liquor license from the city.

The license would be used at the post headquarters which is located in a city park in the Squaw Rock section of Squantum.

The Church Council and the attending members voted overwhelmingly to oppose that license or any others to sell liquor in Squantum.

Speakers at the meeting said that such sales would erode the quality of family life in Squantum, change the nature of the neighborhood, represent a positive danger to persons living in the community and encourage others to ask for the same permission.

Opposition to this proposal was very strong and nearly unanimous.

The Sunday service included selections by both the Junior Choir and the Chancel Choir. The Junior Choir sang "Part of the Plan" by Natalie Sleeth. Mary Ruth Scott directed. The Chancel Choir sang "When Jesus Wept" by William Billings.

Hymns sung during the service included "When Morning Gilds the Skies", "Beneath the Cross of Jesus", "O Jesus, Thou Art Standing" and "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross".

Each Wednesday evening during Lent, there is a home-cooked dinner at the church to bring the church family together for fellowship and to help raise money for the youth ministry of the church.

Reservations may be made by calling 328-6649. The dinner begins at 6 p.m.

After each Lenten dinner, there is a time for worship and learning with the pastor. This year, subject of the Lenten series is "American Church History". On March 21, the topic was "The Missionary Impulse". On March 28, the topic will be "The Social Gospel". Worship and the talk begin at 6 p.m.

Next Sunday, the sermons will be entitled "Jesus' Last Supper" at the first service and "What is Your Treasure?" at the second. Both the Youth Choir and the Chancel Choir will sing during the second service.

The guitar service begins at 8:30 a.m. and the traditional service at 10:30 a.m.

From now through Palm Sunday, worshippers are asked to bring canned goods with them to the service to be given to those in need.

'The Family Of God' Point Congregational Lenten Program

"The Family of God" is the title of the Lenten Series being held at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

brown bag supper. This is a time of refreshment and fellowship.

The program begins at 7:30 p.m. Those who can not attend the meal are welcome to join the group at this time.

You are not alone. This Sunday, 61 million other adult Americans also chose not to go to church.

Does this sound like you?

You feel you are essentially out of step with conventional religious ideas. You have difficulty accepting those absolute truths and rigid dogmas you were told you had to believe.

And, you're probably a little tired of being made to feel guilty because you have honest questions. If these sentiments express where you're coming from, relax. You are not alone. A large percentage of those 61 million non-church-going Americans feel the way you do.

Is there a church for people like you?

Yes. We're the Unitarian Universalists. We've been around for a long time, and we've attracted some of the most significant and independent thinkers in history. Thomas Jefferson, Charles Darwin, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Susan B. Anthony.

Dorothea Dix, Henry Thoreau, Clara Barton, Isaac Newton, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Adlai Stevenson, Dr. Linus Pauling, Elliot Richardson and many others.

Our religious approach is based on independent, free exploration. We don't feel that any person, any book or any institution should tell you what you must think. You and you alone are responsible for your religious well-being.

What goes on in a Unitarian Universalist service?

Frankly, that will vary from church to church, depending on the minister and the congregation. In fact, some of our organizations are called churches at all. Some call themselves societies, some are fellowships and are run by the lay people themselves. Essentially, though, you'll find a congenial and supportive climate that is intellectually free and spiritually exciting, where you are encouraged to reach out and grow, not cut up and accept. We have no doctrines and dogmas that you must accept. We believe that "truth" is ever evolving, so we remain open to new scientific revelations and philosophical insights.

We are more concerned with the essential goodness of people, not some inherent sinfulness. We are more concerned with the here and now, rather than a hereafter. Does this sound like the kind of church you've been looking for?

THE UNITARIAN UNIVERSALISTS An exciting way to wake up Sunday mornings.

To treat varicose veins, some doctors are going back to "sclerotherapy," a procedure in which chemical injections shrink the veins and tight bandages keep them from filling up again. Said to be effective for simple or complicated cases, surgery is still preferred for moderate ones.

Take care of your own funeral arrangements now.
So your family won't have to later.

By not taking care of your own funeral in advance, you force someone close to you to do it for you.

For the person who accepts the responsibility, making arrangements at the time of need is likely to be filled with uncertainties. The uncertainty of not knowing what you really wanted. Your personal preferences. Perhaps, a favorite dress or suit. A special prayer. A clergyman with whom you are especially close. The uncertainties are endless.

The kindest thing you can do for your family is make your own funeral arrangements far in advance of need. That way everybody will know the kind of funeral you would like to have.

Role reversal...

Contrary to popular mythology, men are eager to marry, too

When it comes to marriage, popular mythology has it that women want it desperately, while men are "captured," dragged into it kicking and screaming all the way. This myth needs a bit of updating, says an article in a recent issue of Bride's Magazine.

In an ironic reversal of roles, men today are eager to marry, so eager in fact, they often find they're the ones doing the dragging.

The 1982 figures from the U.S. Bureau of the Census reveal that about 70 percent of American men today are or have been married. And, the much-touted playboy life aside, says the article, of those men not married, approximately 80 percent wish they were.

Evidence of concern

Marriage counselors also have evidence that men place a new value on marriage. When a marriage is in trouble, they say, the husbands are at least as concerned with seeking help as their wives are.

This is a big change from 15 years ago when, according to Dr. Ray Fowler, Marriage and Family Therapist in Claremont, California, "less than 20 percent of the visits to therapists on a national basis were initiated by men."

What happened? Why, just as women are proclaiming their independence and postponing marriage in favor of a career are men deciding that marriage and family life are really important after all?

Effect of change

It's precisely because women have changed that men have changed too, says the article. As Dr. Tilla Vahanian, a New York City marriage counselor and psychotherapist puts it, "Women have discovered that they don't need men as much as they thought they did."

Men are finding that their need is greater than they were willing to admit. "It's like an elaborate dance that must be kept in balance. If one sex says 'no' the other has to take over saying 'yes.'"

Because many women are finding satisfaction in other pursuits and are no longer solely devoted to getting married, marriage for men is no longer the buyer's market it once was.

With men having to pursue marriage, they've come to have a greater appreciation of its worth. There's also a greater acceptance of emotion in society as a whole. Men today can acknowledge their need for closeness without feeling like traitors to manhood.

The desire to be a father is also a major motivator for some men to marry. Carrying on the family line was always important to a man, of course, but today's looser sex roles encourage him to get much more involved in the day-to-day raising of his children.

New satisfactions

In the process, men have found deep new satisfactions. Concludes the article: "... men have discovered that marriage is an opportunity to experience the gentle, nurturing parts of [themselves] that have been denied for too long."

THE WEDDING DRESS of the demure Southern belle is best exemplified here in a gown of Cluny lace and Satin ribbons. An asymmetrically ruffled bodice with V-neck and ballgown sleeves is designed by Michele Piccione for Bridalure. This dream-like creation is completed with a full lace skirt, cathedral train trimmed with rows of narrow lace ruffles and satin ribbons. The look is completed by the bride's large-brimmed picture hat, with removable wreath, by Tina Michele.

Brightly dawns our wedding day;

—W.S. Gilbert

The joys of marriage are the heaven on earth,
Life's paradise, great princess, the soul's quiet,
Sins of concord, earthly immortality,
Eternity of pleasures; no restoratives
Like to a constant woman.
—John Ford

When widows exclaim loudly against second marriages, I would always lay a wager, that the man, if not the wedding-day, is absolutely fixed on.

Helpful hints for selecting engagement, wedding rings

The first major decision facing the newly-engaged couple is the selection of an engagement ring, usually shortly followed by a wedding ring.

Jewelers of America (JA), the national association representing more than 12,000 retail jewelers across the country, offers some tips that are designed to help a couple pick the rings that fit the future bride's finger and future groom's budget.

According to National Jeweler, a trade publication, today's engaged couples continue the tradition of solitaire diamonds, but they are combining them with romantic contemporary settings.

Round stones still lead in popularity, but the use of "fancies" such as marquises and pears, followed by ovals and emerald-cut stones, is increasing.

The bigger the stone, the simpler the setting should be. Conversely, the smaller the center stone, or solitaire, the more elaborate the setting can be.

Some of the smaller fancy-shaped diamonds, in openwork frame settings, give the illusion of a bigger stone and a more important ring, while keeping price levels down.

All-yellow gold remains the favorite, but new finishes and color combinations are making fashion news. Two-tone textural treatments, combining mirror finishes with sandblasted, florentined, brushed and pebbled surfaces, are all available.

A new item: refined nugget designs, offering the rich coloration of gold with an irregular surface.

Younger couples prefer romantic designs, featuring hand-cut flowers and leaves, continuous hearts, braided and love knot motifs. Interlocking sets of engagement and wedding rings which can be worn separately or as a unit, look most appealing with softer, more flowing lines.

Couples embarking on their second trip to the altar frequently eliminate the traditional engagement ring in favor of a more costly wedding ring, often embellished by diamonds.

For this most important

THE DIAMOND SOLITAIRE in every shape and size is the overwhelming favorite with 69 percent of those lucky brides who receive a diamond engagement ring. choice, it is vital to deal with a local jeweler who not only offers a wide selection of styles and price ranges, but is also an expert who can give you advice and service.

For example, if you have a ring or piece of jewelry from a parent or grandparent, a jeweler can make it into a "today" style for you.

If the stone has been damaged over the years, he can re-cut it and set it in a ring that you will be proud to wear. In fact, your taste will play an important role in the new design.

Finally, the jeweler who has become your advisor will also be around in the future for service. You can return to him for repairs, or, as the years pass, you may want to hand your ring down to your newly-engaged child. Your jeweler will be there to help.

To learn more about fine jewelry, you can receive JA's free brochures by sending a self-addressed stamp envelope to Jewelers of America, Dept. MNS, 1271 Avenue of the Americas, New York, NY 10020.

Suggestions ease challenge of selecting the right wedding gift

What do today's brides and grooms want as wedding gifts? It used to be that every couple needed a toaster, or a salad bowl.

But now, with so many young people living on their own or living together before they marry, and with so many marriages re-marriages, this isn't necessarily so.

To pick a perfect gift these days, a guest needs the power of ESP combined with an active imagination — or some help.

According to Bride's Magazine, this is exactly what wedding gift registries are for. Registries work by providing a clearinghouse where couples can record the items they'd like and guests can look over the list and choose the gift that suits their taste and budget. Over 65 percent of today's brides and grooms register for gifts.

What's new about wedding gift registries is where they're turning up. They started in the 1930's in jewelry and department stores, but now they've expanded to furniture stores, gourmet food shops, liquor stores, luggage shops and bookstores. You'll even find them in museums — the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City opened one a year ago.

What if a guest can't or doesn't want to use a wedding gift registry? It's still possible to sort through the options and find a present that will please," says Alicia Beldegreen, Gifts Editor of Bride's.

First, it's a safe bet that anyone can use extra blankets, towels, linens or breakable items like wine glasses. Second, there's a whole category of out-of-the-ordinary gifts that aren't likely to be duplicated, such as:

1. A gift certificate to a class that the couple can take together — anything from cooking or exercise to photography or ballroom dancing. Busy newlyweds often don't schedule

enough time together and such a present can provide an incentive.

2. The foundations of a home library. An encyclopedia, for example, is something people often don't get around to buying for awhile. Depending on the couple's interests, a beautiful art book or a lavish cookbook also make special gifts.

3. A Telephone Company gift certificate. More and more couples are buying their own phones and this present lets them choose the one that matches their taste.

4. An evening out to a gourmet restaurant. What could be more fun than receiving a gift after all the other gifts are in?

couple to enlist the services of a professional wedding photographer.

Friends and relatives may have the best intentions when they offer their services... but even the most skilled amateur photographer lacks the experience and precision that a professional brings to his job.

Choose a photographer who is experienced in photographing weddings, and who uses Kodak products for a "good look" in his or her finished work.

Select your photographer at least two months in advance, especially if your wedding is planned for the busy seasons of spring or the Christmas holidays.

A bridal couple should take time to meet with their photographer and discuss not only their formal portrait and the pictures needed for newspaper announcements, but also the candid they will want taken at the wedding and reception.

Brides see the difference on their extra-special wedding day

Here comes the bride, all dressed in... GLASSES? Why would any bride want to wear glasses on her wedding day? Glasses mask those sparkling eyes that a bride wants everyone to see on the day she says "I do."

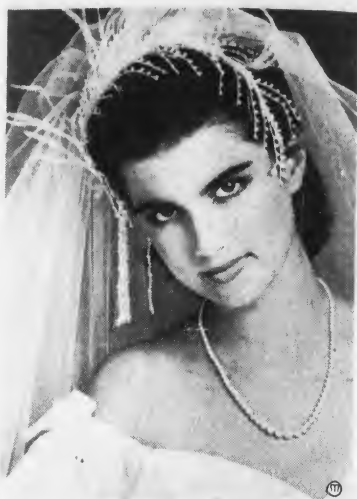

Brides no longer have to fret about glasses ruining their special day. Now there are easy-to-wear contact lenses for all types of vision problems.

Soft lenses are by far the most popular since they can be worn all day with no discomfort.

Brides also have more options for makeup application with contact lenses. Cosmetic colors can be chosen to match the bridal theme, instead of to counter the effect of unattractive glasses. A bride can subtly enhance her natural beauty with pastel colors or opt for a more dramatic look.

Photographers will often request that eyeglasses be removed since lights reflecting off the glass can ruin wedding pictures. With contact lenses, the bride and her groom merely have to smile and say "cheese."

What really makes soft lenses ideal is their convenience and easy care. When packing for her honeymoon, a bride wants to save all the room she can for her beautiful trousseau instead of lugging around a bulky heat disinfection unit to clean lenses.

With lens care made so easy and trouble-free, today's brides should have no problem bidding glasses farewell, knowing they look more beautiful than ever before.

Tonsorial tips for the groom

As the wedding day approaches, every groom wants to look his best. Despite all of the worrying over clothes and other details, there is one particular aspect to his appearance that a man should be super careful about—his haircut.

The most attractive haircut for any man depends upon his own unique facial structure and features. For instance, a man who possesses a large nose may look better with his hair combed away from his face, according to New York grooming specialist Stan Place.

Place also suggests that a high forehead gentleman brush his hair forward or to either side, and that a low forehead calls for the hair to be brushed back or forward.

In addition, Place recommends that a man with a receding chin have his hair trimmed short at top and left long at the back and sides.

Skin and hair care are as fundamental to the groom as to the bride, and to find his skin type, the groom should go to a grooming bar at a department store. For example, if his hair is oily, an anti-oil shampoo will be prescribed.

In essence, a few simple grooming tips can help any man develop and maintain his optimum appearance, which is sure to please his wife long after the wedding day.

Emergency spotcleaning for your wedding gown

It's every bride's nightmare: you're wearing your dream wedding dress and someone accidentally spashes you with salad dressing or douses you with wine. BRIDE'S Magazine has this advice to make sure a wedding-day spill doesn't ruin your big moment:

- Learn about your dress fabric beforehand. Ask your salon owner or salesperson what your dress is made of and cleaning hints for it. They may suggest dry cleaning only, but you can fix up most spots well enough yourself to get through your ceremony and reception.

- Act fast to keep a stain from setting. Don't rub the spill or expose it to extreme heat — instead, a few quick blots will take care of the worst of the problem. What to blot with? That depends on the stain.

- Fight water soluble stains with water. Champagne, wine, perspiration, beverages are common water-soluble spills. Their cure: put a towel under the fabric and blot top with a damp cloth, preferably wrung out in a light solution of white vinegar or detergent and water.

Don't rub because it can break fibers — especially the delicate fibers of many wedding dresses. As soon as the stain is gone, blot dry to prevent a ring. An extra hint for wine stains: put damp salt on the spot. Let the salt dry, brush it away.

- Use cleaning solvent on greasy stains. Lipstick and other cosmetics, perfume, salad dressing, chocolate, and various foods respond well to dry cleaning solvents or spray-on spot removers. Sprays or solvents can be found in purse size in any drugstore — it's a good idea to carry one.

In a fix, a bit of hairspray may work as well. To get out a greasy stain, place it face down on paper towels and go over the back with solvent and a clean cloth, working quickly from center to edges. To complete the job, use some soap and water. Then blot dry.

- Treat delicate fabrics extra carefully. Taffeta, for example, can wrinkle permanently or even split. Be sure to keep taffeta flat and smooth when removing stains and tap or lightly brush it. Silk can be cleaned easily with mild acids or alkalies — water with a few drops of ammonia or vinegar.

ELEGANT WEDDING PARTY — The bride's attendants are garbed in romantic confections of taffeta, Wedgewood lace and feather-edge ribbon. The ruffled neckline of the bridesmaids' gowns can be worn either on or off the shoulder; the full taffeta skirt, with built-in hoops, picks up to reveal a cascade of lace ruffles. The littlest member of the bridal party wears a scaled-down version of this gown, with ruffled bodice, taffeta skirt with pickups and lace ruffle, and built-in hoop.

CAPTURE THE MEMORIES — Family weddings mean priceless memories, and today more people are using home video equipment to capture those special moments forever. General Electric's new lightweight color video cameras and decks allow the amateur photographer to record every wedding highlight, indoors and out. Whether shooting in bright sunlight outside church or low lighting in the reception hall, the GE camera's super-sensitivity produces bright, sharp color images. After the festivities, the compact portable deck can give family members an "instant replay" on the home TV screen, and be packed along with camera to preserve honeymoon highlights. Videotapes are taking their place alongside traditional wedding photo albums as a perfect way to relive precious memories for a lifetime.

Squirt A's Win League Title But Bow In State Tourney

Quincy's Squirt A team, sponsored by the South Boston Savings Bank, enjoyed a week most kids just dream about.

The team began the week by clinching the Greater Boston League title. It then won the District 3 AHA Mini One-on-One competition in a playdown among 16 teams and, defending its state championship, it went to the finals before bowing to a strong Newton team.

Quincy clinched the league crown with a big 11-0 victory over Norwood. This was the team's first year in the GBL.

Joey Bevilacqua, Timmy Collins, Stevie Carroll, Matt Kelley, Ronnie Last and Rich Brooks were the one-on-one participants and will advance to the round, which will be aired next year between periods of the Bruins games.

In the state tournament at Natick Quincy started out by blasting Yarmouth, 9-1. Collins scored four goals and Billy Lydon, Last, John Witham, Mike Lally and Danny Savage one each.

Bevilacqua led the way in an 8-2 win over Danvers with a hat trick. Collins, Lydon, Savage, Last and Mark Kelleher had a goal each.

Against Natick Bevilacqua had two goals and Witham, Collins and Lydon one each in a 5-2 decision.

In the semifinals Quincy prevailed, 6-5, over a strong Billerica team, as Bevilacqua and Last had two goals each and Collins and Kelleher one apiece.

The bubble burst in the championship game as Newton raced to a quick 3-0 lead and won, 7-2. Bevilacqua and Collins had the Quincy goals.

Coaches Bob Carroll and Sonny Pugliese had high praise for the play of goalies Richie Brooks and Dennis Ruggere and the outstanding playmaking of Sean McCarthy, Carroll and Jason Radzevich. The defensive play of Last, Kelly, Lally and Scott McClory was also outstanding.

St. Moritz Bantam A's Draw A Blank In Sweden

The St. Moritz Bantam A hockey team not only failed to repeat as champion of the Gurka Pucken Tournament in Vasteras, Sweden, but failed to win a game.

However, the team, which plays out of the Shea Rink in West Quincy and UMass-Boston, made a lot of new friends and is looking forward to its fifth visit to the tournament next year.

The team had lots of trouble flying out of JFK Airport in New York and lost two players to injuries right away and the fatigue showed in its performances.

St. Moritz, which was 15-6-4 in the Metropolitan Boston League going into the tournament in which it was the lone U.S. representative, lost its opener to the Finnish national team, 12-0, after trailing by only 2-0 at halftime. (In Sweden hockey is played in halves rather than in three periods). "Fatigue had to be a major factor," said Coach Kevin McKinnon, who plans to step down as coach but will remain involved with St. Moritz and its fine program.

In the second game St. Moritz bowed to Moto, Sweden, 12-3, after being down by just one goal at halftime. "The three goals we scored were the most scored against the Moto team in the entire tournament," McKinnon said. "This team (Moto) is unbelievable. They run two miles before stepping on the ice to play. They live a few miles from the Russian border and they're trained by the Russians."

Next came a 4-2 loss to Vasteras and a 2-0 loss to Norway, despite having a 2-1 advantage in shots in both games.

The St. Moritz players dominated the MVP awards presented after each game, winning all four awards. Matt Ostiguy of Quincy was the MVP in games one and three, and Timmy O'Brien and Terry McKinnon, also of Quincy, won trophies for starring in the other games.

The St. Moritz team was a favorite with the crowds of 1000 attending each game, continually shouting "USA, USA, USA."

The Quincy players on the team were Jim Bille, Ostiguy, McKinnon, O'Brien, David Savage and David Young. Other players came from Dedham, Stoughton, Westwood, Weymouth, Walpole, Peabody, Lynnfield, Medford, Winchester, Reading and Charlestown.

The coaches are Kevin McKinnon, John Bille and Bob McKinnon of Quincy and Bud Collins of Weymouth.

It took months of fundraising by the coaches and players to get to the four-day tournament. Fund raising began in September with solicitation of ads for an ad book, a dance and getting sponsors for its "10-10" raffle.

Each ad sold by a player earned him credit toward the trip. "The more ads they sold the less they - or should I say, their parents - had to pay," said Coach John Bille.

The dance was a financial success, thanks in part to Club California, which donated its facilities. The "10-10" raffle, in which club members received donations of $2 a week for 10 weeks from their relatives and friends, proved a successful venture.

The trip began Feb. 28, when 41 players, family and coaches boarded a bus from Braintree for the JFK Airport in New York.

Two players and six parents passed up the bus ride and took the shuttle to New York, planning to meet the team. That proved a big mistake. Forced to circle the airport for six hours due to weather conditions and Flight 9-2 which slid off the runway, they had to take a later flight to Sweden.

Four Quincy girls, Graham, Toland, Midge Lawlor and Jill Rennie, were named to the league all-star team.

The Quincy Mite A team, sponsored by DAV Post 79, continued its winning ways with a 16-0 runaway over Westwood.

Steve Bartkus had a hat trick as did Jeff Craig. Jim Cipriano, Jamie Schatzl and Joe Carinci scored two goals apiece and Steve Miller, Matt McGowan, Brian Sullivan and David Manning one each. Miller had five assists, Cipriano, McGowan and Schatzl two apiece and Carinci and Bartkus one each.

Quincy also defeated Medfield, 10-7, with Schatzl and Cipriano having hat tricks. Danny Morrell two goals and Andrew Vermette and Miller one each. Miller had four assists, Cipriano three, Kevin Flaherty, Schatzl and McGowan two apiece and Mark Smith, David Manning and Morrell one each.

McGowan and Cipriano scored the goals in a 2-0 win over Parkway and Craig had an assist.

The Mite A's lost to Belmont, 6-3, with Bartkus scoring all three goals, including a penalty shot. Scott Joyce had the only assist.

Koch Club Basketball Season Closes With Awards Night

The Koch Club of Quincy will close out its 35th basketball season Thursday, March 29, at the Atlantic Middle School gymnasium with an Awards and Parents Night at 7 p.m.

Seventy participants of the program who have attended at least half of the scheduled weekly sessions will be awarded a trophy in recognition of their dependability and reliability to their league and teammates.

The program is under the direction of Simone Joanne Koch assisted by Edward Leary, Tommy Doves, Bob Austin, Tim Healy, George Woodman, Joe Nelson and Mike Bowes.

Robert Woods has been treasurer of the program for the past 10 years.

The Koch Club basketball program started in 1949 at the original North Quincy High School and during the past three and a half decades has conducted programs at the Broad Meadows Middle School for 17 years, at Montclair School for 13 years and for several years at the Atherton Hough School in Houghts Neck.

The Koch Club, in conjunction with its youth basketball program, sponsored an outstanding semi-pro basketball team in the 1950's and 1960's that included local high school and college basketball players. In 1959, the Koch Club won the Mass. Semi-Pro Basketball Tourney in Brockton and the Gold Medal Semi-Pro Tourney in South Boston where it defeated the South Boston Boys Club for the championship, a team led by Ray Flynn, now mayor of Boston.

YMCA Aquathon - Runathon Starts March 31

The South Shore YMCA will hold its annual Aquathon/Runathon Saturday, March 31, from 9 a.m. - 9 p.m. and Sunday, April 1, from 7 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Purpose of the Aquathon/Runathon is to raise money for camperships for needy youngsters in the South Shore area, world service, and for ongoing youth programs at the YMCA. The public is invited to participate in this worthwhile event by receiving sponsors and then swimming or running on March 31 or April 1.

Youngsters, three to 12 years old, will have an opportunity to "earn their way" to summer camp by collecting $50 or more. Fifty percent of the total amount collected will be credited toward the youngsters' camp experience.

For further information contact the YMCA at 479-8500.

Dick Wilson Memorial All Star Game March 31

The Dick Wilson Memorial Scholarship Fund All-Star hockey game will be played Saturday, March 31, at 7:45 p.m. at the Quincy Youth Arena.

The Quincy Executive League All-Stars (over 30) will face off against the Quincy Senior League stars (under 30). Tickets are $5.

Proceeds will go to the scholarship fund in memory of Dick Wilson, an Executive League goalie who died suddenly last year.

Pee Wee B's Roll On

Quincy's state champion Pee Wee B's continued to run rough shod through the Greater Boston League with a convincing 7-0 victory over Westwood.

Brian Taylor scored four goals as Quincy remained unbeaten with the season winding down. Joe Fasano, Matt Buccella and Bob Kane had the other goals. Kiely Morris and Brian Zimmerman each had two assists and Mike Baylis, Fasano and Kane one each.

Hickey Resigns As Police Counsel

Mayor Francis X. McCauley said Tuesday that Atty. William E. Hickey has resigned as legal counsel to the Quincy Police Department.

Hickey cited the growing demands of his private practice as the reason for leaving the $23,501 a year post he had held since January, 1982.

The job is considered to be parttime since members of the City Solicitor's office are permitted to practice law on their own when not on city business.

McCauley said Hickey will remain in the post until a successor is chosen.

He has no one in mind, said the Mayor, adding the applicants for the post should send resumes to the office of City Solicitor Dean Nicastro.

Public Works Now Has Deputy Commissioner

The City Council Monday night gave Public Works Commissioner Paul Anderson the assistant he says he needs.

Councillors deleted the post of administrative assistant in the DPW and added the job of deputy commissioner. The position was and will continue to be held by David Colton.

"When I am not available," Anderson told the Council, "it is not clear who is in charge.

"I am the only one in the department who is non-union, which makes it hard to deal with management-labor problems."

The administrative assistant was in the union, the deputy commissioner is not.

The old job paid $20,593; the deputy's post will pay $22,446, including the raise proposed by Mayor Francis X. McCauley, which is currently in the Council's Ordinance Committee.

Board Approves New Location Of Fitzgerald Restaurant

The License Board approved an amended description of the Edmond Fitzgerald restaurant, 542 East Squantum St., at its meeting Tuesday.

The restaurant is now located at a permanent mooring about 150 ft. from the original dock, according to Atty. Dennis Harrington.

Granted a license in May, 1983, owners of the restaurant intend to expand the business in the very near future, Harrington said.

The amended location was approved subject to approval of the Fire Chief and Building Inspector.

Program To Begin March 27 For Children Of Alcoholics

A nine week program designed to meet the special needs of children of alcoholic parents will be offered at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Center, from March 27-May 22.

The program was developed by Kathleen Flaherty, a family alcoholism counselor.

Offered at no cost to children aged six to 10, the program in its third year, is sponsored by the South Shore Council on Alcoholism and the South Shore Alcohol Prevention and Education Committee.

Sessions will be held from 3:15-4:45 Tuesdays.

Children enrolled in this program will attend the first eight sessions on their own. Their parents will be invited to join them for the final session.

Parents interested in enrolling their children may call Delores Bennett at 472-6027.

Pool Trip March 30

The Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St., is planning a bus trip to the Lincoln Hancock Pool for youngsters age 8-15 who can swim Friday, March 30.

The bus will leave at 6:30 p.m. for a 7-8 p.m. swim. It will return by 8:30 p.m.

Pre-registration is necessary. Call Mrs. Pat Ridden at 471-8251 to sign up. There is a small fee.

$65,000 For QJC Hits Council Snag

The City Council moved Monday night possibly to divert $65,000 in state aid from Quincy Junior College to the Quincy public schools.

The proposal that the funding go to QJC was made by Mayor Francis X. McCauley.

"There is nothing in the general laws of Massachusetts that says the mayor or the City Council must appropriate anything for Quincy Junior College," said Councillor John J. Lydon Jr.

Lydon had delayed the appropriation order one week by objecting to it at the March 12 meeting.

Councillor Joanne Condon wanted to know what use the Junior College was going to make of the money.

"If it is going into the bank for the endowment fund, perhaps the regular school system could find a better use for it," she said.

The Council sent the order to the Finance Committee for consideration.

Board Grants License For Lodging House

A lodging house license for 180 Monroe Road, Quincy Center was granted to two Weymouth residents at Tuesday's License Board meeting.

At the suggestion of board members last week, the joint inspection team had visited the premises.

Lt. Robert Kelley of the Quincy Fire Department reported no violations.

Richard MacKenzie of the Building Department recommended that no more than one room be rented on the third floor until a second means of egress is provided.

Bertrand LaPointe of the Health Department found that the foundation needs pointing, which can be done when the weather is warmer.

Applicants Robert Rosati of 17 Broad St., and Christiane G. Stadelmaier of 59 Island View Road, both in Weymouth, agreed with the inspection team's findings.

The license was granted for 13 rooms. A 14th room must be approved by the Building Inspector.

'The Odyssey' At ENC

A creative dramatic adaptation of the classic, Homer's "The Odyssey", will be presented at the Edith F. Cove Fine Arts Center on the campus of Eastern Nazarene College in Quincy, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 22-24.

In this experimental version, the length of the original story has been trimmed into a past-paced, action-oriented play.

"The Odyssey" is the story of the Greek warrior, Odysseus, who encounters fantastic adventures and magical distractions.

It is presented by the ENC Communication Arts Department under the direction and design of James P. Byrne.

Producer is Ronda Rice Windler, who has directed and produced such critically acclaimed performances as "Pirates of Penzance".

"Pacific Overtures", and "Annie".

Byrne has adapted the script himself and has already directed the show at Cornell University this past fall where it received strong critical acclaim.

To present the travels of Odysseus, ruler of Ithica, Byrne utilizes the techniques of Greek theatre, storytelling improvisation, and mime.

The majority of the production style is based on Greek movement patterns and drawings found on Greek vases and urns. Primary research in Greek style and form was completed by most of the actors for this production at the British Museum in London this past January.

Technically, the production holds some surprises in set design and lighting, especially in the depiction of the Greek gods, Athena, Poseidon, Zeus, Hermes, and Helios.

South Shore area students will be exposed to "The Odyssey" in a special educational matinee Friday, March 23 at 10 a.m.

The production will be taped and produced by Quincy Cablesystems for airing later this season.

"The Odyssey" will be performed at 7 p.m. Tickets are available weekdays from 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. at the Cove Fine Arts Center box office.

For more information, the box office may be contacted at 773-6350, ext. 262.

TOM SELLECK EXCLUSIVE!

(Part Two)

HONOLULU — Let's go one-on-one with Tom Selleck.

In this second installment of my exclusive interview with the star of CBS-TV's blockbuster hit series, "Magnum P.I.," we'll take a closer look at the guy who currently sits on top of the world of entertainment.

As we sat in his very unpretentious office on the CBS backlot, a question I'm often asked was quickly answered. Is Tom Selleck as nice in person as he appears on the screen? Yes, this guy's for real. We're not dealing with a pampered Hollywood prima donna. We're talking about a man who works hard at his craft, is proud of his results, and has somehow managed to keep himself, his life, and his current superstar status in a proper perspective.

"In the entire scheme of things, I'm not really that important," Selleck states as he brings the needs of mankind into a very quick focus. "Plumbing ... that's important," he adds in a very realistic manner. "Being patronized; and being lied to, really push my button," he replied to my question of what makes him mad. "I'm not talking about white lies, almost everyone has told those to keep from hurting someone's feelings."

I'm talking about the breaking your word kind of lie. To me, if you shake hands with somebody and say you are going to do something, then that's what you should do."

As we discussed John Lennon's death, thoughts regarding his own mortality serve as testimony to Tom Selleck's very positive outlook on life. "I choose not to live my life dwelling on things like that," he voices in a very serious tone. "What good would it have done John Lennon if he had sat around for twenty years worrying about things like that? That doesn't mean you're not aware, but I'm not going to surround myself with an entourage of bodyguards ... basically I don't have a problem with the public. It must be something about the character of Magnum that doesn't antagonize people."

Is it hard for someone with such a recognizable face to lead a regular life? "Sure it's difficult, but I refuse to lock myself up. I still go out, but it takes a little more planning than it used to," he exclaims with his famous falsetto laugh. "I try to go to restaurants where the staff reminds people that it's rude to interrupt one's dinner for an autograph. I find it hard to refuse people, and I don't like to have them mad at me, but I do believe there are times when it's rude for people to interrupt; one of those times is when you are eating."

His idea of a perfect day: "Wake up without an alarm, sit alone and read an entire Sunday newspaper ... play volleyball ... pull weeds in the garden ... work out at the gym, go to a movie, and go home and go to sleep." Better yet he adds, "With my schedule, just doing nothing would make for a very lovely day."

Yes, Tom Selleck's for real. From his warm handshake of welcome, to his offer of sharing a beer, this guy has renewed my faith in the star system. Just as he physically works thousands of miles from Hollywood, he has managed to keep his mental frame and attitude of mind as many miles from the land of shock and jive.

At a time when America so desperately needs heroes, along comes Tom Selleck ... just in the nick of time.

Got a question for your favorite star? I'll track 'em down for you. Send questions and comments to James S. Leach c/o THE VIDEO CONNECTION, 22761 Pacific Coast Hwy., Malibu, Calif 90265.

Golden Says It's Time 'To Get Tough On Crime'

Richard D. Golden, a candidate for the democratic nomination for state senator, says he supports the prison sentencing reform initiatives presented last week by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis.

"When I announced my candidacy for state senator I said I support minimum mandatory sentencing and I continue to support capital punishment," he told a gathering at the home of Lucy Roche, 30 Ellington Rd., Wollaston.

"I feel it very important that the Commonwealth's criminal sentencing policies ensure adequate protection for our citizens from violent crime and uniform sentencing is considerably different than my opponent, especially on capital punishment and reform of our criminal sentencing practices."

Golden said he was referring to Sen. Paul D. Harold's votes against capital punishment and mandatory sentencing for certain dangerous weapons in earlier Senate sessions.

"I'm pleased to see the governor taking a tougher stand on criminal punishments. I believe this represents a radical departure from his previous administration and is more in line with the views of this district, the views I wish to represent in the legislature," he said.

Golden acknowledged that new jail facilities would be needed to house more inmates, particularly in Norfolk County, where one wing of the county jail in Dedham must be closed June 30 by court order.

"The temporary minimum security jail proposed for, among others, Quincy and Braintree, highlights the inability of current facilities to keep pace with sentencing as it already exists," he said.

"I am firmly opposed to both these sites as alternatives."

"It is time to stop treating the symptoms of our antiquated, overburdened correctional system and begin moving toward a cure. This means building a new correctional facility, a measure I support 100 per cent. It is essential our state government provide this basic human service."

"When the people elect a state senator," he added, "they are also sending a message. One message I will deliver is 'it's time to get tough on crime.'"

$1.5 Million Available For Mobility Assistance

Transportation Secretary Frederick P. Salvucci will administer $1.5 million in elderly and handicapped transportation grants this year under the Mobility Assistance Program.

The program, financed by a combination of state and federal money, provides 80 per cent funding for the purchase of specially equipped vehicles. This is matched by 20 per cent funding from the applicant.

"In the past," said Rep. Michael W. Morrissey,

"only private non-profit organizations were eligible to receive grants."

"Recently, the state legislature changed the requirements so that public agencies such as the Quincy Council on Aging would be eligible to apply for funding."

Since the State Department of Transportation began administering the program nine years ago, 88 community organizations have received grants allowing them to purchase almost 300 specially equipped vehicles.

Past recipients have included home care corporations, community action programs and non-profit transportation agencies.

Public and private non-profit organizations may obtain more information on the Mobility Assistance Program by contacting Russell Thatcher at 973-7006.

Preliminary applications for funding must be submitted by Monday, March 26.

Seniors May Practice For Olympics At Beechwood

In order to assist people 50 and over who plan to compete in the Senior Olympic Games, June 7 through 10, practice facilities have been made available at the Beechwood Community Life Center, 225 Fennel St., starting Friday.

Don Strong, Chairman of the Planning Task Force, stresses that older persons who may have been less active during the winter should check with their doctors and should get into shape before competition.

Every Friday will be practice day with stretching and conditioning exercises at 10:15 a.m. directed by Barbara Winters, physical educator.

Physical education personnel will be available during the day to help those wishing instruction or assistance. There will be no charge for these services. People may come or leave at any time.

Those who want to practice on other days will be able to use the facilities weekdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and from 9 a.m. to 12 noon on Saturdays.

Facilities available at the Beechwood Center include horseshoe pits, a sand jumping pit, basketball court, shotput and javelin, and a two-mile track for running or walking, entirely off the highway. Call 471-5712 for more information.

Johnston Pledges Accessibility In Ward I

Robert L. Johnston, a candidate for the City Council from Ward 1, has reaffirmed his pledge to "make government accessible and responsive to every resident of Ward 1."

Johnston told a gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Mitchell, 1344 Quincy Shore Drive, that the key campaign issues are the cleanup of Quincy Bay, preservation of open space and opportunities for youth.

He said he vigorously opposes a proposed ordinance change that would permit 50-foot roads to pass through areas zoned as open space.

He particularly stressed the need to preserve the existing marshland that enhances the beauty of Ward 1.

Johnston introduced Peter Ryan, 93 Rock Island Rd., and Alicia Coletti, 165 Samoset Ave., co-chairmen of his campaign and announced that David Kreuz, 25 Samoset Ave., will serve as Merrymount precinct captain.

MOVE IN BEFORE CLOSE

QUESTION: Is there any way we can move into a house we plan to buy prior to the date of closing?

ANSWER: The purchase and sale contract should be definite about when possession of the premises is to be delivered to the buyer. In most cases, it will be concurrent with the closing. However, the contract can make provisions for such handling. Normally there would be a specific date by which, in any event, the seller must deliver possession, and there can be arrangements expressed in the contract whereby the buyer pays rent to the seller for the time he occupies the premises prior to the title being transferred. Consult your attorney.

ARRANGEMENTS CAN BE MADE TO MOVE INTO HOME BEFORE CLOSING DATE.

Ward I Election Bill In Hands Of House

A home rule petition that would change the Quincy city charter to permit the selection of a city councillor from Ward I by a special election was on the calendar to be taken up by the House yesterday (Wednesday).

The State Senate passed the petition Monday. "If it passes and the governor signs it this week," said Sen Paul D. Harold, "it is still difficult to say when a special election could be held within the parameters of state election law.

"I would guess that a primary could be held in May and the general election in June."

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell is shepherding the petition in the House where Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli, who is opposed to it, has promised not to fight against it on the floor.

Currently, the city charter specifies that vacancies in the City Council shall be filled by vote of the eight remaining councillors.

The Ward I seat has been vacant since January when L. J. Kelly resigned to take a manager's job with the Housing Authority.

Chief Stresses Liquor License Responsibility

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Police Chief Francis Finn continued to stress the responsibility of those granted one day all alcoholic licenses at Tuesday morning's License Board meeting.

"You better make darn sure no one overindulges," Finn told the applicants.

If an auto accident results from someone driving under the influence of alcohol after attending the function, a suit can be brought against the license holder, Finn said.

"Whoever serves is in real trouble if anything happens," said Finn.

Those granted one day all alcoholic licenses Tuesday were:

- Sacred Heart PTO for a spring dance Saturday, April 28, 8 p.m. to midnight in the school auditorium.

- Barbara Lemane of South Boston for a wedding reception Saturday, May 5, 7 p.m. to midnight at North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall.

- Houghs Neck Women's Recreational Association for a dance Saturday, April 28, 8 p.m. to midnight at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall.

- Stephen C. Moran for a benefit Saturday, April 7, 8:45 p.m. to midnight at North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall.

- Sons of Lebanon Club for an installation dinner dance Saturday, March 24, 6:30 p.m. to midnight at the club home, Lebanon St.

- A request from Patricia A. Matthews for a one day all alcoholic license for an anniversary party Oct. 13, 7 p.m. to midnight at North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall was continued when the applicant did not attend the meeting.

Still Not So Bad

MOTORISTS FOUND FEW problems going to Boston Monday as this photo looking toward East Milton indicates. It was taken at 7 a.m.

DOWN AT SQUANTUM, it was all relaxation at 7:30 a.m. as the two new commuter boats the Independence and Liberty went into service at the Boston Harbor Marina. Commuters Gayle Walsh, Carolee Clifford and Debby Bergeron of Quincy chat with cabin attendant Joanna Hayes before departure for Boston aboard The Liberty.

AND THINGS WEREN'T bad at the Quincy Center MBTA station at 8:15 a.m. There were more commuters than usual but there were more trains to accommodate them.

Gillis To Introduce Health Club Ordinance

City Clerk John Gillis plans to introduce an ordinance at the City Council meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. to protect patrons of health clubs.

The ordinance refers to physical fitness parlors, salons or health clubs, and states:

"No person or persons shall conduct an establishment to teach paid clients a physical fitness course without a license from the Health Department.

"No person or persons shall receive a license for the above establishment without a performance bond in the amount of $50,000 filed with the City Clerk -- bond shall remain in effect for one year after business had been discontinued."

"I'm against the fly-by-night outfits that go out of business," said Gillis.

McCauley Ask's Quick Action

Classification Plan Fate Up To Council

By JOHN NOONAN

The fate of Mayor Francis McCauley's classification plan is now in the hands of the City Council.

Business leaders who appeared at the council's public hearing Monday night looked on it as a plan of "moderation."

And there was no outward protest from homeowners.

McCauley Tuesday urged the City Council to act swiftly on his plan which would give residential property a $21.95 tax rate and commercial and industrial property a rate of $32.50.

About 60 interested property owners -- mostly business -- who attended heard the Mayor explain in considerable detail his proposal which some city officials and property owners are calling a middle of the road or moderate approach towards a fair or equitable rate.

There was no opposition expressed by homeowners.

Under the Mayor's proposal the owner of a single family home, valued at $56,000 under 100 percent valuation would pay a tax bill of $1,242 for 1984. That amount is $335 less than fiscal year 1981 and $91 more than fiscal 1983.

McCauley further proposed, commercial or industrial property valued at $100,000

At least 10 Face Arrest

'Many' Indictments In Sailors' Beating

"Many" indictments have been returned by a Norfolk County grand jury in the attack on five sailors outside a Houghs Neck bar and arrests are imminent reliable sources told The Quincy Sun Tuesday night.

The indictments involve at least 10 people and may include civil rights violations, according to the sources.

Three of the sailors beaten outside the Sea St. bar Feb. 17 are black and one Hispanic. The other is white.

The sailors are assigned to the USS Fulton, a submarine tender undergoing repairs at the General Dynamics Quincy shipyard.

According to police, the attack took place after a confrontation in Louis Cafe between several bar patrons and the sailors.

The sailors said they left but were followed outside and punched as they tried to get into their car.

According to police, the sailors turned the wrong way when they pulled out to the parking lot and headed deeper into Houghs Neck.

When they turned around, the car was blocked by 15 to 20 young men who hurled bricks, rocks and cans at the car according to witnesses interviewed by police.

Police said a number of Houghs Neck residents came to the aid of the sailors after their car went out of control and hit a parked vehicle.

Charter Change Petition In Third Reading

The city home rule petition to allow a special election to fill the vacant Ward One council seat is still in its third reading in the House of Representatives.

With assistance from Senator Paul Harold the petition won Senate approval last week and was sent to the House for further action. A minor technical snag held the bill in the House last Monday pending clarification of a chapter reference contained in the approving legislation.

Reps. Thomas Brownell and Michael Morrissey have both indicated they will follow the bill through the various stages of enactment and are hopeful that an election will be held as soon as permissible.

Rep. Robert Cerasoli who initially said he would oppose the bill in the House said this week he would not take any action to defeat its passage.

P & G Reportedly Plans Expansion At Quincy Plant

Procter & Gamble reportedly is considering expanding its Quincy Point plant.

The Quincy Sun was unsuccessful in attempts to contact a spokesman for the company for verification at press-time Tuesday night.

Mayor Francis McCauley and Planning Director

James Lydon said they had not heard the reports.

But sources told The Sun Procter & Gamble does have such plans and will soon make them public.

175 Cartons Of Cigarettes

Stolen In Break

Dacey Brothers, 305 Quincy Ave., reported to police that 175 cartons of assorted cigarettes were stolen by a thief who entered through a side window.

A passerby reported spotting a black male jump out of the window at the store, and leave the scene in a black van early Monday.

Police said the man gained access to the store by throwing a large rock through the window.

Injured As Car

John D. Carroll of 129 Willard St., Quincy, was treated at Quincy City Hospital and released after he lost control of his car and hit a telephone pole and fence in Wollaston.

Hits Utility Pole

Carroll told police his car damaged a fence owned by Gertrude Allen, 59 Sims Rd., Sunday, after he lost control while making a turn.

A telephone pole was cut in half, Carroll said.

Condon Concerned

New McDonald's Planned For North Quincy

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Owners of McDonald's in Quincy have announced plans for a new, 100-seat restaurant with two drive-up windows in North Quincy.

But Ward Councillor Joanne Condon is concerned the restaurant might create traffic and safety problems.

According to Steve Gillig who operates McDonald's on Southern Artery, the new restaurant at 275-295 Hancock St., would occupy three quarters of the ground floor of the Otis Elevator Building.

Parking for about 42 cars would be provided at the nearby Hancock Monument site.

The restaurant would have seating for about 100 customers, said Gillig, and equipment would be state-of-the-art.

Once drive-thru customers place their order at the speaker, they can proceed to the first window where they pay for the order, and the second window where they pick up their food.

Gillig said the drive-thru system at the North Quincy restaurant would more than double the speed of transactions and allow up to 12 cars to wait in line before they would interfere with parking for other customers.

Gillig, who with his father John Gillig of Duxbury also owns a McDonald's in North Weymouth, said there is no playground planned for North Quincy as there is at the Southern Artery restaurant.

"Although families will certainly be welcome in North Quincy," said Gillig, "we feel it is more of a business area."

"We anticipate serving the working public, for example employees of State St. South."

Although North Quincy High School is near the proposed restaurant, Gillig said he doesn't really want to encourage students to eat there.

"They scare away other business," said Gillig, "adults don't want to eat in a high school cafeteria."

Gillig said a traffic study has been done, and there don't seem to be any problems with the proposal.

President of the Quincy

Center Business and Professional Association, Gillig said he hopes to open the restaurant by the end of the summer, but first permits have to be obtained.

Gillig is scheduled to appear before the License Board Tuesday, April 17, but Mrs. Condon has requested that the board postpone the hearing until she has had an opportunity to hold a neighborhood meeting.

Mrs. Condon stated that among her concerns are the close proximity to North Quincy High School and the North Quincy Fire Station and that traffic would be created because of its location on a main route in and out of the city.

Most importantly, said Mrs. Condon, she is concerned for the public safety of all.

Mrs. Condon has scheduled a meeting of area residents Wednesday, April 4, at 8 p.m. at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 12 Hunt St., to discuss the proposal.

The meeting will afford residents an opportunity to express their views and submit their suggestions and recommendations on this matter, Mrs. Condon said.

Killed In Crash Funeral Today For 3 Members Of Quincy Family

By KATHY McDERMOTT

A funeral Mass for three members of a Merrymount family who were killed Sunday night in a head-on car crash on Rte. 28, Randolph, will be held today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. in Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Sea St.

Joseph F. Lawton Jr., 40, his wife, Clair R. (Byron) Lawton, 39, and their 12-year-old son, Joseph F. Lawton III, were returning home after eating dinner with Mrs. Lawton's mother, Clara Byron, in Brockton.

They had just dropped Mrs. Byron off at her home and were driving on Route 28, North Montello St., about 10:15 p.m. when their car was struck by an auto driven by Ronald L. Ferland, 42, a three-day resident of 581 South Main St., Randolph.

Police said Ferland lost control of his car, swerved into Lawton's lane and hit the car head-on. Both cars were demolished.

Ferland sustained head and leg injuries and has been transferred from the intensive care unit to a private room at Cardinal Cushing Hospital in Brockton. He was unable to be arraigned in court because of his condition. A police guard was withdrawn after he posted bail.

Ferland has been charged with drunk driving, driving to endanger, driving without a license and three counts of vehicular homicide. A fourth count of vehicular homicide may be added if an autopsy on Mrs. Lawton shows that she was pregnant, police said.

Mr. Lawton and his son were dead on arrival at Brockton Hospital. Mrs. Lawton was taken to Cardinal Cushing Hospital and was pronounced dead on arrival.

Mr. Lawton was a printer for United Lithographics in Somerville, and had been promoted to supervisor last year. Mrs. Lawton was a secretary at Beth Israel Hospital in Boston and had almost completed her first year of nursing school at Laboure School of Nursing, Dorchester. Joseph was a seventh grade student at Broad Meadows Middle School.

The Lawtons and Mrs. Byron were celebrating Joseph's 13th birthday which was coming up April 1. He had also recently scored his first goal in Quincy Junior Hockey after three years in the league.

The Lawtons, who moved to Quincy six years ago from Dorchester, were described by relatives, neighbors, friends and co-workers as a close family who liked to do things together.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawton leave two teenage daughters, Theresa M. Lawton, 18, and Susan E. Lawton, 16. Both students at Quincy High School, they were too upset to talk about the accident.

Mr. Lawton is survived by his mother, Mary A. (Fitzgibbon) Lawton of Dorchester; and two sisters, Carol M. Reynolds of Dorchester and Claire A. Alba of Milton.

Mrs. Lawton is survived by her mother, Clara (Beauclair) Byron, 133

At Marina Bay

O'Connell Brothers Plan Vietnam Veterans Memorial

Peter and William O'Connell, partners in OBC, Inc. and developers of Marina Bay, believe that Quincy veterans who served in the Vietnam War deserve permanent recognition which has been given to fighting men of other wars.

With the help of other community members, the O'Connell brothers will be making this thought a reality. They have organized the dedication of a memorial scheduled to be held Sept. 15 on the historic site of Marina Bay.

"I think it's a great idea," said Mayor Francis X. McCauley. "The O'Connell's should be commended. They have always taken time out to do something for the city in which they were born and raised and we appreciate that."

McCauley added that the Marina Bay area was the site of a naval air base during World War II and is "an appropriate and beautiful setting for the memorial." He noted that Quincy veterans of World War I, II and the Korean War have been honored with memorials.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, said the memorial is an appropriate and beautiful gesture on the part of the O'Connell brothers.

"They continue to show their deep concern for the City of Quincy," he said.

"The Vietnam veterans have not been given the proper recognition they merit," said William E. Kelley of Bank of New England-Hancock. "It's a great idea on the part of the O'Connell brothers. I hope the community will embrace the concept and support it."

Approximately 1600 Quincy boys served in the Vietnam War and about 100 were killed in action. There are also two prisoners of war on record. The names of all who served in the war will be incorporated into the monument design.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE members for the Quincy Vietnam Memorial met recently and viewed an artist rendering of the monument. Among them were Walter Hannon of Marina Bay, Peter O'Connell of O.B.C., Inc. and Capt. Richard Stratton of the U.S. Navy and veteran of the Vietnam War. Capt. Stratton is currently Director of the Naval Academy Preparatory School, Newport, R.I.

Michael G. Ross of G.E. Ross Associates, Braintree, is the architect for the memorial. The veterans list which the O'Connell brothers are using to inscribe names on the monument are listed on a plaque which hangs at the entrance to the new Quincy City Hall. They are interested in knowing of any names which do not appear on that list.

Cost of the memorial and related festivities will be covered by Marina Bay. There will not be any formal fundraising efforts, but anyone interested in participating in the project in the form of contributions may do so by donating to the Quincy Veterans Memorial Fund c/o Bank of New England-Hancock, 1495 Hancock St., Quincy.

Advisory committee members for the memorial are: Taylor Ahern; William B. Austin; South Shore Bank; Henry Bosworth; Quincy Sun; Ray Cline, Alray Optical Co.; John Comer, Quincy Housing Authority; Councilor Joanne Condon; Larry

At last! A Home Mortgage with no unpleasant surprises.

Colonial Federal's new
Fixed Payment Adjustable
Rate Mortgage
is now available.

The adjustable interest rate home mortgages offered by most banks today have one major drawback. Because the interest rates vary, your monthly mortgage payments can vary. You can go up and they can go down. You have no way of knowing what your payments will be in the future. That's enough to discourage you from buying a new home.

Colonial Federal doesn't believe that mortgage payments should act like elevators. So, to make it easier for you to finance your new home, we've designed a brand new adjustable rate mortgage which offers you guaranteed fixed monthly payments for the first ten years. After this, the mortgage may be continued, modified or paid off without penalty.

No unpleasant surprises means that you can borrow and budget with confidence, knowing that your payments are unconditionally guaranteed to remain the same for ten years. And, that's a long time to have peace of mind.

This new mortgage is available only from Colonial Federal Savings Bank. It's just one more example of our continuing dedication to giving our customers the very best in personal banking services.

For more information, visit one of our convenient offices today or call 617 471-0750.

Quincy Quiz

Two winners in the Quincy Quiz this week.

Although Susan Cristoforo of 97 Doane St., and Patty Flaherty of 265 Belmont St., did not come up with the answers on the first question that we were looking for, their answers were still correct.

The question was: What did William W. Jenness, Charles J. Gabriel and James I. Holford have in common?

The answer we had in mind: They were all unsuccessful candidates for Congress against James A.
Burke.

Their answer, which is also correct: They were Republican politicians.

So a Quincy Sun T-shirt to Susan and Patty.

The first two readers, one a mail subscriber, to submit to the Sun office in writing the correct answers to the week's five questions win T-shirts. The next two win bumper stickers.

Only one member of a household is eligible to compete in any one week and no one is eligible to win more than three T-shirts.

Who'll Get Housing Job?

The death of John (Bud) Kelliher has created another Quincy Housing Authority vacancy.

And, a lot of speculation as to who will be named to fill it.

The job is Leased Housing Administrator and pays between $35,000 and $36,000. Main duty is to oversee public subsidized housing in private facilities.

A number of names are being mentioned as possible appointees as speculation begins to build. Among them:
Norfolk County Commissioner George McDonald,
Peter Kenney, Mayor Francis McCauley's executive secretary; Assessor James Papile, former City Councillor John Quinn and Councillor Joseph LaRaia.

The appointment will be made by the Housing Board which now has a new three-member majority bloc with the return of Rosemary Wahlberg.

She, Rev. John McMahon and union leader Carmine D'Olimpio comprise what some people are calling a "McCauley Board".

They see the three more apt to line up politically and philosophically with Mayor Francis McCauley.

On the other side and now in the minority with the departure of Ralph Maher are former Councillor Edward Graham and Frank Terranova. They were known as a "Tobin Board", lining up with former Mayor Arthur Tobin.

Now the McMahon-D'Olimpio-Wahlberg combine holds the trump cards.

The most intriguing name among those being mentioned for the housing job is LaRaia. He reportedly has expressed "some" interest but has shown no outward signs that he is seeking the job. For that matter there hasn't been much visible motion on the part of any of the names mentioned.

But if LaRaia wanted the job he probably could land it. Either on his own or with the help of McCauley. If McCauley were to send a message to the majority bloc on the Housing Board it certainly wouldn't hurt.

It would be good political insurance for McCauley.
It would be one way of getting LaRaia out of his hair as a potential mayoral challenger.

McCauley also could help Kenney get the job — if the latter was really interested in it.

Papile would have a shot at it too but the question is whether or not D'Olimpio would have to abstain from voting. He and Papile are related. There could be a conflict of interest raised.

If D'Olimpio had to abstain it could result in a Mexican standoff with Graham and Terranova on one side and Fr. McMahon and Mrs. Wahlberg on the other.

There's more intrigue if LaRaia got the job.
Because the post is federally funded, he would have to obtain a waiver to allow him to accept the post without waiting a year. Similar to former Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly who left the council to become a Quincy Housing Authority project manager.

Would it mean another special election to fill La Raia's Council at-large seat?

Or, if the appointment was not made until a year has gone by on LaRaia's term, would Ron Iacobucci be named to fill the council vacancy? He was the only challenger in the at-large race last year and, as such, is also the runner-up.

He would seem to be the logical one to replace LaRaia if the City Council filled the vacancy.

Providing of course LaRaia is really interested in the housing post and got it.

Never a dull moment on the political front. If nothing else, there's always speculation simmering.

JAMES MC INIYRE, throughout his career and life, was a firm believer that every vote cast in an election counted and that everyone should exercise the right to vote.

Shortly before he entered the hospital where he died from a massive heart attack after undergoing major surgery, he went to City Hall for an absentee ballot.

It was to be his last election. But ill, though he was, he got out to vote.

JIM did a lot of favors for a lot of people. Even on the very day he entered the hospital.

A friend called him not knowing he was ill and asked him if he could do her son a favor.

"Sure," he replied.

He was about to leave for the hospital but stopped to write a letter to a college in behalf of the woman's son.
And had a copy of it made to send to her.

The copy arrived at her home on the same day as the news of Jim's death.

"I felt so sad," the woman said. "He was a wonderful person. Under the circumstances, imagine him stopping to take time out to help someone."

NICE NEWS DEPT.: Retired Quincy Police Detective James Mulloy is on the road to recovery at his home after suffering a serious heart attack in January that sent him to Jordan Hospital in Plymouth.

His wife, Laurie, says he received dozens of cards from Quincy friends.

"We would be so appreciative if you could insert a small 'thank you' in The Sun to all our friends in Quincy for their lovely cards and remembrances. There are so many we have no addresses for."

In case you would like to wish Jim well the address is:

Mayor Asks For Quick Action On Classification Plan

and taxed at 130 per cent of value for a tax rate of $32.50 would yield $3250 in tax revenues for fiscal 1984.

The City Council has the final word as to what the classification will be. The council also must approve the classification for each fiscal year.

A spokesman for the Progress Downtown Quincy group, Peter O'Connell, told the council, "Our ability to attract and keep business in Quincy and maintain a quality residential environment is in your hands."

O'Connell said he was wearing several hats appearing before the council. He is a large business and property owner in the city, he is an executive of the O'Connell Construction and Development Company, and owns a home on Hatherly Rd., in addition he is a large residential and commercial property taxpayer.

O'Connell said that with classification, Quincy must make a decision. It can either move forward with its plans to build its business tax base or it can move forward with building its residential tax base.

"It will take a careful effort on the part of the administration and the City Council to establish a classification figure that permits both residential and business to co-exist," O'Connell said.

The Progress Downtown Quincy group has completed a study of the largest business taxpayers in Quincy to see what impacts of classification would be on different classes of property owners, O'Connell said.

He pointed out that the PDQ (Progress Downtown Quincy) figures mirrored the official findings of the figures submitted to the state revenue department.

"We have seen the shift, and we are concerned about the quality of life for the residents of Quincy," he said. "We have analyzed the official city position you have heard presented by the Mayor this evening," he said.

"I will be quite candid in saying that the classification rate should be less than the 130% proposed by the Mayor, but we do recognize and appreciate the amount of work that has gone into this problem."

"I am sure that the Mayor understands what the impact of his recommendation will have on the business community. We come here tonight urging moderation. We believe the Mayor's recommendations are in line with good business sense. We who own businesses and property in Quincy do not wish to fuel an attitude that has grown in many other cities and towns. That attitude has been to pit business owners against residential property taxpayers," O'Connell said.

Also speaking was William E. Kelly, President of the Bank of New England Hancock who said:

"I would just like to go on record as reinforcing Peter O'Connell's remarks suggesting that the Mayor's recommendation makes sense at least for this year, 1984, given the fact that revaluation has now taken place over many years of endeavor thereby causing major changes in the older properties.

Other speakers included John R. Herbert, former Quincy banker, and newspaper editor, and Ron Zooleck, South Shore Chamber of Commerce executive vice-president; and Siedman Beckwith of Beckwith Realtors.

There was no outright opposition to the Mayor's proposal expressed at the public hearing although some councilors voiced the opinion that the full impact of the plan will not be felt until the individual homeowner receives the 1984 tax bill.

Michael Cheney did express concern for a homeowners exemption provision which was not specifically recommended by the Mayor. Cheney said some senior citizens may be confronted with serious financial strain in paying the proposed tax increase without the homeowners exemption provision.

Elmer Fagerlund, chairman of the Board of Assessors, later said that the board has compassion and would not force any person, senior or otherwise, to leave a home for non-payment of taxes, under unusual circumstances.

While the City Council is not bound by an immediate deadline for approving the Mayor's proposed classification plan City Auditor Robert Foy pointed out that any undue delay in sending out the 1984 tax bills could result in the city borrowing money at rates of interest resulting in additional expenses to the city.

The new tax rate, whatever it may be, will go into effect on tax bills for the second half of fiscal 1984, which, it is hoped, will be in the mail sometime in April or May. Taxpayers then have 30 days from the mailing date of the bills to pay their taxes due.

Fagerlund also told the council in answer to queries that the Board of Assessors will be using computers in the near future once the classification and rates are established to compile all current tax property data.

McCauley expressed hope that the City Council will act favorably on the classification proposal at the next council meeting Monday night (April 2).

Once the plan is accepted by both the Council and the Mayor final tax rate figures are then presented to the state revenue department for approval. The city then prints the tax bills for mailing to property owners.

Auto Dealer's Body Found In Echo Lake

The battered body of Eugene P. Irwin Jr., 32, of Dorchester, the used car dealer who disappeared in December, 1947, with $10,000 in cash, was found in Echo Lake, a water-filled quarry hole deep in the woods on the Quincy-Braintree line.

The body, which was discovered by four boys on a hike in the woods, was wrapped in a blue-gray auto blanket encircled with rope and an electric iron cord. A 20-pound iron bar had been attached to the body in an apparent attempt to weight it down.

Quincy Police Chief John J. Avery conferred with his Braintree counterpart, Edward D. Cahill, on jurisdiction since the body was found floating in the water approximately on the boundary between the two communities.

The following day, a 26-year-old Quincy auto dealer was arrested on a charge of being an accessory before the fact of Irwin's murder. The man pleaded innocent to the charge and was ordered held without bail by Judge Kenneth L. Nash.

FOUR SUPERTANKERS

Sam Wakeman, manager of the Fore River shipyard, announced that the Bethlehem Steel Co. has been awarded a $25 million contract to build four 28,000-ton, 595-foot supertankers for the Texas Co., bigger than any existing tanker in the world.

Fore River officials said about half the contract price would go into shipyard payrolls enabling Fore River to retain its present personnel of almost 5,000 employees for several years. Construction was expected to start as soon as materials arrived.

ACCIDENT 'BELIEVE IT OR NOTS'

Since 1903 the accidental death rate for all Americans has dropped dramatically, except for persons between 15 and 24. Americans in that age group are about as likely to be killed in an accident today as they were 75 years ago.

A man is much more likely to die in an accident than a woman. Last year, accidents killed 73,209 men, but only 31,413 women.

The death rate from poisoning has more than doubled since 1957. In the 25 to 44 age group it has tripled; in the 15 to 24 age group the death rate has grown ninefold.

Three workers are killed in accidents off the job for every one killed in an accident on the job.

Each year about 200 persons drown in the bathtub.

Cold kills more persons than heat. In 1974 excessive heat killed 140 persons in the U.S., while 348 were killed by excessive cold.

Randolph Recommended For Satellite Jail

A recommended North Randolph site for a satellite county jail was to be presented to the Norfolk County Commissioners Wednesday for approval.

Consultants have recommended that the former Nike site in North Randolph be considered as a possible location for the jail.

Previously the Presidents

Golf Course in Montclair was mentioned as a possible site for the jail which would help to ease overcrowding at the House of Correction in Dedham.

Commissioner George B. McDonald of Quincy has confirmed that consultants have recommended the Randolph site.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

At home and abroad, Americans are being wrongly accused by some who depict our nation as being mired in a morass of materialism. We are being falsely charged with apathy and indifference to needs of others.

We wonder why these charges are so seldom refuted. The facts show thousands of people giving freely of their time and money to help other people. Actually, volunteerism's gross national product totals 50 billion dollars a year. Out of every 26 dollars in goods and services produced for profit, Americans donate a dollar in time and money to the less fortunate. There are at least 7 million voluntary groups with members ranging from 50 to 60 million people. This includes government projects, issue oriented groups and professional societies and their numbers show steady increase. Time and money are generously given to help mankind at home and abroad. These groups carry on a tradition started centuries ago by a GREAT HUMANITARIAN. The sheer numbers of people and money indicate a heartening awakening of an effort linked to religious principles...

Quincy Pastor Praises Anti-Abortion Pickets

Pickets from the Word of God Church who have been protesting abortions at Quincy City Hospital the past few weeks received strong support this week from the pulpit of St. John's Church.

Rev. William McCarthy, pastor of St. John's, spoke against abortion at weekend Masses and said that any group, such as the Word of God pickets, which serves to raise the conscience of society by protesting the taking of human life at a hospital or clinic is carrying on a worthwhile demonstration where there is a suspicion that abortions might be performed.

The Word of God Church group has been meeting the past three Sundays and have been picketing in an orderly fashion outside the Hospital Administration building from 2 to 5 p.m. A spokesman for the group plans to continue its protest each Sunday at the same time until the matter is resolved.

When speaking on the abortion issue Fr. McCarthy made reference to a statement made by Archbishop Bernard F. Law on the occasion of his installation as head of the Boston Archdiocese last Friday (March 23):

Archbishop Law said: "Nowhere is the shroud of darkness heavier in the contemporary world than in the sin of abortion. In the beginning God said let there be light. God made us to his own image and likeness. He knit us in our mother's womb. He calls us each by name, and he holds us in the palm of his hand."

"He loves us with an everlasting love which has been revealed in the redemption-saving death of Jesus Christ, his son, Jesus came that we might have life and have it more abundantly."

"Yet we deal out death through abortion to the most innocent of human beings. This is, I believe, the primordial darkness of our times; this is the cloud that shrouds the conscience of our world."

"Having made our peace with the death of the most innocent among us, it is small wonder that we are so ineffective in dealing with hunger, in dealing with injustice, in dealing with the threat of nuclear war," Abp. Law said.

Fr. McCarthy said that life is present at the time of conception and that the rights of the unborn are equal to the rights of the woman who is pregnant.

Fr. McCarthy also made reference to a statement of the Catholic Bishops issued February 13, 1973 which said:

"No right is more fundamental than the right to life itself and no innocent human life already begun can be deliberately terminated without offense to the author of all life. Thus we cannot accept the Supreme Court's decision which professes to legalize abortion."

Multi-Media Service At Squantum Church

Worshippers at the first service Sunday morning at the First Church of Squantum participated in a multi-media service.

The sermon was preached with a filmstrip, a comic book, a mini-lecture on Da Vinci's painting "The Last Supper", a new song and an art project in which each worshiper was asked to help create a poster on the theme of the Lord's Supper.

Music for the service was provided by guitarists Mary Ruth Scott and Andrew Ogilvie. The Youth Choir sang an anthem entitled "The Rebel" by Avery and Marsh which involved both speaking and singing.

Mary Ruth Scott also taught the congregation a new song called "Glory" that had first been introduced to this area by the Billy Graham Crusade a few years ago.

Text for the morning was "For as often as you eat this bread and drink the cup, you proclaim the Lord's death until he comes." (1 Corinthians 11:26)

Ushers at the first service were Karen Reister and David Scott. Robert Dixey was projectionist.

At the second service, church pastor, The Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin preached on the topic "Where Is Your Treasure?" The Chancel Choir sang Bach's "O Sacred Head Now Wounded" for the offertory.

Take care of your own funeral arrangements now. So your family won't have to later.

By not taking care of your own funeral in advance, you force someone close to you to do it for you.

For the person who accepts the responsibility, making arrangements at the time of need is likely to be filled with uncertainties. The uncertainty of not knowing what you really wanted. Your personal preferences. Perhaps, a favorite dress or suit. A special prayer. A clergyman with whom you are especially close. The uncertainties are endless.

The kindest thing you can do for your family is make your own funeral arrangements far in advance of need. That way everybody will know the kind of funeral you would like to have.

Johnston Hits MDC On Chlorination Building

Robert L. Johnston, candidate for the Ward 1 City Council seat has denounced the continuing efforts of the MDC to build a chlorination building at the Nut Island Treatment Facility.

"Such action is premature as the decision has not yet been made on the location of the primary or secondary treatment plants" Johnston said.

His campaign workers will be circulating petitions on this issue throughout the community.

Johnston presented his views at a recent campaign coffee at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Praetsch, 6 Homestead Ave.

Concern about pollution in Quincy Bay continues to be the primary concern among voters in Ward 1 according to Johnston. He said he will continue his efforts to work to resolve this problem.

Johnston responded to the concerns and questions of those in attendance and urged them to join with him in creating a clean and healthy environment in the city.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

THAT BEAUTIFUL LEVERAGE

QUESTION: What is meant by the word "leverage" when used in conjunction with investing in real estate?

ANSWER: Leverage arises because ALL of the income and ALL of the appreciation belongs to the property holder regardless of the amount of the loan. To illustrate, assume a $100,000 property was purchased for only $10,000 cash and a $90,000 mortgage loan. Five years later, the same property is sold for $150,000 (a 50% gain in value). After paying off the $90,000 mortgage, the investor would realize, not a 50% gain, but rather a 500% gain on his initial cash investment because he only invested $10,000 for the property. That's leverage!

LEVERAGE is the key to multiplying profits from real estate.

60 Years Ago . . . A Vision

Following are the remarks of Richard T. Sweeney, Jr., President-Elect and dinner chairman, at the 60th Anniversary Celebration of the Kiwanis Club of Quincy held at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center.

Over sixty years ago, a small, dedicated group of young Quincy men had a vision. They envisioned the need to help people: especially children; and most especially needy children. These early Kiwanians set their goals and worked hard to achieve their objectives. They laid the foundation, which for the past sixty years has served to guide hundreds of Quincy Kiwanians in pursuit of helping their fellow man.

This evening's celebration is not only a tribute to our sixty years of community service, but a testimony to the spirit and dedication of those men who have served the Kiwanis Club of Quincy so faithfully.

It is quite fitting that we conclude this evening's celebration with a $5,000 contribution to the Pediatric Trauma Center. In 1924, Quincy Kiwanians were concerned with the health and well being of sickly young children. And now, sixty years later, in a vastly changing and sophisticated medical world, we are still working toward that objective. I know that I am not alone when I say that; I am proud to be a Kiwanian; and I am especially proud to be a Quincy Kiwanian!

As we conclude this portion of our program, and before I call upon Reverend Richard C. Malmquist for his closing benediction, I would be remiss if I did not acknowledge some of the people who have helped to make this anniversary celebration such a success.

An evening such as this requires a tremendous amount of preparation and I would like to thank my Sixtieth Anniversary Committee for their cooperation and assistance. Aldo Saluti; Richard Coleman; James Stearns; Robert Parker and Alan Davis.

On the last page of your program books, you will find a listing of the "Friends of Quincy Kiwanis". These organizations and individuals each contributed a substantial amount to help offset some of the many expenses of tonight's dinner. Most of you know who they are, so please take the time to thank them; their cooperation made a world of difference.

Congratulations

Kiwanis Club Of Quincy Marks 60 Years Of Community Service

By RICHARD T. SWEENEY, JR.

President-Elect

Although the Kiwanis Club of Quincy received its charter in 1924, we must look back to the previous year to learn of its real origin. In 1923, a group of young men who were members of the Y's Men's Club (Wise-men), affiliated with what was then known as the Quincy Y.M.C.A., sought an opportunity to be of greater service to their community and especially to underprivileged children. Prominent among these "Wise-men" were Arthur I. Burgess, Frank H. Foy, Lawrence W. Lyons, F. Warren Crane, J. Sumner Swingle, Guy W. Shaw, William Hibbett and Dr. William D. Michael.

In seeking an outlet for their enthusiasm and their ideals, they became interested in Kiwanis International, which was a comparatively new service organization, having been started in Detroit in 1915. Contrary to the usual procedure, this group sought out Kiwanis and was not sought by Kiwanis. The friendly spirit of Kiwanis appealed to these young men. They soon learned that while Kiwanis had its fun side with singing, laughing and joking, it also had a serious side. The aims and objectives of Kiwanis were to render service to underprivileged children and to promote friendly urban-rural relationships. Seeking an opportunity for community service, Kiwanis proved to be the challenge that appealed strongly to these young men.

In the latter part of 1923 and early 1924, the Kiwanis idea was explained to other young men of Quincy. The result was a formal application for a Kiwanis Charter, signed by fifty-two Quincy men. The application was accepted on March 10, 1924 by Kiwanis International. The representative of International, Walter C. Humpton, who was instrumental in the final organizational phase, was voted as the first Honorary member of the newly formed Quincy club. The Kiwanis Club of Quincy Charter was presented on

Wednesday evening, April 23, 1924 at a gala dinner held in Quincy at the Glenwood Hall.

Charter night is always a great occasion, and Quincy's charter observation was truly a festive affair with many guests and notables in attendance with the fifty-two charter members. The stage was set as a replica of a typical Kiwanis meeting with the usual informality, singing and "fines". An imitation fireplace was built, brick by brick as members sang the Kiwanis "Builders" song and laid the bricks worded "Truth", "Sincerity", "Helpfulness", "Honesty", and other Kiwanis objectives. The charter, bell and gavel, flag and record book were presented by other clubs in the New England District, followed by an address by the Kiwanis District Governor, Walter J. Campbell.

From the very beginning these new Kiwanians were imbued with the spirit of Kiwanis and its objectives of unselfish service to the community and its needy children. Activities to raise money for charity and welfare work began immediately, first by contributions from members supplemented by running band concerts and other fund raisers.

In the early days, meetings were held in the Bradford Building, later on the top floor of the Quincy Savings Bank Building, then in the Grill Room of the Elks Building. Next, in Kingson Hall of the Granite Trust Building, followed by a move to the Rotary-Kiwanis Hall in the Cliveden Building and then to the Neighborhood Club of Quincy. In recent years our meetings have been held at the Quincy Y.M.C.A. Building, the Christ Episcopal Church Hall, and presently at the Sons of Italy Hall.

ACTIVITIES

Over the past sixty years, the Kiwanis Club of Quincy and its members have dedicated themselves to the service of their community. They have provided leadership and manpower, assisted on countless worthwhile projects and have engaged in various fund raising activities.

In 1927 and 1928, money was raised by sponsoring band concerts in Merry-mount Park. In 1929, the first of what would become an annual event, the "Kiwanis Kapers", appeared at the old Quincy Theatre. In 1930, Kiwanians produced "Tangerine" in the same theatre. After two more productions, which were held at the Wollaston Theatre, the "Kapers" were discontinued during the depression years until 1937 when President Philip K. Barker appointed the "Thousand Dollar Committee", whose responsibility or duty was to raise at least One Thousand Dollars per year. To this very day, this committee, now renamed the "Fund Raising Committee", has never failed to reach its goal. In 1937, the "Kiwanis Kapers" resumed and was produced every year through 1973.

Because of changing attitudes and economic conditions, the Kiwanis Club of Quincy embarked on another bold adventure in pursuit of assistance to underprivileged children. Through the recommendation of former member, Frank W. Mills, and the efforts of the "Thousand Dollar Committee", in 1974, the Kiwanis Club of Quincy joined forces with the Weymouth Kiwanis Club in sponsoring our First Annual International Youth Hockey Tournament. The tournament was very successful both as a financial endeavor and in bringing the youth of Canada and the Eastern United States together in the spirit of friendly competition.

In 1978, after four years of joint sponsorship, the Quincy Kiwanis Club took over full responsibility for its annual tournament, and each year we have continued to improve. Last month marked the completion of our eleventh consecutive year. Fifty two teams, including several

A Letter From Tom Burgin

(Former Mayor-Senator Thomas S. Burgin, the lone surviving and still active charter member of the Kiwanis Club of Quincy, was unable to attend the 60th anniversary dinner. But he sent the following letter:)

Dear Friends:

Although words are merely a substitute for one's inner-most thoughts, may these few lines express both my appreciation to, and spirit of high regard for, the members of the Kiwanis Club of Quincy following the 60th Anniversary Dinner held last evening. It was indeed a keen disappointment that I was unable to be present due to illness which I am sure was temporary but not serious.

First of all, hearty congratulations to Dick Sweeney for the time and effort he put into the preparation of the entire affair and for the excellent manner in which I understand he presided at the dinner.

Secondly, my sincere thanks for the presentations (made to me in absentia and accepted by my long-time friend, Mrs. J. Everett Robbie) which she kindly delivered at my home this noontime. It might be of interest to note that I was best-man at the Robbie's wedding over fifty years ago.

The beautifully framed Legion Of Honor certificate, the silver 60-year membership pin, together with the evening's program will be carefully saved as reminders of true Kiwanis Friendship.

I shall look forward to being present at a meeting in the near future to express my appreciation in person!

Sincerely,
"Tom"

from Canada and a team from Austria, competed in four divisions and provided us with one of our most exciting and successful tournaments yet. In the past eleven years we have been able to raise over $65,000.00 through sponsoring this event.

The tremendous task of running this tournament is handled by the "Fund Raising Committee", which each year is chaired by the immediate Past President. The committee formulates the planning and preparation, while the membership solicits advertising and provide much needed manpower during the week-long tournament. The tournament is a total effort, with all members participating in some fashion. As with the "Kiwanis Kapers" of old, these hockey tournaments will long be remembered by our members for the camaraderie that is exhibited during all phases of this, our major fund raiser.

KIWANIS CONTRIBUTIONS

In keeping with the motto of Kiwanis, "We Build", the Kiwanis Club of Quincy has spent sixty years of giving, sharing and helping "to build" a better community. Since its inception in 1924, the Kiwanis Club of Quincy has expended over $300,000.00 in charitable donations, camperships, scholarships and countless other worthwhile causes. Over these past sixty years, Quincy Kiwanians have been involved helping children of various ages in many diverse ways, and in participating in community projects.

In the early days of our club, Quincy Kiwanis has contributed by:

Supplying much needed uniforms for the High School Band.

Transporting children from the Boston School for the Deaf to theatre parties in Quincy.

Providing shoes for crippled children, eye glasses, food and clothing for needy children as well as tonsil and adenoid operations.

Providing funds for tuberculosis tests of Parochial school children.

Organizing a Motor Corps to transport polio victims to clinics for treatment.

Hosting Christmas parties for unfortunate Quincy children.

Organizing and conducting a Boy Scout Troop, constructing a cabin at the Boy Scout Camp and donating a flag and flagpole.

In more recent years, our largest project was a pledge of $40,000.00 to help construct the new YMCA Building on Coddington Street in 1954. This pledge was paid in full within a reasonably short time. Two major traditional meetings take place each year as a result of Quincy Kiwanis. Each year we host a pre-thanksgiving goodwill luncheon prior to the annual thanksgiving football game between Quincy and North Quincy High Schools. Captains, co-captains, coaches, and principals are our guests. The other traditional meeting, which was initiated by Quincy Kiwanis, is the annual joint Memorial Day meeting of all Quincy service clubs. This year we will be hosting members of the Lions, Rotary and Probuc Clubs.

Scholarships to qualified Quincy students have always been a primary concern to members of the Quincy club. Almost since its beginning days, Quincy Kiwanis has been involved with student loans, which more than thirty-five years ago developed into scholarships. In recent years we have granted scholarships to students from Quincy High, North Quincy High, Quincy Vocational-Technical School and Quincy Junior College. We also award an additional scholarship to a Quincy student attending an outside Quincy school.

In 1982, a general scholarship fund was established, by our club, in memory of our Treasurer Emeritus Gustav Westrin, who served the club as treasurer for 48 years. This memorial scholarship fund was set up to receive funds bequeathed in the memory of deceased Kiwanians.

In addition to our general scholarship fund we have been fortunate in obtaining extra funds. In 1965, Mrs. Edwin S. White contributed $5,000.00 to establish a scholarship fund in memory of her late husband, Kiwanian Edwin S. White. This fund specifically benefits a student from North Quincy High School.

Late in 1983, it was announced that Past President and 57-year member, Wallace S. Carson had bequeathed in his will the sum of $5,000.00, to establish a permanent scholarship fund in his memory.

Providing camperships is yet another aspect of our Kiwanis work on behalf of needy boys and girls. From its earliest days, Quincy Kiwanis became active in sponsoring young children to summer camps, including girl and boy scout camps. Over these past sixty years camperships have been provided for literally thousands of needy boys and girls. Presently, each summer we donate $2,850.00 to the South Shore Y.M.C.A. to sponsor these children. These camps have enabled boys and girls of all ages to enjoy and experience healthy interaction with other children and provide them a better foundation on which to grow.

In keeping with Kiwanis International's 1983-1984 theme to "Enrich the World of the Handicapped", Quincy Kiwanians have four years participated in Handi-Kids projects. We have assisted, both financially and with manpower, the Randolph Kiwanis Club's annual Handi-Kids Field Day in Bridgewater. We have purchased a specially built bicycle for a young handicapped Quincy child, donated to the "Swim With a Special Child" program and supported a local Boy Scout Troop of handicapped young men.

The Kiwanis Club of Quincy has been very active throughout its existence in supporting all kinds of community needs. We sponsor a "Circle K" Club at Eastern Nazarene College, we have entered floats in the Quincy Christmas Festival Parade and donated the scoreboard at the Quincy Youth Hockey Arena. We have contributed to the Quincy High School Madrigal Choir, Quincy Boy Scouts, Girls Scouts, Campfire Girls, youth hockey and baseball teams. Other charitable organizations that we support include the Salvation Army, the Red Cross, Beechwood Community Life Center, and the Cerebral Palsy Association. We have always responded and will continue to respond to individual requests, as well as countless other charitable causes.

In recent years, Kiwanis clubs from all over New England have joined in supporting the New England Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Center at the Tufts New England Medical Center in Boston. The center provides immediate medical attention to seriously sick and injured children. It is specifically designed for treating young trauma victims and is the first of its kind in this area. The Kiwanis Club of Quincy made its first donation of $5,000.00 to the Trauma Center in 1981. It is with great pride and tremendous enthusiasm that we mark this Sixtieth Anniversary of the Kiwanis Club of Quincy tonight, with yet another donation of $5,000.00 to this most worthy cause.

Miller Would Like Raiders, Quincy Out Of Suburban League

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy basketball coach Eddie Miller not only would like to get his teaching job back, but would like to see the Raiders, as well as Quincy, get out of the Suburban League.

"I know all the coaches don't feel like I do," said Miller, one of many Quincy and North Quincy coaches who lost their teaching jobs due to Proposition 2½. "But there are some others who feel the same."

"North and Quincy have held their own in the league in some sports, including volleyball, and especially in swimming and girls' track at North, but we have had increasing problems in basketball and other major sports."

Miller explained that declining enrollments at North and Quincy are major reasons they have had trouble in the strong Suburban League.

"Quincy and North Quincy are the smallest schools in the league," he said. "We have only 500 boys in grades 10-12 and Quincy has only slightly more. In contrast, Brockton has 1,600 students in the freshman class alone. Brockton has 6,000 students and Cambridge, Brookline and Waltham are much bigger than we are."

"Enrollment-wise, we are only Division Two. I would give anything to get back in the school system. A coach should be in the system, it makes things so much harder when the coach is outside. I'd like to get my teaching job back and build our program up to where it used to be. By that time we probably would be in a "merit league. When a coach is not in the school system, the players don't have anyone to look up to or talk to during the day. I know when I was in school, I looked forward to seeking out the coach and talking things over with him." (Miller is a former North basketball standout himself).

The Raider coach, now working for Quincy Cable-systems, pointed out that he and the other Quincy and North coaches met recently with Supt. of Schools Lawrence Creedon to air their problems.

There has been talk for several years of forming a South Shore League with Quincy, North Quincy, Weymouth North and South, Braintree, Milton and probably Randolph and Hingham.

"That would be ideal," Miller said. "I would also be receptive to joining the Bay State League or the Old Colony League."

"Weymouth was a power when it had just one high school, but when they broke up into Weymouth North and Weymouth South, they had little or no luck in the Suburban League. Both have done far better since joining the Old Colony League, where they still are the smallest schools."

Miller pointed out that

North Quincy has held its own with some of the Suburban League teams but cannot compete with such powers as Cambridge Rindge and Latin and Brockton and also has had trouble with Waltham and Brookline.

"Cambridge and Brockton are just too strong and Brookline is really coming along," the North skipper said. "It is no fun for the boys to go out and get walloped by the league powers. They have even come to me and asked 'What are we doing in this league?'"

"When I was teaching, I ran a league for elementary school students and it paid off for us," he added. "Now those kids have no one to coach them and also, when the junior high sports programs were ended, it really hurt our high school programs."

This past season North had a 6-12 record and had only four wins in the league, two over Quincy. Quincy had a much more frustrating season, ending at 3-17 with just one league win.

Rick DeCristofaro, who made his debut as Quincy's coach this year after three years as Miller's assistant at North, echoed Miller's feelings. "It is asking a lot of our players to go up against teams like Cambridge and Brockton," he said.

At North Quincy, football coach Ken McPhee and hockey coach Kevin Jago also are not in the school system.

Mike Sclaro, Joe LaFleur, Jim Shugrue and Billy Hutton all played well.

St. Joseph's then squeezed by previously unbeaten St. Clare's, 27-26, taking a one-point lead after one quarter, leading by two at the half and by one going into the final quarter.

Some timely shooting by St. Clare's erased a five-point St. Joseph's lead and led by a point with 30 seconds to play. Jaehnig scored a clutch jump shot with 15 seconds left for the win. Brillo had nine points, Jennette seven, Battistone five, Jaehnig four and Ryan two.

Chris Foy two. Dawn Aimola led the defense and had seven steals, while Kim Berggren had several key rebounds, Laurie Zaccheo played excellent defense.

Somersault Gym Team In Optional Meet

Selected members of the Somersault Center for boys' gymnastics team of North Quincy recently competed in their first optional meet of the season.

For some it was their first meet ever.

Class III gymnasts Rob Feeley, Nat Goodale and Joe Haran used this meet to qualify for the New England Regionals.

Class IV gymnasts Dennis Lawrence and Ryan Hazel, were initiated into optionals. Goodale placed sixth in the all-around, Feeley placed second all-around in his age group. Haran took third on high bar and Hazel was sixth on high bar.

Some of the boys competed in compulsory routines in the morning session and Joe Hayes, who has improved tremendously since the fall season, scored 48.8 for third all-around. Paul Coska was third on high bar in Class III's. Todd Elwell placed sixth on pommel horse and has broken into the 40s all-around with hard work. Nick Langelli keeps improving each week, has learned all the routines and placed sixth in his age group.

The Class II team is looking toward the regionals and the members are trying to break 50 points all-around. Steve Wingert was close at 49.75 for his best output ever. David Johnson totaled 51.7 and Gerry Haran is good for 55 and more as he scores nines in every event.

Cheerleading Class At Y

It will be an eight-week course held once a week on Saturday.

Those aged 7 - 14 years old are invited to sign up. The fee is $8. for members and $15. for non-members.

Cedrone's 18 All In Vain As Peres Win

Sid Cedrone scored 18 points but he was more than matched by towering Pat McGrath and Gus Ryan as the Pere Marquette basketball team of South Boston edged the North Quincy Columbian Club, 50-47, to win the first playoff championship of the South Shore League.

The Columbians very nearly caught the tiring Peres in the last 10 minutes of the game when Charlie White and Scooty Whitelaw led a spirited attack that fell three points short at the buzzer. The ball was under the Peres basket for the final minute.

The North Quincy lineup included: Cedrone, Whitelaw, C. White, J. White, forwards; Meade, Finncran, centers; J. Mathieson, Reid, Conroy, guards.

SYLVA IN UPSET

Bob Sylva, the Quincy auto repairman who was invited to compete when another boxer came up injured, banged out an unanimous decision over the pre-tourney favorite, Sal Cabral of Honolulu, in the opening bouts on the New England AAU card at Boston Garden.

SOFTBALL FIELD

The Quincy Rotary Club announced plans to build a $15,000 "Class A" softball field, complete with lights for night games, as its contribution to the new Quincy YMCA complex that was being planned for the south side of Coddington St.

Lawrence H. Abbott and Nissie Grossman, co-chairmen of the planning committee, said the field would be of oil-treated sand and clay and ideal for the use of youngsters during the day and industrial, church and organizational softball games at night.

OLD COLONY BOWLS

With their star, Don Sprague, held to only seven points, the Old Colony basketball team of Quincy bowed to Cape Cod of Hyannis, 31-25, in the final of the State De Molay Tournament in Boston Arena. Skyscraping Augie Pocius paced Cape Cod with 18 points.

The Old Colony lineup included: Hamilton, Perry, Lindbom, Cushman, Ferguson, forwards; Sprague, center; Lawrence, Vargas, Mahn, Hibbard, Sparks, guards.

CUP TRANSFERRED

The executive committee of the Quincy Yacht Club voted to transfer the historic Quincy Challenge Cup, the most coveted yachting trophy on the northeast coast, from the Charles Francis Adams class to the Star class, opening competition to any club in the world.

SPORTS BITS '48

Jackie Wilson of Quincy remained unbeaten in pro boxing ranks when he gained a fourth round technical knock out of Eddie York of Boston in their welterweight bout in Providence, R. I., Auditorium ... Collagan's 99 was high for both teams as the North Quincy High School rifle team out shot Melrose, 489 to 473, to extend its win streak to six straight matches ... St. Louis betting commissioner James Carroll installed the Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees as 5-6 co-favorites to win the American League pennant ... North Quincy High School golf coach Jack Donahue greeted five returning veterans, including Fordie Pitts and Ken Campbell, back from his Norfolk County League championships of 1947 ... Greater Quincy Church Basketball League statistics were released, showing that Don Sprague of Bethany Congregational was the first 300 point scorer in the 30-year history of the league ... Max Zaslofsky pumped in 31 points as the Chicago Stags defeated Boston, 81-74, and eliminated the Celtics from the Basketball Association of America playoffs ... Don Russell's 15 points paced Wollaston Methodist to a 52-28 victory over Alden St. Baptist of Springfield to win the PCAA state intermediate championship ... Former welterweight and middleweight boxing champion Lou Brouillard was working out at Joe Beston's gym over the Bargain Center in preparation for a ring comeback at 36 with a fight in Lewiston, Maine, April 19 ... Pettinelli scored 20 points in leading the St. John's basketball team to a tie for the Greater Quincy Church League title with an 87-15 victory over St. Chrysostoms. St. John's had scored 158 points in two games ... George O'Rourke was named umpire-in-chief of the South Shore Baseball League, the first man to hold the title ... Dunn and Broderick were the big guns as the Quincy High School alumni defeated the varsity 34-31, in their annual basketball game for the "Q" Fund ... X-rays were taken to determine the injury to Dullio Spagnolo's right hand after the Italian heavyweight injured it in his Boston Garden fight with Olle Tandberg.

ENC Donkey Basketball Raises $600

By KAREN MCPHEE

As a part of the effort to combat campus-wide student apathy, the Student Council of Eastern Nazarene College sponsored a donkey basketball game in the gym.

The Administration took on the Student Council, as well as various alumni and staff members, in two games followed by a playoff as the enthusiastic audience laughed and cheered.

Donkey basketball is exactly what it sounds like; members of opposing teams play a regular basketball game while sitting astride trained donkeys with rubber-coated hoofs. Each donkey is trained to do a different thing, and at the command of the trainer will unexpectedly buck, stop suddenly or roll over. Students as well as community members attended this event, netting the Student Council $600 as well as providing an evening's entertainment well worth the money.

Showing a true sportsman-like spirit, several teams as well as the school's president, Dr. Stephen Nease, hung up their business suits to don cowboy hats and boots for this unusual occurrence. Due to the obvious handicap, only about 10 points were scored per game, each basketball game having a hysterical reaction from the wound-up crowd.

Time-outs were called for an occasional floor-cleaning, but the only other interruption was a half-time show where five randomly selected young ladies battled it out in a cutthroat game of "musical donkeys." The triumphant winner, Miss Sue Shirley, was crowned "Miss Jackass" and smiled at the crowd as she was led around the center of the gym aboard her proud steed.

The well-organized, widely publicized donkey basketball game has been the most successful fundraiser this year, due partly to the efforts of Jeff Jakat, the Director of Social Activities, and also to the forty-five participants who, in the spirit and fun and sportsmanship, let themselves look like a . . . uh, spectacle.

'Tuxedo Junction' A Smash Hit

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

It had everything from tap dancing to break dancing and the audience could have watched it "All Night Long".

It was Quincy High School's production of "Tuxedo Junction" at North Quincy High School's auditorium.

The fast paced production was so good that it was difficult to remember that the performers were not professionals but high school students.

Catherine R. Carnabuci did an outstanding job of creating, directing and choreographing the musical revue which featured 38 numbers.

The show had something for everyone.

There were rousing numbers like "Strike Up the Band" interspersed with the chorus harmonizing to "As Time Goes By".

Numbers like "A Couple of Swells" and "Uptown Girls" had the audience chuckling.

For Alexander's Rag Time Band, the chorus brought out kazooos and

"TUXEDO JUNCTION" was presented by Quincy High School students at North Quincy High School. The crowd-pleasing show featured everything from show tunes to pop numbers. (Quincy Sun photo by Bob Corbett) moved among the audience which clapped along.

Among the showstoppers was Michael Jackson's "Thriller" complete with dancers, Vincent Price character and girls in the audience screaming "Michael".

The choreography really shined in numbers like "All Night Long" and "Flashdance".

Fans of contemporary Broadway shows could enjoy "What I Did for Love" from "A Chorus Line" and "Memory" from "Cats".

Even the band was first rate. It featured Anthony Ferrante, clarinet; Robert Coviello, trumpet; John Gulino, trombone; Christopher Carnabuci, bass; and Robert McElman, percussion.

Cast members wore black and white outfits for many of the numbers, and smiles on their faces throughout the show which mirrored their contagious enthusiasm and energy.

The audience at Saturday night's sold-out performance enjoyed the show so much that it rose in unison for a standing ovation even before the final number had ended.

The title of the finale summed up the evening perfectly. It was "The Best of Times".

Cast members were:

HOLLYWOOD—As I unpack my bags from a hectic trip to Hawaii, and the set of "Magnum P.I." the old saying, "there's no place like home" certainly rings true when your home's here in tinseltown.

That new Jane Fonda video workout "Challenge," I told you about a few weeks ago, has become an instant success as thirty-thousand units of the how-to cassette have been shipped to retailers all over America. My video connection in Dallas says people in big D are standing on line for Jane's latest offering...

If you have ever been involved with a rock band (and I was for many of my years spent in Michigan), you've got to see Embassy Pictures' new movie, "This is Spinal Tap." Directed by Rob Reiner, this rockumentary cuts right to the core of a group of untalented guys who in the 60's had a slight taste of success, and are now using every gimmick in the book to recapture their short-lived fame. The humor takes the sting out of a very sad commentary on what has become of our rock and roll heroes when the music finally dies...

Patricia Marie Lunsford, my video connection in Leesburg, Virginia sent along an interesting story of becoming so excited at meeting "Wonder Woman" Lynda Carter at Washington's Dulles International Airport that she overcharged Miss Carter on a purchase in the airport gift shop.

Patricia wonders if I can help her track down the pretty lady so that she may balance the books on her refund. Well Pat, for you and the millions of other Lynda Carter fans, send your refunds and requests to Mark Lamhart at Rogers and Cowan, 9665 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, CA 90212.

Speaking of Lynda, watch for her and Loni Anderson as they team up in a private-eye series for Johnny Carson's production company. The two beauties team up in "Partners in Crime" for NBC Television. Now I ask you, what crook in his right mind wouldn't want to be caught by those two???

Media Home Entertainment has released a classic hit of music history in a new video-cassette featuring a 1964 concert called "That Was Rock—The TAMI/TNT Show."

My video connection in Fort Lauderdale who has seen sneak previews of this 90-minute film rave over the performances of The Rolling Stones, The Supremes, The Ronettes, Chuck Berry, Marvin Gaye, Smokey Robinson, Lesley Gore, and the original break dancer, James Brown...

Remember the car chase in "The French Connection?" Forget it! James Woods and Jeff Bridges take a romp down Hollywood's Sunset Boulevard in the current Columbia Pictures thriller "Against All Odds," that makes "The French Connection" rubber burner look like a driver's training film. Also the sight of "Odds" star Rachel Ward is sure to create some nifty fender benders...

Listen up all of you North American-deejays... Realize Motown's hit makers, The Commodores have lost their gift of making great music. Their current single "Only You," off their new album, "Commodores 13" is a must for your playlists. With or without Lionel, "Only You" proves the Commodores really know how to put soul into a heartbeat.

Got a question for your favorite star? I'll track 'em down for you. Send questions and comments to James S. Leach c/o THE VIDEO CONNECTION, 22761 Pacific Coast Hwy., Malibu, Calif. 90265.

PISCES - February 20-March 20
Focus is on teaching, formally or informally. New hobby or interest can have long-term benefit. Favorite friend enjoys the limelight. Your congratulations mean a great deal.

ARIES - March 21-April 20

CANCER - June 22-July 22
Avoid snap decisions, especially on the weekend and especially on matters of career or education. Communications are positively accented. Use the week to send out key correspondence.

LEO - July 23-August 22
Relationship reaches a turning point and a key decision may be made by Wednesday. Creative project has a profitable angle. Try your hardest to motivate a moody friend or child.

VIRGO - August 23-September 22
Areas of travel and education are spotlighted, and solo activities are favored over partnership ventures. At work, accent is on tying up a bundle of loose ends.

LIBRA - September 23-October 22
A more outgoing approach leads to new interests, and new interests lead to new friendship. Family disputes require prompt mediation. Travel plans can be rearranged now.

SCORPIO - October 23-November 21

Pizza Hut Granted 2 Video Permits

The License Board granted permits Tuesday for two video machines at the Pizza Hut, 627 Washington St., Quincy Point.

Police Chief Francis Finn made the motion to grant the permits, with the stipulation that if any problems result, restaurant management appear before the board.

Finn said there were machines in the restaurant for four weeks before management realized permits were necessary, and had the games taken out.

There were no problems when the games were in the restaurant, Finn said.

Ward Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro said that, "personally, I feel enough is enough."

DeCristofaro said he was concerned that the games might create a hang-out for youths.

Manager Paul Duffy said he would try to restrict the games to restaurant customers.

$128,000 In Plumbing

Plumbing and Gas Fitting Inspector James A. Irwin Jr. reports that he issued 132 permits for plumbing estimated to cost $128,585 during the month of February.

After talking to Finn, DeCristofaro suggested the games be allowed.

If there's a problem, take them away," said DeCristofaro.

The Department collected $1,520 in permit fees and made 209 inspections.

License Board Frowns On Taxi Stands At Hospital

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The License Board voted Tuesday to refer back to Quincy City Hospital a request that a stand for two taxis be designated in front of the administration building on Whitwell St.

"We don't allow public taxi stands in Quincy," said City Clerk and License Board chairman John Gillis.

"It would be precedent setting."

Gillis suggested the hospital investigate the possibility of locating such a stand on private land.

The request, from Jeffrey Harsfield, Director of Support Services, was originally sent to the Planning Department and then forwarded to the License Board.

Harsfield stated that a taxi stand in front of the hospital would benefit the public.

Board Continues Request For Health, Fitness Center

The License Board voted Tuesday to continue to April 3 a request from South Shore Health & Fitness Complex, Inc., 500 Washington St., for a common victualer license.

Health Commr. Dr. M. Grace Hussey requested a plan of the establishment with measurements.

Peter Ricciardi of the fitness complex said that $1,200,000 is being invested in the business which he said is a fitness center, not a health club.

Ricciardi said the complex is requesting a license to serve juices.

The center is involved with such things as sports medicine, physical therapy, and body mechanics, said Ricciardi, and a 60 ft. swimming pool will be installed by June.

"It looks like a very nice operation," said Ward Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro, "as long as it never comes up looking for a liquor license."

City Asks State To Approve New Tax Rates

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Francis X. McCauley and a retinue of city officials have a date with the State Department of Revenue Friday at 10 a.m. to set the city's first tax rate under 100 per cent revaluation.

If all goes according to plan, the rate will be $21.95 per thousand on residential property and $32.50 per thousand on commercial, industrial and personal property.

The City Council cleared the way for the fiscal-1984 tax rate Monday night by approving McCauley's classification plan and cleaning up a few loose ends of financial orders in committee.

Classification was passed after Councillor Stephen J. McGrath made an unsuccessful attempt to amend the mayor's figures to ease the tax blow on homeowners.

Under the McCauley plan, now law of the city, residential property will be taxed at a rate of 87.8007 per cent of full value and commercial, industrial and personal property at 130 per cent.

McGrath's plan would have taxed residential property at 83.7343 per cent of full value and CIPP at 140 per cent which, he said, would mean a residential tax rate of $20.93 and $35 for business.

McGrath's motion to amend the mayor's plan, however, failed to get a second.

"It is our responsibility to balance the tax burden between residential and commercial property," said McGrath. "It is not balanced under the mayor's plan. This gives the homeowner a larger break."

McCauley said he expects the state will approve the $21.95 and $32.50 tax rates although maybe not right away.

"They don't usually make a decision right on the spot," he said, "although last year I recall we got approval the next day by telephone. The quicker we get approval the quicker we get bills out."

McCauley noted that the tax rate for fiscal 1984 will

Houghs Neck Residents To Meet On Street Violence

Houghs Neck residents will meet Sunday, April 8, at 6 p.m. in St. Thomas Aquinas Hall on Darrow St., to discuss youth drinking problems that are believed by some to have been a factor in the beating of five sailors Feb. 17.

Ten men, most of them from Quincy, were arrested last week and pleaded innocent to 109 counts of assault and civil rights violations in the attack on the sailors, three of them black, from the sub-tender USS Fulton, near Louis

Cafe on Sea St.

Their cases were continued to April 11.

David McMillan, chairman of Citizens Against Street Violence, who called the Sunday meeting, said that race was possibly one of several factors in the attack.

"There are very few racial problems in Houghs Neck," he said. "60 or 70 per cent of the problems are caused by street conditions, behavior that has been allowed to go on for five or six years.

"Blame could be spread around. Among elected officials for the past five or six years, some people on the Police Department, also us citizens of Houghs Neck who have looked the other way."

He also blamed "civic leaders of Houghs Neck who have not taken a stand against public drinking by anyone from 12 to 30 years of age."

McMillan apologized "on behalf of the Houghs Neck community for the incident."

"I know Houghs Neck is a safe place for those sailors

3 Take Out Papers

Ward I Elections May 15, June 12

Less than 24 hours after Gov. Michael Dukakis made it all possible with a stroke of his pen, three candidates had taken out nomination papers to run for the vacant City Council seat in Ward 1.

Dukakis signed a home rule petition at 4 p.m. Monday changing the city charter to take the responsibility for filling Council vacancies away from the Council and giving it to the people.

Monday night, the Council scheduled a special preliminary election for May 15 and a special general election for June 12 to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Leo J. Kelly in January.

By 4 p.m. Tuesday, nomination papers had been picked up at City Hall by Mary Crowley Gregoire of 58 Lenox St., Michael T. Cheney of 94 Rock Island Rd., and Bernard Reisberg of 1399 Quincy Shore Drive.

Also in the race are Kevin B. Davis of 226 Rock Island Rd., and Robert L.

P & G Considered For $6-10 Million Process

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
Procter & Gamble Co. in Quincy is being considered for a manufacturing process which could bring a $6 to $10 million investment and 35 more jobs to the local plant.

Ken Thode, plant engineer, told the License Board at an informal session Tuesday that the parent company is conducting a feasibility study on locating the process at the Quincy plant.

Four other plants in different parts of the country are also being considered for the process which would increase production of soap and detergent-type products, Thode said.

The process would require seven-day-a-week operation of that part of the business said Thode, who explained that the plant currently operates Mondays to Fridays, and some Saturdays.

Thode said that 250 persons are employed at the plant which has been located at 780 Washington St. for about 45 years.

If the process is located at the Quincy site, 35 additional employees could be added, said Thode.

If not, there is the potential that 50 jobs could be lost in the next few years, Thode said.

Installation of the process would cost $6 to $10 million and would probably require expansion of the current building.

McCauley To Study Voting Machines

Mayor Francis X. McCauley plans to review the feasibility of voting machines for city elections, possibly purchasing them one ward at a time over a period of six years.

The City Council passed a resolution Monday night asking such a study.

Quincy is one of the few cities in the state still using paper ballots that have to be counted by hand, resulting in long and expensive hours of labor by election workers.

City Clerk John Gillis told the Council that, while voting machines have been expensive in the past, new punch card voting techniques could be instituted for $100,000 for the entire city.

McCauley said that, with all the problems facing the city over the past two or three years, voting machines have not been a major priority.

"But we'll take a look at it once we get the tax rate set and the 1985 budget out of the way," he said.

Access Study Planned Of State Street Area

The Metropolitan Area Planning Council has agreed to undertake an analysis of improved access to the State Street South office complex and the vicinity.

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey said the study by MAPC's Central Planning Transportation Staff is designed to address issues of access from the Southeast Expressway to the entire North Quincy area.

"The Sub Signatory Committee to the MAPC will now attempt to outline and define the scope and nature of the traffic study," said Morrissey.

"Once the scope of the work has been determined, the study can proceed and we will have an idea as to how long it will take to compile the necessary data."

Morrissey said he hopes the study will improve access to State Street South by providing an alternative to lessen the burden on streets such as West Squantum St.

Morrissey asked City Councillor John J. Lydon to investigate the possibility of placing a flashing 20 mile and hour school zone sign on West Squantum St. by the Montclair School to increase safety.

Tools Taken

James Dolan of 245 Sea St., Merrymount, reported to police Saturday that tools valued at $3,000 were stolen from his station wagon while it was parked at the rear of the Sea View condominiums.

McCauley, Council Compromise On Raises

Mayor Francis X. McCauley and the City Council reached a compromise Monday night that dissolved the threatened deadlock over pay raises for city department heads.

McCauley agreed to a Council-proposed raise of $853 a year for City Clerk John Gillis and $1,162 for Auditor Robert E. Foy, both of them leg-Council employees.

But the mayor turned down Council proposals for wage hike for five other department heads.

The Council had tried to give raises to the seven on its own but City Solicitor Dean Nicastro ruled that that was one of the prerogatives of the mayor alone.

"Once we determined the responsibility of the mayor then I was able to recognize that the Council had done a lot of work on matter and take action," said McCauley.

"I concurred with the Council on the auditor and the city clerk. The others I did not concur with."

Once that was out of the way, the Council voted raises for department heads of 3 to 6 per cent retroactive to Jan. 1 and another 3 per cent effective July 1.

DeCristofaro Opposes Liquor License In Quincy Sq.

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Ward Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro reiterated his stand against all alcoholic licenses Tuesday when a Quincy Sq. restaurant owner appeared before the License Board.

The board took DeCristofaro's position into consideration and voted to continue to April 17 a request from Caesar's Luncheon & Delicatessen, 16 Cottage Ave., for a common victualer-all alcoholic license.

Atty. Rocco DeFazio, representing applicant Constance Affsa, said that the restaurant, which has a wine and malt license, is requesting the all alcoholic license to keep up with competition.

DeFazio said that a number of Caesar's customers have frequented nearby restaurants with all-alcoholic licenses.

"There are no ifs, ands or buts," said DeCristofaro. "I'm absolutely opposed. We've had enough."

"It's one more all alcoholic license in Ward II."

"I respect DeCristofaro's position," said Police Chief Francis Finn, "but this is not a residential area, and there is a real problem with competition."

"A lot of small restaurants may want the same thing (if the license is granted) said Building Inspector Allan MacDonald.

"There are only two (all alcoholic-pouring licenses)," said City Clerk and board chairman John Gillis, who explained there are 88 such licenses allowed in the city.

Board members requested that Mrs. Affsa discuss the matter with the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and ascertain their opinion.

Elks Granted License For New Home

The Quincy Lodge of Elks was granted a club-all alcoholic license Tuesday for its new home at the abandoned Myles Standish School, 440 East Squantum St.

Francis Morrell, Elks exalted ruler, said that the lodge's 1220 Hancock St. site will be closed for a few days before the new location opens around Friday.

Morrell said the organization has a three-year lease with a three year option from the school department.

The Title I program is also located in the building during the day, said Morrell.

City Clerk John Gillis praised the work of the Elks saying, "I wish half the organizations were as charitable."

Council To Question City Hospital Abortions

The City Council Monday night took a step toward the political morass of abortion.

Councillors indicated that they would like to take up the subject of abortions performed at City Hospital at a meeting of the Hospital Committee.

Members of a Brockton church group have been picketing the hospital in recent weeks to protest the practice.

The subject came up Monday night when the hospital's financial report for fiscal 1983 was presented for examination.

While the Council had the attention of John Kane, chairman of the hospital's board of managers, Councillor Joanne Condon asked him if the hospital could make some statement about abortion in the near future.

"It is a municipal hospital," said Condon. "I want its image to be a good one, not a bad one. It is getting out of hand."

Kane said he does not think the hospital picketing is a "gigantic movement but I will be glad to respond at the next board meeting."

Councillor John J. Lydon said he feels the Council "is the forum for discussion. The Board should be prepared to answer questions by city councillors at a Hospital Committee meeting."

Council Holds Up Revaluation Payment

The City Council Monday night listened to the revaluation problems of some Quincy homeowners and then moved to withhold final $25,000 payments to the company that did the last revaluation work.

Councillor Stephen J. McGrath moved the resolve to place a hold on the money until Municipal Appraisal Inc. of Fall River came up with a new procedure for hearing homeowner complaints.

McGrath said he was appalled by the fact that many property owners had their values raised for no apparent reason after the deadline had passed in which they could protest the values.

Dick Salvaggio of 35 Wesson Ave., West Quincy, told the Council hearing that he was satisfied with his original revaluation and did not seek a hearing.

A few days later, he said, he received a note saying his property had been further revalued up $4,900.

"Almost everyone on our street got the same increase," he said.

Salvaggio said he investigated the appeal process and found that of 3,292 who appealed, more than 3,000 had their values reduced and 288 remained the same.

At the same time, 731 homeowners who did not appeal had their values raised.

Chief Assessor Elmer

Fagerlund told the hearing that the valuations on three West Quincy streets

Wesson, Ames and Woodcliff Rd. — were wrong originally because of a computer error.

"The error was discovered after the hearing process began," he said. "It was obvious that the values originally placed on the properties were not closely related to the market values."

Council President James A. Sheets exchanged angry words with Ernest Mayo, vice president of Municipal Appraisal, over what Sheets called the company's refusal to keep appointments for reappraisals.

Sheets said he had received more than 50 telephone calls from residents indicating that they were told they would be contacted for an on-site inspection and no one showed up.

Mayo said his company made "every reasonable attempt" to keep the appointments.

"It is not our policy to make appointments and not keep them," he said. "These are not unusual problems. Frequently it is not possible for two men to get together at the same time."

"To say that there was an attempt to deceive the people of Quincy is patently false."

"You give me reasons I don't accept," retorted Sheets. "I don't believe you made a good faith effort. I have not seen any evidence of it."

Mayo said his company did not conduct appeals but held "informal hearings to collect additional information to do with the assessing process."

"Appeal is an abatement process," he said. "At that point the burden shifts back to the city."

Readers Forum Takes Issue With Articles On Abortion

(Editor's Note: Rev. Frederick Barr sent a copy of the following letter to The Quincy Sun for publication)

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Once again the Patriot Ledger, in two articles of the March 29, 1984 edition, has revealed a certain prejudice and bias concerning the important moral, social and political (in that order) issue of abortion.

The articles present a "pro-abortion" - now called "pro-choice" - emphasis in reporting.

First, while giving much print to pro-abortion positions of the various senatorial candidates, it gave little to the pro-life candidate or to the position of the other candidates who did not speak. Does not the public have the right to know?

Secondly, while reporting at great length the pro-abortion stand of a Baptist minister, you gave no statements of the ecumenical community: Protestant, Catholic, Orthodox or Jewish representatives which would be decidedly pro-life. One would almost think the Ledger thinks that Pro-Life is simple a "Catholic Thing" when it certainly is not.

This leads me to the final point, however. You more than emphasized in those two articles, "Catholics for abortion". I write this letter to clear up any misunderstanding you might have caused to your readers who are not Catholic. "Catholics for abortion" is nothing more than a mental construct or secularist propaganda. To be Catholic and for abortion, whether it be a total position or "Personally I'm against it but publicly for it" is the same as a Catholic not believing that the Pope is the successor of St. Peter, or a Catholic not believing in the Real Presence in the Most Blessed Sacrament.

It is the same as a Christian, of any denomination, not believing in Jesus being the Son of God or accepting His Lordship in their lives. "Catholics for abortion"?

No, sorry friends, one cancels out the other. Let not our brothers and sisters who share our pro-life stand worry. It cannot happen and will not happen. Accepting one position means turning one's back to the other.

Taking Advantage Of Teen-Agers

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
I have never written to a newspaper before, but recent actions during last week's storm have prompted me.

Having had three teenagers working at various part-time jobs, I have often felt that they are part of the working class that employers have unfairly treated.

Two of my children work in food related businesses. When they were dismissed early from school Thursday because of the storm, they went to work. When I finally arrived home after a harrowing two hour drive from work — a normal twenty minute drive, I was concerned for my children who I found to be at their jobs.

The employers at one place went home and left two teenagers alone for two hours — they had no lights or heat. At the other place of business, extra work was required — heavy lifting, etc. — because the closing up shift was unable to show up.

My point is that I had to make them take taxis home at the end of their shift — at no time did their managers etc. attempt to make sure that they would arrive home safely.

This total disregard for their safety and their loyalty to their jobs, just reinforces my feelings that our teenagers are being taken advantage of — they are cheap labor — no benefits, low pay — and since there are so many of them looking for jobs to help pay their expenses, I wonder what can be done to change these employers' callous attitudes.

The McIntyre Torch

James McIntyre is gone but those who were close to him, followed him and believed in his ideals and goals aren't going to let him be forgotten.

There have been no secret "summit" meetings to decide who will succeed him as leader of this group that has had tremendous influence on the city for nearly three decades — ever since McIntyre was first elected to the City Council in 1955.

And, no such meetings are planned.

The group is not an organized one. It came together because of its share the same political beliefs and community concerns.

James McIntyre became the natural leader. No one will really ever succeed him.

But, if there is some kind of a torch being passed to anyone it seems, to be heading into the hands of former Mayor Arthur Tobin, now clerk magistrate of Quincy District Court.

Tobin hasn't asked for it. Nor has he sought it. But he won't turn his back on it.

It appears friends and others in the group who would be touching with McIntyre on various matters, if he were alive, are now turning to Tobin.

McIntyre and Tobin, as many people know, were life-long, close friends — virtually from birth. They were born three days apart in 1930 — Tobin, May 22 and McIntyre May 25. Their mothers shared the same room at Quincy City Hospital.

When McIntyre's political star soared Tobin used to kid Mrs. McIntyre that she brought home the wrong baby. That he was her son and he really should have all the success that had come to McIntyre. She always got a kick out of it whenever he told her that.

McIntyre helped Tobin through law school and guided his political career that took him to the mayor's office and the state senate — both roads McIntyre had travelled before him.

After McIntyre's sudden death from a massive heart attack following major surgery March 7, it was Tobin who stood at Sheila McIntyre's side throughout the first painful hours, the funeral arrangements, the funeral and after the cemetery.

McINTYRE

TOBIN

Also with her were City Clerk John Gillis and James (Pete) Ricciuti and others who, like Tobin, are determined that McIntyre's memory be perpetuated.

Sheila McIntyre is a strong person as anyone who saw her at the deaths and funerals of first her son, William, and then so soon after, her husband. She was, as Tobin said, a "Rock of Gibraltar".

She is not only strong but she has a keen mind, a strong sense of loyalty and — determination.

It wouldn't surprise some really close to her to see her become more community — and, perhaps, politically — involved in tribute to her husband.

And, down the road a few years, their only surviving son, Charles, might just follow in his father's footsteps.

A student at military school, he is only 16 but has the maturity of one much older. He too is strong in spirit.

Though adopted — like the other children — Jim McIntyre WAS his father. He couldn't have loved, respected and admired him more if they were of the same flesh and blood. The other children felt the same way.

Charles doesn't wear a hat. But he wore one to the funeral and to the cemetery. It was his father's hat. It was his way of saying that his father still lives.

Quincy Sun TV Ch. 8 viewers won't soon forget that touching scene at Mount Wollaston Cemetery when Charles lingered alone at the grave site, blessed himself, fondly touched his father's casket and walked away — wearing that hat.

As the lone surviving son, he is the one to carry on the name — and to keep it alive.

And the torch may finally rest in his hands.

It's becoming dangerous for Quincy's political technicians to go out of the state on business.

A couple of years ago, Ron Kaulman, then the political director of the Republican National Committee, was injured in an auto accident in Dallas.

Recently, while in Marshall County, Iowa, organizing Democrats for Walter Mondale, Joe Shea suffered a broken wrist in an auto mishap.

It didn't stop Joe, though. Arm in a sling, he was ready to go to Louisiana to help organize that state for Mondale in the April primary.

be his third and "I'm better prepared for this one."

"I know that they don't just accept our figures," he said. "We have to prove them and back them up. We are prepared to get any information possible."

Tax bills for the first half of fiscal 1984 went out last fall, based on one half of a year's bill owed under the old $177 per thousand tax rate.

Second half tax bills will be lower for some, higher for others.

"As a rule of thumb," said Arthur Foley, the mayor's aide, "those whose property values increased 8.067 times under 100 per cent real will get roughly the same bill for the second half."

Those above 8.067 times will pay more, those under that figure will pay less.

The Council also tied up a loose end by clearing its agenda and committee hoppers of all financial orders so that they can be included in the 1984 tax rate.

Had they not been passed, the money would have had to be taken out of the $260,000 reserve fund that is being kept for emergencies.

On virtually all the financial orders, Councillors Joanne Condon and John J. Lydon Jr. voted "no."

Condon explained that the money, most of which was committed to negotiated pay raises, could not be spent anyway since the Council had not yet passed ordinance changes amending the salary scales.

Those who will be going with the mayor to the State House tomorrow are Foley, Auditor Robert E. Foy III, Assessors Elmer Fagerlund, Patricia Ceriani and James Papile, and Marion Fantuchio of the Assessor's Department.

State Report Shows Serious Crime Down Here

Serious crime was down in Quincy by 17.2 per cent last year, Sen. Paul D. Harold reports.

Statistics compiled by the State Department of Public Safety showed the Quincy decrease, which exceeded the statewide crime drop of 10.3 per cent overall.

Harold said the total number of crimes in Quincy in 1983 was 3,674, a drop of 764 from 1982, including 63 fewer car thefts, 448 fewer larcenies, 233 fewer burglaries and 24 fewer robberies.

The statistical report showed an increase of five forcible rapes and nine aggravated assaults. There were no murders.

The Public Safety report on serious crime includes statistics on murder, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny (theft) and car theft.

"A number of factors contributed to the decline," said Harold, "including improved enforcement methods, better awareness by judges and the public, and our continuing effort in the legislature to protect the rights of the victim and provide appropriate punishment to the criminal."

American Cablesystems To Pay Interest On Converter Deposits

American Cablesystems Corporation announces it will pay interest on Massachusetts subscribers' converter deposits effective this July 1.

The six per cent interest will be compounded and credited annually to cable subscribers' bills.

Upon termination of service, subscribers will receive their deposits plus appropriate interest in the form of a refund check or credit. Customers who subscribe for less than six months will not be eligible for interest, and interest will not be retroactive previous to July 1.

There is no legal requirement that interest be paid on converter deposits. David J. Keefe, Cable-systems Vice President said this policy was a positive response to customers' suggestions.

"We believe it is the responsible reaction to the advice of our subscribers," he said. "We've had great feedback on the policy so far." Subscribers will receive information regarding the specifics of the credit interest along with their bills in the next few months.

American Cablesystems Corporation is currently serving subscribers and constructing cable television systems in 17 Massachusetts communities. The company is among the top 50 cable operators in the country, serving more than 180,000 subscribers.

Council Acts On Employee Pay Raises

The City Council, by a vote of 5-2, acted on the result of 18 months of work by the Job Evaluation Committee and adopted a salary ordinance recommended by the committee with only minor changes, including some pay raises suggested by members of the Council.

Voting against the ordinance were Councillor Carl W. Anderson, who was protesting a $2,050 increase granted to City Manager William J. Deegan Jr., and Councillor David J. Crowley, who was against the low wages given some employees who were paid less than laborers.

ANDERSON

Increases above those recommended were voted for the assistant city solicitor, $500; the public works commissioner, $250; the auditor and director of finance, $500; the highway superintendent, $800; part-time assessors, $200; and the superintendent of forestry, $600.

A number of city employee groups who were seeking raises to the maximum pay of laborers ($60.50 a week) were expected to appeal their new salary scales.

TENANTS ASKED TO LEAVE

J. Gerard White, director of the Quincy Housing Authority, said 165 of the 400 tenants at the Snug Harbor project paid increased rents April 1 and between 30 and 35 others will be asked to vacate because their incomes have outgrown the limitations.

White said the average rent at Snug Harbor is now $44.90 a month while salary maximums for continued occupancy are set at $3,900 for a family with one child, $4,025 for a family with two children; and $4,200 for a family with three children.

TAX RATE CUT

City Manager Deegan estimated that the 1953 tax rate would drop between $4.25 and $5.25 as the result of a City Council action tapping the excess and deficiency fund to the tune of $178,000 for precisely that purpose. The 1952 tax rate was $53.80.

Christian Science Church Lecture

First Church of Christ, Scientist, Quincy, will sponsor a lecture by Ann C. Stewart Thursday, April 5, at 8 p.m. in the Milton Women's Club, 90 Reedsdale Road, Milton.

Mrs. Stewart, a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship, will speak on the topic, "You Can't Be Cut Off from God".

In her talk, she will point out that feelings of loneliness, isolation and estrangement from one's spouse, children or associates may actually stem from a deeper sense of estrangement from God.

Drawing from Biblical and contemporary examples, she will give instances in which individuals learned how to feel God's presence and love and what this means in facing every-

'Gospel For Dead' Topic At Bethany

There will be two worship services Sunday, April 8, in Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center, at 9 a.m. in the chapel and 10 a.m. in the sanctuary.

The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will preach the sermon at both hours on the subject, "Gospel For The Dead," based on scriptural texts from Mark 15:33-47 and 1 Peter 3:18-4:6.

Scripture readers will be William F. Greene in the chapel and Eleanor L. Shattuck in the sanctuary. Rev. Joel F. Huntington, associate minister, will serve as liturgist at both services.

During the sanctuary service, the chancel choir under the direction of Peter E. Krasinski, organist, will present two anthems from Stainer's "Crucifixion." The offertory will be "From the Throne of His Cross," and the second selection, "Cross of Jesus."

As the prayer response, the choir will sing an original composition by Krasinski entitled, "O God, Who Hearest Prayer."

The worship service will be broadcast by delayed-tape over WJDA, 1300 kc. at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Map Illustrates Squantum Sermon

The minister used a giant map of Jerusalem to preach his sermon Sunday at the early service of the First Church of Squantum.

Church pastor Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin illustrated his message entitled "Won't Anybody Stand Up for Jesus?" by reference to the sites in ancient Jerusalem where the events of Holy Week took place.

Earlier, he had used both the map and a filmstrip to teach the congregation about "The Three Trials of Jesus". A slide show with a recorded narration was also used later during the service.

Music was provided for worshippers by guitarists Mary Ruth Scott and Andrew Ogilvie. Ushers were Bonnie Adams and David Williams.

The sermon at the later traditional service was "On Being Rejected". Scripture readings used came from Psalm 118 and Isaiah 53.

For the offertory, the Chancel Choir sang "Were You There?" as arranged by Harry T. Burleigh. Hymns included "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name", "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross", "Before the Cross of Jesus" and "The Day of Resurrection".

Greeters were Shirley

Sunday School will be in session from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. with classes for pre-school through ninth grade. Nursery care will be provided for babies and young children.

Joel and Iora Huntington will lead a session on "Listening Prayer: Exploring the Spiritual Life," Sunday 2 to 3:30 p.m. in the Allen Parlor.

On Wednesday, April 11, at 7 a.m., there will be a Lenten devotional service in Bethany chapel, with Rev. Arnold giving the meditation on "Agonizing Prayer." Following the 30-minute service, a light breakfast will be served in the parish house.

Both the brief worship and the breakfast are open to the community. People can attend and leave for work by 7:45 a.m.

For information on any of Bethany's services or programs, contact Pastor Arnold or the church office at 479-7300.

Abp. Law Celebrant At Sacred Heart Mission Liturgy

Abp. BERNARD F. LAW

Archbishop Bernard F. Law will be celebrant and homilist at the Sacred Heart Parish Mission Liturgy.

In 1949, at the suggestion of the Catholic newspaper, his 47,500 Catholics.

Archbishop Law was born in Mexico in 1931, during the depression, to Bernard and Helen Law. His father was an Air Force Colonel and during his early childhood Bishop Law lived in many areas of the United States and South America.

As a youngster, he attended school in the Virgin Islands. He was graduated from the Charlotte Amalie High School in St. Thomas, where he was elected class president.

In 1949, at the suggestion of his high school teacher, who had studied at Harvard, he applied for admission to Harvard where he was admitted as a freshman in 1949.

It was while studying medieval history at Harvard that he was appointed vice-president of the Catholic Club under now-Bishop Lawrence Riley. He was also involved with St. Paul's Choir in Cambridge.

In 1953, Bishop Law decided to enter the priesthood. He studied at St. Joseph's Seminary, Louisiana for two years.

His mother, Helen, said that her son had spoken of becoming a priest at age seven.

After completing his two years at St. Joseph's Seminary, he went to the Pontifical College Josephinum in Columbus, Ohio, the only U.S. Seminary run by the Vatican. Law studied there for six more years.

He was ordained into the Holy Priesthood May 21, 1961. He was assigned to the Natchez-Jackson Diocese. His superiors recognized his talents and made him editor of the Catholic newspaper, The Mississippi Register.

In 1968, at the National Conference of Bishops in Washington, D.C., he was asked to direct its ecumenical affairs. In 1971, he was appointed Vicar General of the Natchez-Jackson Diocese.

In 1973, the then 41-year-old Monsignor Law was made bishop of Springfield-Cape Girardeau in Missouri.

His diocese encompassed a wide land area. He often drove five hours alone across southern Missouri. "The Buckle of the Bible Belt" to visit the parishes of his 47,500 Catholics.

Since coming to Missouri, Bishop Law turned around the floundering parochial school system, organized a soup kitchen for the poor in Springfield and adopted communities of Catholic Vietnamese refugees.

On the national level, the bishop directed the national program to bring Episcopal priests, some with wives, into the Catholic Church and helped write the Bishops Pastoral Letter on Nuclear Weapons.

In January 1984, Pope John Paul II, appointed him Archbishop of Boston.

At the recent Mass of his installation he said, "I've come to work God's will." He also said that being bishop of Boston or Springfield was one in the same, doing the same work. "I was sent here to be pastor and leader, and one of my primary missions will be working with kids." "I'll be with them, I'll speak with them, and I hope I will challenge them."

He has vowed to continue to speak out on public issues. "But I don't see myself as a politician. That's not my role. My role is to be a moral teacher."

"The moral values on which I will speak are not peculiarly Roman Catholic values. They are resonant in the Catholic, Protestant and Jewish communities."

"As a bishop, I see it as my task to teach. Within the community of faith, I will call you, who with me, are the Archdiocese to live out fully our profession of faith. The truths of faith must illumine all our decisions: we cannot tolerate the false notion that it can be 'yes' in some aspects of our life and 'no' in others."

"As church, we are meant to be a sign of God's love for all people. As church, we are meant to show forth the living presence of Christ in the world."

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

A pastor from a large city was asked to be the speaker in a small rural church, his son accompanied him. As the visiting pastor left the church after the program, he saw an empty collection plate and he put a dollar in it. After the coffee hour, the pastor and his son were ready to leave but an elder of the church stopped them.

"It is the tradition here," the elder explained, "that we give the visiting speaker whatever free-will offering is left in the collection plates. I am sorry to tell that all was collected was one dollar."

The pastor accepted the dollar (the same one he had given) and as they reached the car, the son said, "You know, Dad, if you had put more into it, you would have gotten more out of it."

Apart from the humor of this story, it indicates something worth remembering... You can get more out of life in general - if you put more into it...

Take care of your own funeral arrangements now. So your family won't have to later.

By not taking care of your own funeral in advance, you force someone close to you to do it for you.

For the person who accepts the responsibility, making arrangements at the time of need is likely to be filled with uncertainties. The uncertainty of not knowing what you really wanted. Your personal preferences. Perhaps, a favorite dress or suit. A special prayer. A clergyman with whom you are especially close. The uncertainties are endless.

The kindest thing you can do for your family is make your own funeral arrangements far in advance of need. That way everybody will know the kind of funeral you would like to have.

UNH Students Health Administration Interns At Milton Hospital

Two local students will learn about hospital administration through internship at Milton Hospital.

Michael Rowell of Quincy and James Silvasy of Canton, both third-year students at the University of New Hampshire, are spending this semester as interns in Health Administration and Planning at Milton Hospital.

Rowell, son of Quincy Police Capt. and Mrs. David Rowell, is a graduate of Archbishop Williams High School and Silvasy is a Canton High School graduate. The two began their internships in mid-January and will continue at the hospital until early May.

The internships are part of the requirements in UNH's Health Administration and Planning major, which leads to a Bachelor of Science Degree. Purpose of the internship is to familiarize students with the hospital setting and help them identify their own particular areas of interest in health administration.

Rowell's interest in health administration was sparked at Massachusetts General Hospital, where he was an orderly during the year before he started college. He is particularly interested in the planning aspect of hospital work. "Priorities are changing in health administration and I'm interested in looking at what plans are being made for the future," he said.

Milton Hospital first served as an internship site for the University of New Hampshire program last spring when the hospital had Cheryl Ayres of Wollaston as an intern.

Cosmetic Dentistry Now Common Term

By SUMNER HIRSBERG

Cosmetic or aesthetic dentistry are not unusual words but of late dentists seem to be using these terms more and more.

The question that arises is: "Haven't dentists been practicing cosmetics or aesthetics before?" The answer is, "of course". For years, dentists have tried to copy the shape and color of normal healthy teeth. They have imitated those beautiful dental structures that grow out of our gums. However, like all early scientific developments, the first attempts have a variety of results.

In order to improve any service or to develop a new product, there must be a need, then a demand, or someone must make the demand or need. In dentistry, an abnormal dental condition causes people to search and request that something be done. Fifty years ago, it was quite acceptable to place gold in the anterior teeth. A gold inlay was a common sight. Presently, it is rare to see any gold or metal in the front of the mouth. Front white fillings that were used, did not completely satisfy the scientific or aesthetic demands. Porcelain crowns were good restorations, but required much work and skill. A new porcelain crown called Cerestore fits better than the original porcelain crowns, is five times as strong, has no metal and is extremely aesthetic.

Through research and trial and error practice system, 1984 demands are being met. The filling material is much improved; and the dental profession has developed skills—the technical ability to use these new materials. "Bonding" is a new type of filling material. Darkened teeth can be blended to match adjacent teeth. Fillings are less conspicuous. Fractured teeth can be repaired immediately. Spaces can be closed.

The public is so conscious about appearance that "invisible bands" for straightening teeth have become a routine procedure. Adults do not resist wearing these new appliances. The wires and brackets are on the backs of the teeth—they do not show. This is one of the reasons that Dr. Steven Arena, A Quincy orthodontist, tells us that 20 percent of all orthodontic patients are adults. Orthodontists have also improved their technique, it takes less treatment time and the patient has less discomfort.

Even in the field of dental plastic surgery, changes in the jaws and face have been common occurrences. Abnormal jaws can be reduced or expanded; facial contours can be changed.

When dealing with cosmetics, the health of the oral structures and the patient must be considered. No aesthetic improvement is satisfactory, if health is impaired because of the work that has been done. Surely, compromises must be made. That is why a second opinion is frequently a good idea. The old story of "two heads are better than one" is most important when dealing with your body. All these developments are wonderful. Make sure they are for you and that you are receiving the exact treatment that you need.

At last! A Home Mortgage with no unpleasant surprises.

Colonial Federal's new
Fixed Payment Adjustable
Rate Mortgage
is now available.

The adjustable interest rate home mortgages offered by most banks today have one major drawback. Because the interest rates vary, your monthly mortgage payments can vary. They can go up and they can go down. You have no way of knowing what your payments will be in the future. That's enough to discourage you from buying a new home.

Colonial Federal doesn't believe that mortgage payments should act like elevators. So, to make it easier for you to finance your new home, we've designed a brand new adjustable rate mortgage which offers you guaranteed fixed monthly payments for the first ten years. After this, the mortgage may be continued, modified or paid off without penalty.

No unpleasant surprises means that you can borrow and budget with confidence, knowing that your payments are unconditionally guaranteed to remain the same for ten years. And, that's a long time to have peace of mind.

This new mortgage is available only from Colonial Federal Savings Bank. It's just one more example of our continuing dedication to giving our customers the very best in personal banking services.

For more information, visit one of our convenient offices today or call 617 471-0750.

Reisberg Kicks Off Ward I Campaign

Bernard Reisberg kicked off his campaign for city councillor from Ward I recently with a reaffirmation of his pledge to resolve the problem of sewage disposal and cleanup of Quincy Bay.

He said he has requested MDC Commissioner William Geary to prohibit any further connections to sewer lines that directly or indirectly feed into Nut Island until the problem is solved.

He also reaffirmed his positive views on the preservation of open space in Ward I "to preserve its beauty and wildlife."

The kickoff gathering at the Quincy Yacht club was attended by more than 300 supporters, including city and state officials, with Charles L. Shea as master of ceremonies.

Shea, a former city councillor, state rep and city auditor, introduced the Reisberg campaign captains, Robert Foley and Mrs. Edward Graham for her husband.

Reisberg called air quality control another major issue in the campaign, adding that he has pointed out to the Health Commissioner Dr. M. Grace Hussey the air quality problems at the Procter and Gamble plant.

He noted that Procter and Gamble is planning to expand its plant in Quincy Point and also is planning to implement new air quality control systems.

He promised to work for increased police presence in the neighborhoods.

Several Reisberg coffee hours have been scheduled throughout the wards. Contact Mary Lou Glaman for times and places.

Cheney Opposes Open Space Changes

Michael C. Cheney, a candidate for the City Council from Ward I, has pledged to oppose any measures that will weaken existing laws that protect open space.

"It is evident from talking to residents throughout Ward I that people do not want to see any changes in the present city ordinance that protects our open space," he said.

This public concern, he said, has been shown in the response to attempts by the Planning Department to introduce a measure to allow roads to pass through open space.

"Over 100 people came to City Hall several weeks ago on the night of a major snow storm to oppose this change," he said.

"It appears that the Planning Department now wants to designate two open space areas, one for publicly held land and the other for private.

"I have a problem with the new proposal for three reasons.

"One, an appeals process already exists to the Zoning Board of Appeals, therefore an ordinance change that would serve to weaken our present open space is not necessary.

"Two, separating open space areas may constitute spot zoning. This action could be illegal, therefore it deserves further study.

"Three, Ward I is presently unrepresented and, given the significant amount of open space in our ward, a proposed change that would diversely affect those areas is very untimely.

Cheney said he plans to testify at the public hearing on open space hearing, April 23, at City Hall.

Davis Urges Nut Island Limit To Headworks

Kevin Davis, a candidate for the City Council from Ward I, told a recent campaign reception that he is vehemently opposed to any use of the Nut Island Sewage Treatment plant for anything other than a headworks.

"The issue is not only of the daily discharge of raw sewage into the bay but that of the total quality of life in and around the bay and surrounding areas," he said.

Davis called air pollution another key issue.

The residents of Germantown, he said, have long felt that the Procter and Gamble plant has significantly contributed to the incidence of respiratory problems of area children.

Davis said he would encourage the City Council to require Procter and Gamble to re-evaluate and re-engineer its stack system prior to any approval or issuance of a permit to expand its plant.

Davis pledged to remain accessible as a councillor and, no matter what the result of the election, he would be active in those issues that affect the lives of all Ward I residents.

Davis announced that Sandra Davis and Herb Morgan would be co-directors of his committee with Joan Bombach designated secretary and Edward Davis treasurer.

Dan Boyd, Thomas Sullivan, Daniel Goldrick and Paul Davis are campaign coordinators.

Old Gold Request Continued By Board

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The License Board voted Tuesday to continue to April 17 a request for an old gold license for Rainbow's End Jewelers, Inc., 294 Water St., South Quincy.

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald requested more time to consider the request after Atty. Nathaniel Sherman told the board store owner Lawrence A. Dreyfus of Quincy has had a criminal record.

Sherman said that Dreyfus, who is requesting an old gold, jewelry, diamonds, silver and estate furniture license, is on probation.

Dreyfus purchased a firearm in New Hampshire five years ago after his store was robbed twice and he was pistol-whipped once, said Sherman.

Dreyfus brought the firearm to Massachusetts and was indicted by federal authorities, Sherman said.

"He was frustrated and bought the weapon to protect himself," said Sherman. "We've all made a lot of mistakes in life, most of us haven't been caught."

Jane Ford, director of Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services, said she had no problems with the business but was concerned with the condition of the building.

Sherman said his client could work with Ford to improve the building.

After the board went into executive session for about 10 minutes to discuss the criminal record, Police Chief Francis Finn made a motion to grant the license.

Finn explained that it the old gold license were granted, the police would have the opportunity to go into the business daily and keep track of the operation.

Finn also said that Dreyfus has operated the business for nine years without a problem.

"Every man has the right to earn a living," Finn said.

Finn withdrew his motion when no second was made.

MacDonald then made a motion to continue the request for two weeks. "I'd like more time to think it over," said MacDonald.

Planning your funeral together is a thoughtful expression of mutual love and concern.

Doing things together is so much better than doing them alone. Especially if the action is deeply personal and prompted by love and concern for each other.

Planning your funeral is really quite simple. It's a case of putting your desires down on paper in an orderly, business-like manner. This way you both know in advance that all the arrangements are taken care of. Pre-planning also serves to spare your family additional concern and anxiety at the time of actual need.

Norwell Brother, Sister Talent Show Winners

Py NANCY McLAUGHLIN
More than 500 people passed up the warm, spring weather outdoors Sunday to cheer on their favorite acts in the grand finale of the amateur talent contest at the Wollaston Theatre.

And even though a Norwell brother and sister were the top vote getters, all of the acts really came out winners as they shared in $830 in prize money.

Area residents ranging from youngsters to senior citizens watched, clapped and sang along to 16 acts before emcee Ed Bennett announced Harold and Karen Phillips as the $300 grand prize winners.

Harold, 15, skillfully played the saxophone to "Skater's Wax", ably accompanied on the piano by his sister, Karen, 13.

For their second number, "Misty", Harold displayed an equally fine singing voice.

"I feel great," said a smiling Harold as he graciously accepted congratulations after the show.

A high school sophomore, Harold said he would like to become a doctor one day.

Second prize of $200 went to the four-member Floor Patrol, a break dancing group from Quincy. Members include Paul Plante, Allan Quito, John Sullivan and Garfield Bright.

The group, which brought its own cheering section, was a real crowd pleaser as each member displayed his talent at dances such as The Moon Walk.

Arthur Purslow of Holbrook won $100 as third prize winner for his tap dancing.

Purslow, in black sequined vest, black pants and white shirt, had the audience applauding during his numbers.

The other 13 acts shared in the remaining prize money.

During the show which lasted nearly three hours, acts were judged on personality, stage presence, natural ability and performance.

Judges for the grand finale were Win Bettinson, long-time WJDA announcer; William Flavin of Curry College, and Bernadette MacPherson of Emerson College.

Among those enjoying the show were Annalee Johnson and Tertv Savoie, both Quincy residents who said they enjoyed seeing Floor Patrol and other local acts.

Bonnie Allen of Braintree said she enjoyed seeing live entertainment.

Dorchester resident Jack Morris agreed. "I love it. The show is wonderful."

After the show was over, Bennett, who also produced and directed the shows which began 11 weeks ago, stood on stage and gazed over the footlights at the now empty theatre.

"I've never worked with a greater bunch of people in all my years," said the tired but smiling Bennett.

New Rehabilitation Program At Quincy Court

A bold, new rehabilitative approach toward violent and serious young offenders will begin soon at Quincy District Court following the award of a $60,000 grant from the Massachusetts Committee on Criminal Justice.

The Tourniquet Sentencing and Treatment Project will use some of the same techniques employed in the court's nationally recognized Earn-It program but these juveniles will be under virtually constant supervision day and night.

"Juveniles, especially those who are involved in crime sprees, live active, if destructive lives, hour by hour. Any intervention program, limited to only a few hours or contacts per week, no matter how competent, simply offers too little, too late," said Andrew Klein, chief probation officer and director of the project.

"Because of serious overcrowding in their facilities, the Division of Youth Services (DYS) is forced to turn out young people sooner than they should."

"Statistically, 34 percent of high risk juveniles commit a new crime within the first month of their court appearance."

If high-risk delinquents can successfully complete six months of community based treatment, state probation department figures show recidivism is cut to 11 percent," Klein concluded.

Under the intensive probation program participants will work six days a week, — all day or after school — and return to their homes under a monitored curfew or house arrest.

The Quincy program is one of the 21 community projects to receive more than $800,000 in federal juvenile justice money through the Committee on Criminal Justice.

Failure on the job or during the curfew will mean a quick trip to court for some "tourniquet sentencing," an approach developed locally by Quincy's presiding justice, Albert L. Kramer.

Minor infractions might mean an earlier curfew or extended work hours, but serious violations of the rules will immediately result in incarceration at a DYS detention facility.

Each month, approximately five youths who have committed serious or violent crimes in Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree, Milton, Holbrook, Cohasset or Randolph, will be referred to the program.

While under supervision, the participants will also undergo a comprehensive assessment, including a two-day drug/alcohol evaluation.

Statewide, grants were awarded to programs offering specialized family services, drug and alcohol education and prevention; in-school suspension and drop out prevention; community mediation; and programs for serious and violent juvenile offenders.

Those were the areas that some 300 Massachusetts professionals in juvenile justice reported were the main service gaps in dealing with delinquency. The Quincy program is the only one of its kind to be funded.

All of the programs are designed to run for three years but each applicant will have to reapply in each of the following years. Refunding will be based on the monitoring of the program by juvenile justice specialists from the Committee on Criminal Justice.

AGE AND THE GRIM REAPER

Murder is the number two cause of death among Americans aged 15 to 24 (motor vehicle accidents are number one). Suicide is number three.

Accidents are the leading cause of death among all persons 1 to 38 years of age. Falls kill more people aged 75 and over than in all the age groups combined.

Drivers between the ages of 20 and 24 are more likely to be involved in a fatal traffic accident than drivers in the under 20 age group.

The death rate from poisoning is highest in the 25 to 44 age group, and lowest in the 5 to 14 age group. (Children under 5 have the second lowest rate.)

Adults aged 75 and over suffer almost twice the death rate from suffocation by choking as any other age group, including infants.

Gregoire Wants More Police Protection In Ward I

Mary Crowley Gregoire, a candidate for the City Council from Ward I, told a candidates' night recently that violent incidents, like the recent attack on five sailors in Houghs Neck, cannot be tolerated by the community under any circumstances.

As a city councillor, she said, she will work for more police protection, including daily evening foot patrols in Germantown and a stronger police presence in any neighborhood experiencing problems with vandals, gangs or crime.

"As a lifelong resident of Ward I, I know the importance of good city services, including police and fire protection and public works," she said.

"As a city councillor, I will work hard to maintain and improve city services on every street in the ward."

Raiders Open April 14

9 Veterans Give North Depth, Experience

By TOM SULLIVAN

When North Quincy's baseball team opens its season April 14 against Abp. Williams at 10 a.m. at Adams Field, Coach Charlie Bunker will have the most experienced team he has ever had.

Among the Raiders' 18 varsity players are nine veterans, including an all-star pitcher and two players who batted over .500 in the Suburban League last season.

"We have the experience all right and the only big question marks are catching and second base," Bunker said. "I feel our first five batters will be as good as there are in the league, the defense should be all right and I feel our pitching will be more than adequate."

John Comeau is the number one pitcher and was 2-0 last year with two fine games. Jack Outerbridge pitched well with the junior varsity and gained a lot of experience with Morrisette Legion last summer. Hogan, who will start at shortstop, will pitch here and there and come on in tough situations.

Other pitchers who look good are lefty Steve Higgins, Jack Bolster and Nick Gelsomini.

"All of them have looked good and I think the pitching will hold up," said the veteran coach.

Bunker hopes Mike Gill, backup to the graduated John Kozlowski, will fill the bill catching. He will be backed up by Richie Brooks.

Bolster will start at first base and Mike Cocce, Dave Zurums and Scott Messina are battling it out for second base.

Hogan, who played third base last season, has moved to shortstop and Mark Hubbard and Ken Runge are the third basemen.

The outfield looks strong with Higgins, Chris Bunker, Brian Gibbons, Paul Ryan, Vic DiGraviox and Keith Smith.

Last season Bunker and Bolster each batted over .500 in the Suburban League and Hogan was named an all-star pitcher.

North's first five batters will be Higgins, Hogan, Bunker, Bolster and Smith and Bunker feels they will come up with plenty of hits and RBI's.

North's last season tied Brockton for second place in the league but, after leading, 5-4, going into the last inning, lost, 6-5, in a playoff and thereby lost a tournament berth.

The Raiders will open their league season on April 25 at Newton North at 7 p.m. after facing Abp. Williams again April 16, Natick and Weymouth North in non-league games.

They have played several practice games.

Leo Donovan is again North's junior varsity coach and Ron LaQuaglia is the ninth grade coach.

MARK BOUSSY, left, and Tom Benson of Quincy, have been awarded varsity letters in hockey at Norwich University. Boussy, a sophomore, had nine goals and 11 assists this season. A year ago he was voted Rookie of the Year by his teammates. Benson, a freshman, had 10 goals and six assists as Norwich had a fine 17-9 record and made the ECAC Division 2 playoffs for the seventh year in a row.

Only 2 Returning Starters

Almost Brand New Team At Quincy

If Quincy's baseball team hopes to improve on last season's 6-11 record, it will be up to an almost entirely new team.

When the Presidents open next Tuesday against Don Bosco at 3:30 p.m. at Adams Field, veteran coach Bud Mosher will have only two returning starters.

"We are really starting from scratch," said Mosher. "Senior Mike Notarangelo, a starting southpaw pitcher and center fielder, and junior Joe Conti, shortstop, are the No. 2 pitcher, are our only returning starters. We have some fine looking newcomers but they have had no varsity experience and we are facing another really tough schedule."

Mark Chambers, who saw a little varsity action, will be the starting second baseman.

Joe Cullen, who shows promise, will be at first base and Pat Calabro at third. Mike Dracchio, a utility infielder, may fill in at shortstop for Conti when he is pitching.

Rich Kelly and sophomore Larry Taglieri are utility infielders who also will pitch. Taglieri looks like the top relief pitcher.

The outfield hopefuls, in addition to Notarangelo, are Gerry Frazier, Mark Callahan and Morgan O'Shea.

Joe Ciardi looks like the starting catcher and shows good potential, while Mike Hays will be the backup catcher.

One of the top prospects is a freshman, Steve Austin, who is expected to stick with the varsity and see a good deal of action.

"This kid looks good and can play the outfield and second base and also looks like a good backup catcher," Mosher said.

The Presidents, who have had several practice games, will make their annual trip to Cape Cod for three five-inning games on Saturday. They will play Weymouth North Friday, April 13, at 3:30 p.m. at Adams Field and will open their Suburban League season at Brookline on April 23.

Bob Sylvia is again the Presidents' junior varsity coach and George Peachey is the ninth grade coach.

North Rally Falls Short In Opener

A rally by the North Quincy High School baseball team in the last of the 10th inning fell one run short as the Raiders bowed to Thayer Academy in their season's opener at Bishop Field in Montclair. Al Elkhill went all the way on the mound for North.

The Raiders took a 5-2 lead at the end of six innings, thanks largely to Lea Alberti's bases-loaded single, but Thayer, led by Lou Marchegiano, brother of heavyweight boxing champ Rocky Marciano, tied it in the eighth and won it with two runs in the 10th.

The North Quincy lineup included: Densmore ss, Crowley cf, Mullin 3b, Alberti lf, Rodgers rf, Coolidge 1b, Spooner c, Nogueira 2b, Elkhill p, White ph.

DONOVAN PLEASED

Dick Donovan of Quincy, pitcher for the Braves, said he was pleased with the club's shift from Boston to Milwaukee, even though "I will miss all my friends I could see up there when the team was home in Braves Field."

"I really feel I'll be a better pitcher for the change," he said. "I admit I was tense every time I went to the mound in my home town. I knew a load of people up there and the pressure was on me real good. I'm freer now."

NEWTON WALKS TO WIN

Six Quincy High School pitchers limited Newton to only five hits but they issued 16 bases on balls, hit two batters and uncorked three wild pitches to wind up on the short end of an 8-3 score in the opening game of the season. Dave Shepherd and Henry Berry had doubles.

NORTH WINS TITLE

Jack Crowley threw in 17 points and Bob Walsh dominated the boards as the North Quincy Independent Juniors basketball team whipped the Winthrop Rainiers 54-42 to win their division of the Charlestown Boys Club tournament.

QJC Opens With 4 Games In 5 Days

By PETE ZOIA

Quincy Junior College fielded its first baseball team in 1969 and has had only one coach—Dave Burke.

Burke will be directing the Jaguars again as they open with four games in five days next week following a practice game with North Quincy High on Monday. QJC will host Blue Hills Regional Tuesday, Bristol Community College Wednesday and New Prep Thursday, all at 3:15 at O'Rourke Field, and will be at Blue Hills Saturday morning at 10.

"We haven't been able to practice much outdoors with the weather so bad, but this happens every year with our early start," said the veteran coach.

Burke faces a rebuilding job with only four players who saw any action a year ago.

"Pitching will be our greatest problem," Burke added. "We have two veterans in Danny Dunn of Quincy and Joe Smith of Dorchester, who should do well, but we'll have to call on some of the other players to pitch as well as play other positions."

Russ McIntyre of Braintree and Tony Chiochio of Quincy will share the catching chores and the one not starting will probably play first base or in the outfield.

At second base Bill Finn of Weymouth and Tommy O'Connell of Hingham are the hopefuls and last year's standout, Steve Ondrick of Weymouth, is back at shortstop. Brian Miller of Quincy or Bob McCabe of Abington will take care of third base.

There is plenty of competition for the outfield spots. The lone returnee is Rich Venti of Braintree. Other candidates are Mike Jahneigh and another Bob McCabe, both of Quincy, Bob Ciulla of Hull and Steve McDonald of Scituate.

Most of the players also work and this causes a problem for Burke who, on many occasions, doesn't know who is available until game time.

Despite the problems, Burke is optimistic as always and feels this year's club will continue the winning ways of the past.

"We've always had to shuffle our lineups after who we have but we always managed to do well," he concluded.

two. Catlin Sheils rebounded well and played strong defense and Kristen Luosey, Kristin Bruno, Christine Delaney, Jennifer Bouley and Sharon Southwick all played well on defense.

For Sacred Heart Laurie Phalon, its quick guard, had six points and Barbara Holtzman, the team's leading scorer, had the other four.

St. John's Girls Win Junior Title

St. John's Junior girls' basketball team won the YMCA-Church League championship with a 16-10 victory over Sacred Heart.

St. John's defense was too tough for the Sacred Heart girls as the winners took a 6-2 halftime lead. High scorer for St. John's was Deirdre Murphy with six points, Debbie Panaro had five, Kellene Duffy three and Hope Spooner

He received as many votes as the league's Most Valuable Player.

Co-Capt. Paul Ryan of North was named to the second team and Quincy's Denis Downing was selected on the third team. Both

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

AVOID IN-HOUSE FLOOD

QUESTION: I am no plumber. I hire specialists for that. My wife says I should learn something about it in case of emergency. Do you agree?

ANSWER: Your wife is right! You could avoid a major catastrophe by knowing one item of plumbing — the location of the main water shut-off valve. Any other problem can wait, but if a water pipe bursts under pressure, at least you can turn off the main valve and stop the flow of water. You'll be amazed at how much water can spew out of a burst pipe while you're waiting for a plumber. Water can do tremendous damage to a home and you can help avert much of it by quick action.

AVOID CATASTROPHE by knowing just one item of plumbing.

THE VIDEO CONNECTION.

by James S. Leach

HOLLYWOOD — I remember years ago when my father warned me of the evils of risque movies. Back in my dad's day, these X-rated flicks were called "smokers." This past week, I finally realized what he was talking about.

You see (cough, cough) as I was covering the Erotic Film Awards at the famous Coconut Grove in LA's Ambassador Hotel (cough, cough) I found myself one of many victims of an erotic film protester's smoke bomb.

Just as Hollywood's hottest SInational stars, all decked out in various forms of high-fashion dress, and undress, were about to be honored for that little bit X-tra they contribute to their performances, somebody dropped the bomb, and the festivities went up in smoke.

When the smoke, and my contacts cleared, "The Devil In Miss Jones Part II," won hands down, or is that pants down, as this year's best (or worst, depending on how you look at it) film.

Elsewhere in Tinseltown, NBC has announced that Michael Landon has begun production on a possible new series for the network called "Highway to Heaven." Reunited with his "Little House" costar, Victor French, Landon will direct, executive-produce, and star in this proposed anthology based on an angel sent back to earth who moves from location to location interacting with weekly guest stars.

My video connection in Dallas has seen a promo trailer for the upcoming Embassy Pictures release, "The Bear," based on the life of the late Alabama football coach, Bear Bryant, and predicts another Oscar nomination for Gary Bussey who plays the title role. Bussey, a few years ago, gained worldwide fame and an Oscar bid with his outstanding portrayal of rock legend Buddy Holly.

Who's the hottest woman on television today? Joan Collins? Donna Mills? How about Victoria Principle? None of these beautiful ladies come close to Clara Peller. Clara who? Maybe the name doesn't ring a bell, but if I tell you she's the sweet little old lady with the big voice who wants to know "Where's the beef?" I'll bet you know right away who I'm talking about.

Clara, a diminutive lady in her 80's, has won the hearts of hamburger lovers all over America as she barks her famous question in two commercials for Wendy's being aired all across the land these days. She is as hot as the sizzling burgers she touts.

Clara Peller fan clubs are sprouting up in almost as many places as you see Clara Peller T-shirts. She is this town's hottest interview (after Michael Jackson and Tom Selleck) and she is being wooed by the producers of every talk show for guest appearances.

I predict it won't be long and some network genius will come up with a new show called (what else?) "Where's the Beef?" (starring who else?) America's favorite new star, Clara Peller. Kind of sounds like a detective show to me. Each week Clara dressed in a trench coat could search for the missing beef. She could work out of a dingy office located in an old building in HAMBURG, Germany, where she finds herself caught up in dangerous PICKLES as she attempts to CATSUP with a band of ruthless BURGER-lers.

One thing for sure, Clara Peller is proving you're never too old to cut the mustard.

Got a question for your favorite star? Hit track 'em down for you. Send questions and comments to James S. Leach c/o THE VIDEO CONNECTION, 22761 Pacific Coast Hwy., Malibu, Calif. 90265.

Over $84 Million

Quincy Savings Sets Mortgage Loan Volume

The Quincy Savings Bank set a record in mortgage loan volume in 1983 with more than $84 million in new originations. The bank recorded a total of 1,237 mortgage loans.

"The total loan volume was the result of favorable interest rates and pent-up demand as well as the bank's ability to offer such a wide range of mortgage products to our customers," said Philip J. Greenspan, vice president and mortgage officer.

The Quincy Savings Bank offers both variable and fixed-rate mortgages for owner and nonowner-occupied properties, as well as commercial real estate and construction loans.

"By using the lending power of the bank in conjunction with secondary market operations, the bank is able to structure financing to satisfy the requests of most borrowers," said Greenspan.

He called the past year "the most successful in the history of Quincy Savings Bank."

Fixsen & Mavrides Open Quincy Law Office

Amey Pellenberg Fixsen and Marcia Mavrides, both of Quincy, two 1983 graduates of New England School of Law, were among the group of new attorneys recently sworn into the Massachusetts bar.

Within weeks of their swearing-in, the two attorneys opened a practice at 1354 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Fixsen and Mavrides

both were editors of the New England Journal on Criminal and Civil Confinement while in law school. The Journal covers the law relating to prisoners, prisoners and civil confinement situations.

The pair's practice, however, will not be limited to criminal matters, according to Mavrides, who said she and her partner would also handle general civil matters.

While in law school, Fixsen was ranked near the top of her class and received a New England School of Law Trustee Scholarship. A Dean's List student every semester of her course of study, she earned her Juris Doctor degree with Cum Laude honors. A native of New York, Fixsen is a graduate of the State University of New York.

Mavrides earned her undergraduate degree from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, and taught school for three years before pursuing her law degree.

Preliminary work to draining Swingle's Quarry in West Quincy for the body of Paul Gooch, 17, of Brockton will begin during the next seven days.

Mayor Francis X. McCauley announced

Quarry Drain Work Starts In 7 Days

Tuesday that he has signed a contract with J. F. White Contracting Co. of Newton to drain the quarry in eight months and fill the hole in 15 years.

The primary purpose of the quarry work will be to recover the body of young Gooch, who drowned last June 20 after he jumped from a 50-foot ledge into the more than 300-foot deep quarry.

An earlier attempt to drain the quarry ended last Sept. 9 when a section of the granite wall collapsed after nearly 130 feet of water had been drained.

The contract signed this week provides that J.F. White will start preparing the site for draining within seven days.

When filling begins, the company will pay the city $1.50 a ton for fill deposited in 1984, $1 a ton in 1985 and 50 cents a ton for the remaining years until the hole is filled.

The filling must be completed in 15 years.

The preliminary election will be held May 15 to trim the field to two candidates for the runoff in the general election June 12.

State Approves $21.95, $32.50 Tax Rates

The State Department of Revenue has approved tax rates of $21.95 for residential property and $32.50 for commercial property in Quincy for fiscal 1984.

Mayor Francis X. McCauley said Chief Assessor Elmer Fagerlund received word from the State House late Tuesday afternoon.

Documentation supporting those tax rates was delivered to the State House last Thursday just after the City Council gave its approval to McCauley's tax classification plan.

McCauley Proposes $75.8 M Budget

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Francis X. McCauley will present a city budget for fiscal 1985 totalling between $75.8 and $75.9 million to the City Council at its next meeting, Tuesday, April 17.

This is up $3.6 million or 5 per cent above the fiscal 1984 city expenditures.

The size of the budget will have no direct effect on the tax rate for fiscal 1985 since that is based on the city's tax levy which is limited by Proposition 2 and one half to about $47 million in 1985.

McCauley said the major increases in the budget are in the fixed charges, such as debt service, pensions, health insurance and raises for city employees.

"There will be no layoffs," said the Mayor, "although in a few areas there are vacant positions that will not be filled. We have pretty well bottomed out on budget cuts."

McCauley declined to give specific figures in the budget, saying that he prefers to let members of the City Council see them first next week.

He said he has no plans to take the budget to the Council personally but that he will send a brief budget message including some observations of the effect of Prop 2 and one half over the past years.

"I think the Council will find them interesting," he said.

QEA To Sue Mayor For Retired Pay

The Quincy Education Association has instructed its legal counsel to initiate court action against Mayor Francis X. McCauley demanding salary increases for teachers who retired during the past school year.

The salary increases for 1979 were negotiated by the School Committee but never funded by the Mayor.

"While every person employed by the School Department during 1979-80 is morally owed that salary increase," said QEA President Mary Curtin, "we are speaking at this point to a group of teachers who retired under a specific section of the contract.

"The association cannot understand the Mayor's refusal to honor the QEA contract and will not accept such unconscionable behavior toward our members."

McCauley declined to comment on the suit.

P & G Doesn't Need 7 Day License

Procter & Gamble Co. in Quincy does not need a special permit for a seven day a week operation, according to Assistant City Solicitor Joseph A. MacRitchie.

Procter & Gamble plant engineer Ken Thode told the License Board at an informal session recently that the parent company is conducting a feasibility study on locating a manufacturing process at the Quincy plant.

The process would require seven-day-a-week operation of that part of the business, said Thode.

Thode said the manufacturing process would bring a $6 to $10 million investment and 35 more jobs to the local plant.

Police Chief Francis Finn told Thode he would investigate the state law regarding seven day operations.

The license board voted Tuesday to support Procter & Gamble's endeavors.

Council Opposes Chlorination Plant

The City Council last week went on record as opposing construction of a new $2 million chlorination building at the MDC's Nut Island Sewage Treatment Plant.

In letters to the MDC, the Environmental Protection Agency and Gov. Michael Dukakis, the Council demanded that "our state tax money be spent in more beneficial ways by the MDC."

Geary, Hussey Optimistic On Wollaston Swimming

Take it from those who know best...there will be swimming at Wollaston Beach this summer.

"Last summer," said MDC Commissioner William Geary, "we improved conditions at the beach dramatically, even though there were about six days when the beach was posted as hazardous to swimming."

"I'm hoping we can improve this summer."

"We had a lot of rain this spring," said Health Commissioner Dr. M. Grace Hussey, "it is drier, then you don't get as much storm water flowing into the sewer system. That is very helpful."

"Pollution at Wollaston Beach is based on what happens at Nut Island," said Mayor Francis X. McCauley, "and Nut Island is in better condition than in previous years."

"The key factor is if we have a dry summer."

All the interest in swimming at Wollaston Beach was roused last week when Geary was quoted as telling the Quincy Citizens Association that all swimming would have to be banned there this summer.

It turned out that Geary did really say that.

"We're hoping for some improvement," Geary told The Quincy Sun.

"The condition of the water in Quincy Bay is very dependent on weather conditions and conditions along some 5,300 miles of sewer lines in cities and towns in our district."

"Any of those factors mean we could have difficulty in terms of water quality."

"We are making improvements at Nut Island and Deer Island and points in between. Last summer we improved dramatically although even with that improvement there were about six days when the beach was posted as hazardous for swimming."

Geary noted that last summer the MDC started a program of sampling water at Wollaston Beach on a daily basis.

"If the quality fell below a certain point we let the citizens know that swimming was hazardous. We were pleased that that only occurred on six days last year. We hope to continue the program this year."

Dr. Hussey noted that some improvements have been made at Nut Island Sewage Treatment Plant, including "better chlorination facilities. This tends to cut down the bacteria count."

License Board Continues Package Store Transfer

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The owners of Presidential Liquors in Quincy Sq. think the Pilgrim Plaza in Quincy Point is a good place for the store to relocate.

But a number of neighborhood residents say they don't want a package store in their back yard.

The License Board voted Tuesday to continue to April 24 the request for transfer of the retail all alcoholic license for Presidential Liquors from 1222 Hancock St. to 21 Scammell St.

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald suggested the continuance so that board members could consider the request. City Clerk John Gillis did not attend the meeting.

Atty. Carl Johnson told the board the package store has been located since 1977 in the Quincy Sq. building owned by the Quincy Lodge of Elks.

The Elks have moved to the Myles Standish School in Squantum and are selling the Quincy Sq. building, so Presidential Liquors must find a new location, said Johnson.

"Many hours have been expended in finding a new location," said Johnson who explained that the new location would be convenient for customers of nearby Shaw's.

Johnson said that owners John J. Martin and Charles O'Leary are investing $35,000 in the new location which has off-street parking.

One of the two men would always be on the premises, said Johnson, and "they would do their utmost to see the business is operated properly."

Johnson gave the board a petition signed by 200 customers favoring the new location.

Ward Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro said he felt he couldn't legally oppose the request because it is just a transfer within the ward.

"But we'll be keeping an eye on them, (if the license is granted)" said DeCristofaro, "and the first time there is a problem, we'll be back at them."

Charles R. Martensen, 90, of nearby Martensen St., said that he built the street bearing his name 50 years ago.

Martensen said there are about a dozen homes in the immediate area and the owners are "deadly against" the package store's new location.

"A liquor store will degrade the community," said Martensen who pointed out that there are woods behind his home which would be attractive to youths who want a place to drink.

Martensen's daughter, Stacia LaFavre of the Hospital Hill section, said that she was also "strongly against" the new location.

Maureen T. Murphy, Loretta Palmacci and Teresa Palmacci, all of 38 Scammell St., wrote to the board opposing the request.

Police Capt. Paul Nestor, who sat on the board in place of Police Chief Francis Finn, said that the problems in the Quincy Point location would be completely different from those in Quincy Sq.

"Faxon Park is a major concern to the police department," said Nestor. "If liquor is determined to have come from your establishment, you'll hear from the police dept."

MacDonald said that there is off-street parking on Scammell St. but not at the old location.

"I don't think it will be a plus for the neighborhood," said Fire Chief Edward Barry, acting board chairman.

HN Residents To Meet Again On Street Crime

Houghs Neck residents, seeking a solution to street crime and public drinking, have tentatively scheduled a meeting for Sunday, April 29, at 6 p.m. in the Houghs Neck Community Center to organize for the campaign.

David McMillan, chairman of Citizens Against Street Violence, told the initial meeting last Sunday that his committee needs the help and support of everyone in the community and he asked for volunteers to join.

"We want to try to help remove some temptations from the streets of Houghs Neck," he said, "so that the next generation will not be tempted by the same type of activities that have been allowed for the past five or six years.

"We have to aim for the 11 through 15-year-olds. Older than that we may not be able to help them. We want to give them something to replace hanging around the street corners."

Police Capt. William Murphy told the meeting that the problem is not unique to Houghs Neck.

"But the Neck is almost cut off from the rest of the city," he said. "Area kids don't have many places to go and they congregate in certain spots down here."

"There is drinking going on down here, particularly in the summer, as in other areas of the city. It's a real

CAPT. WILLIAM MURPHY tells meeting of Houghs Neck residents that public drinking in the area, particularly in summer, is a real problem for police.

"We have beefed up some of our patrols here. I'd like to be able to say that we will keep them there but there are other areas we will have to move them into.

"There are a lot of good kids in the Neck. They are just looking for something to do, some place to go. This committee is headed in the right direction."

One man who attended the meeting said he saw a man go down to the beach off Edgewater Drive at 10 a.m. on Saturday with a case of beer and give it to five or six 17-year-olds in a boat. "He didn't care," he said. "This isn't right."

"We want to give them a message," said McMillan.

DAVID McMILLAN asks support of the Houghs Neck Community in removing temptations from the area's streets in fight against violence and public drinking.

"Public drinking in this area is no longer allowed. We are not trying to harass the kids or get them arrested. We want to help straighten them out."

One teen-ager questioned the sincerity of those who attended the meeting.

"People want to leave Houghs Neck now," he said. "All the kids I talk to don't want nothing to do with the neighborhood. You're pleasing the adults and not the kids."

"We are going to change that," said McMillan. "We are going to find something for you to do."

Wollaston Cemetery In Good Condition

Mayor Francis X. McCauley toured Mount Wollaston Cemetery Monday and pronounced it in good condition, adding that "our goal is to have it in first class condition by the middle of May."

The Mayor spent about 45 minutes in the cemetery with Cemetery Supt. J. Vincent Smyth and Richard J. Koch, who has overall charge of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments. "I wanted to see the general condition of Mount Wollaston," said McCauley. "It's only seven weeks to Memorial Day. I thought conditions were pretty good for this time of year."

"There are a lot of tree branches down due to the recent storm and there are a lot of leaves left over from the winter. I have requested that they be removed so the grass can grow."

"We want a cemetery that we can be proud of. For years it has been in poor condition. Last year we brought in new equipment, filled some vacancies and reorganized the department."

"It is in good shape now. We want to keep it that way."

Favors Prowse Farm Taking

The City Council last week passed a resolution in favor of the taking of Prowse Farm in Canton by eminent domain.

Prowse Farm at the foot of the Blue Hills has been the center of controversy for the past several years since it was purchased by Codex Corp. as a site of its interation headquarters.

Environmentalists feel that the land, site of an old horse farm, should be preserved as open space.

Sheet Metal Stolen

A 1981 Chevrolet pickup truck containing $500 worth of sheet metal was reported stolen Monday from the Quincy Sheet Metal Co.,

Auto-Bus Accident To Test Civil Defense

A number of high school students will be "injured" Saturday, April 14, in a bus-automobile accident on the Long Island Bridge - all in interest of testing Civil Defense preparedness.

The exercise, called a mass casualty incident drill, will take place at 10 a.m. at the Boston Fire Department training site on Moon Island.

According to the scenario, a bus with 30 students aboard, will swerve on the bridge roadway to avoid an oncoming car, mount the curbing and roll over on the vehicle.

There will be 24 casualties, including 10 multiple trauma victims, to be cared for by medical personnel with the help of a helicopter from New England Life Flight of Worcester.

The entire exercise, which is expected to take from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., will be taped by Quincy Cablesystems and will be edited down for showing to the public at a later date.

Palm Sunday Food Drive To Benefit Food Center

A food drive will be conducted Palm Sunday, April 15, to benefit the Quincy Emergency Food Center.

Donations -- either non-perishable foods or checks payable to the center -- may be delivered to the Squantum Community Center or to the Star of the Sea Church basement, between 8:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.

Goods may also be delivered to Star of the Sea Church Saturday, April 14, after the 4 p.m. Mass.

The Quincy Emergency Food Center is a non-profit institution which helps feed the hungry and the homeless in the city.

Each month, a limited staff and a group of volunteers provide food for some 150 families in Quincy.

Last month, for example, the center distributed 7,000 loaves of bread and prepared 1,600 hot meals for the malnourished.

Supplies are extremely low at the center. Donations of either food or cash, of any size, are genuinely needed during this Easter season.

Readers Forum Shocked At Destruction Of White Birch Trees

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

In a recent walk through the conservation land on Fenno Street, off Quincy Shore Boulevard, I was shocked to see the results of the wanton destruction of 15 large white birch trees.

My understanding is that these trees were planted by the city in recent years at considerable expense and effort.

The location is obviously heavily used as an after hours drinking spot. May I suggest that the land be posted against use after dusk, and more importantly that our Police Department enforce the posting?

Perhaps strict action can save guard taxpayer expenditures and prevent the malicious degradation of Quincy's limited open spaces. It would be nice to save some greenery for posterity.

When the perpetrators of this deed are caught a fine of at least $1,000 would not at all be unreasonable in light of the extent, and deliberateness of the damage done.

SEATBELTS WEAR OUT

The National Bureau of Standards found that 60 per cent of well-used seatbelts that were from three to ten years old were tested and found to be unsafe based on Federal standards for seat belts.

Dirt, dust, rubbing and even sunlight can break down the strength of a seat belt. If you slam the door on a seat belt or get it caught in moving the seat back and forth, the effective strength is weakened. Oil spilled on a seat belt will also weaken it.

Whenever you see signs of wear or decomposition on a seat belt, it should be replaced. Continued adjustment can be a major cause for wear. Inertia reels should also be checked by driving about 10 miles per hour and hitting the brakes hard (on an empty road or large, open empty parking lot). If the reel doesn't hold you in, have it tested and replaced.

You Couldn't Help But Like Him

You couldn't help but like John Sullivan. Maybe you didn't always agree with what he said. But you respected him for speaking out. You always knew where he stood. He didn't go pussy-footing around issues or straddling them.

Ask him what he thought on any touchy, or controversial matter and you'd get an answer.

"No comment" wasn't in his vocabulary. Often you didn't have to ask him for his opinion. He'd volunteer it. And, sometimes, it would have been politically wiser, perhaps, if he hadn't.

Like when he said white families in Boston would move to Quincy or elsewhere if Mel King were elected mayor of Boston.

He got banged around for that one and it probably cost him re-election last year. But that's what he believed and he said it. He didn't say it privately -- he said it publicly and stood by it.

If you took issue with him over something like that or some other controversial subject, he respected your opinion.

He never held a grudge.

"He could disagree with you," says School Committee Vice Chairman Joan Picard. "But he was never disagreeable. Regardless of how heated the discussion, or how hot the issue, when it was over, it was over."

Although he served some 36 years as a federal mediator and was director of the State Office of Employee Relations under then Gov. Edward King, he seemed to enjoy being a Quincy school committee member more than anything else.

"He really loved serving on the School Committee," says School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon.

What he loved the most, Creedon recalls, were the children.

"He was sincerely interested in students at all levels and proud of their accomplishments," says Creedon.

He would attend school plays in the lower and middle grades and high school concerts and proms.

Creedon saw him as an "advocate for programs that reached out to improve the human conditions of those most in need and least able to do for themselves."

Such programs as special education for the mentally and physically handicapped, social health programs to help those with alcohol and drug problems and the Bethany program for teen-age mothers and their children.

John Sullivan was of the old James Michael Curley School of Politics. The fact Curley was his godfather could have had something to do with that.

He dressed flamboyantly. But it wasn't the clothing he wore that made him stand out. It was the magnetic smile he wore daily.

Whether you bumped into him at a school or social function, a political event, a wake, or on the street, he brightened those few moments you were with him.

He always had a story to tell or an observation to make. The story usually made you smile and the observation often gave you something to think about.

He seldom forgot a name. He knew most people by their first name.

He was a good family man devoted to his wife, Mary, children and grandchildren.

He was also both a gentle man and a gentleman.

He didn't bad mouth people and he could effectively and strongly state his case on any subject without dipping into profanity.

The Curley school he came out of taught him early "you can't win them all."

Anyone who runs for public office is going to win some and -- usually -- lose some. Take the losses with the victories. Don't boast about the wins and don't cry over the defeats. That's the way he looked at it.

He was disappointed but took it in stride when he lost his bid for re-election to the school committee last year after a decade on that board.

Friends -- like us -- used to kid him now and then that he was a "Charlestown carpetbagger" because he was born and grew up there.

He always had a soft spot in his heart for Charlestown but he really fell in love with his adopted hometown of Quincy.

And those in Quincy who really came to know him, loved him back.

Golden Urges Railroad Service For South Shore

Richard D. Golden, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for state senator, has reiterated his support for commuter rail service to Boston "to provide relief for our overburdened expressway and rapid transit system."

"Although the expressway will be much safer after the reconstruction its ability to handle the future transportation needs of the South Shore will still be far from adequate," he told a recent coffee hour.

"Rail service into Boston would give thousands of commuters a quick, direct alternative to the congestion and unreliability of our current transportation network."

Golden said he believes that Sen. Paul D. Harold

"does not understand the basic concept of commuter rail — to transport a large number of people from outside the core city in and out of downtown Boston fast and efficiently."

"Harold's suggestion of dumping hundreds of commuter rail people into the Braintree Red Line station and into cars already filled to the maximum is thoughtless to commuters already suffering the daily abuses of their commute," he said.

"There is only one Red Line tunnel beneath the city of Boston. You can only fit so many trains into the tunnel. Safe, fast, efficient and clean Red Line service must be applied to Quincy and Braintree residents. We pay for it; it is owed us."

"Last year," Golden went on, "the Legislature authorized over $600 million to be spent for transportation."

"Instead of complaining about the cost of a small railroad bridge across the Neponset River, our state senator should work right now to bring commuter rail and decent dependable Red Line service to our communities."

Understanding Handicaps Program In Quincy Schools

Squantum School students in Mrs. Emily Blampied's fifth grade class are participating in a program entitled "Understanding Handicaps", sponsored by the Department of Pupil Personnel Services of the Quincy Public Schools.

Members of the Pupil Personnel Services staff who are leading the program include Diane Chudomel, William Mulcahy, Mary Ann Chase, Carol Shiffer, Joyce Lebewohl, and Luleen Anderson.

With support from Mrs. Joan McDonald from the Volunteer Information Agency, the staff is teaching students about such handicaps as blindness, learning disabilities, physical disabilities, mental retardation, and deafness.

Students sit in wheelchairs; walk with crutches; walk blind-folded with canes used by blind people; experience the frustrations of the mentally retarded child in certain learning situations; learn about braille and about sign language; and learn, through the use of puppets, books, and films about the world of the handicapped person and how they can relate better to handicapped people.

Ruth Haggerty, principal, invited the group to present the "Understanding Handicaps" program at the Squantum School in recognition of March as "Special Needs Awareness Month in Quincy".

The program, developed as part of the recognition of 1981 as the "International Year of the Disabled Person", has been presented to fourth or fifth grade classes in each of the nine elementary schools during the past four years.

Earlier this year, principals Lee Gould and Douglas MacDonald invited the program to be presented at the Montclair and Lincoln-Hancock Schools. Each presentation receives enthusiastic praise from principals, teachers, students and parents.

Health Risk Appraisals At QCH

The public is invited to attend a Lunchtime Wellness Program on Health Risk Appraisals at Quincy City Hospital's Conference Room Monday, April 16 at noon.

Participants may bring their own lunches or buy sandwiches at the hospital and have a free cup of coffee.

Health Risk Appraisals (HRA's) provide individuals with a "health status profile" that identifies both positive and negative health behaviors. It indicates how they can improve their own "survival potential" over the next 10 years.

The profile specifies, on a computer printout, an individual's health risks, and recommends certain lifestyle changes that will reduce these health risks.

An underlying principle of the HRA is that each individual faces certain irreducible health hazards; those related to age, sex, race, and family history.

For information on this free program, call Jane Mudge RN, Health Promotion Dept. at Quincy City Hosp. 773-6100 Ext. 344/404.

YOU HAVE JUST A FEW MORE HOURS TO CUT YOUR TAXES.

And once you start your account, you can start cutting hundreds of dollars off your '83 federal income taxes. For example, if your '83 taxable income was $20,000, you can cut your taxes by $560. If it was $30,000, you can cut them by $720. If it was $50,000 for a working couple filing a joint return, you can cut them by $1,600.

Of course, you can also open your Bank of New England-Hancock IRA at any of our 17 offices during our regular hours.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK.

Donald M. Deware

We see many situations in life these days that warrant complaint. No one likes to be a chronic complainer, but when good service is expected and paid for, complaints can and should be registered if inexcusably bad service is received. When attention to detail or civil decencies are ignored, complaints should be made... These are only two out of possible hundreds of instances that could be mentioned to justify complaint. In these and similar cases, it is your right, and in many cases, your duty to complain.

There are times of course when you simply have to make the most out of what you have and complaints are not only unjustified; they are harmful. As a general rule, would we not live in a better world if people registered complaints ONLY when someone else's attitude, actions and behavior affect their own comfort, convenience, satisfaction, safety and protection?

John J. Sullivan, Eulogized As 'Advocate For Programs To Improve Human Conditions'

Former School Committee member John J. Sullivan was eulogized Monday as a man who "functioned as advocate for programs that reached out to improve the human condition of those most in need and least able to do for themselves."

"He sought election so that he could join in and contribute to the growth and development in the celebration of life and learning that goes on in a school as young people and adult learners come to know of themselves and their world," said School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon.

Creedon spoke at the funeral Mass Monday in St. Ann's Church, Wollaston, for Mr. Sullivan, a member of the School Committee for 10 years, who died April 5 at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary, Boston, two weeks before his 66th birthday.

A native of Charlestown, Mr. Sullivan moved to Wollaston 40 years ago. He was elected to the School Committee in 1973, reelected in 1977, and, defeated for reelection in 1981, he was selected to fill a vacancy on the committee by his colleagues. He was defeated for reelection last year.

He was appointed to the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service at the age of 24 and served as a mediator for 36 years until his retirement in 1979. Later he was named director of the State Office of Employee Relations by then-Gov. Edward J. King.

Mr. Sullivan came by his political inclinations naturally. He was the godson of the late Boston Mayor James Michael Curley. His father, a longshoreman, worked in Curley political campaigns and, when he was old enough to hold a sign, so did the son.

He ran for the Boston School Committee himself when he was 21 years old and finished eighth in the race in which five were elected.

He was past grand knight of the North Quincy Knights of Columbus and past faithful navigator of the Cardinal Cushing Assembly Fourth Degree of the Knights of Columbus; a

JOHN J. SULLIVAN member of the Quincy Elks and the United Commercial Travelers of Wollaston.

He was also a member of the Institute of Industrial Relations at Holy Cross for 15 years.

The funeral Mass for Mr. Sullivan was celebrated by the Rev. John J. O'Connor, pastor of St. Theresa's Church, Sherborn, and former curate at St. Ann's, a personal friend of the Sullivan family.

Other priests at the altar were the Rev. Robert Blute, pastor of St. Adelaide's Church, Peabody; the Rev. Msgr. James J. Scally, pastor of St. Ann's, and the Revs. John T. Foley, Richard McLaughlin and Charles E. Collins, associates at St. Ann's.

Also the Rev. Edward Boyle, S.J., head of the Archdiocesan Labor Guild; and the Rev. Thomas O'Dea, who is stationed at St. Lawrence Church, New Bedford and whose mother came from the same town in Ireland as Mr. Sullivan's mother.

Local officials who attended the funeral were Mayor Francis X. McCauley, City Councillor Patricia Toland, Sen. Paul D. Harold, former Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, School Committee members Mary Collins and Christopher Kennedy.

Also Quincy Junior College President Clayton Johnson, former Rep. City Councillor Joseph E. Brett, School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, City Clerk John Gillis, Mrs. Sheila McIntyre, widow of former Mayor James R. McIntyre, and Sabina Kavanaugh, president of Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore, with which Mr. Sullivan was long associated.

Honorary pall bearers were a delegation from the St. Ann's Ushers Club. He was an usher at St. Ann's for 40 years.

Mr. Sullivan leaves his wife, Mary C. (Flynn) Sullivan; three sons, John J. Sullivan Jr. of Quincy, director of operations for Norfolk County; Daniel S. Sullivan, a Canton police officer; David L. Sullivan of Dedham; four daughters, Claire M. Ball of West Geymouth, Maryrose Merick of Weymouth, Patricia Halliday of Canton, and Barbara Arnold of Wollaston, a Quincy school teacher.

Also a brother, Edward J. Sullivan of Jamaica Plain, and a sister, Margaret M. Smith of South Yarmouth, and 12 grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston. Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Dr. Creedon's Tribute

(Following is the text of School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon's reflections on former School Committee member John J. Sullivan at his funeral Mass at St. Ann's Church, Wollaston).

A genial man of staunch fidelity who, while relishing the role of clarion announcing the good deeds of others, was tranquil and compassionate during times when those he loved, reached out to, or felt an obligation toward, were despairing.

Of genial character, John was a pleasant man with a cordial, friendly manner. He loved life and enjoyed living his with and for the benefit of others.

Of staunch fidelity, John's faithfulness to his obligations and his tenacious loyalty were a way of life.

So disposed this man proud of his ethnic heritage, firm in his religious convictions, serene as the patriarch of a loving and sharing family, and an acknowledged expert in his profession, offered himself as a candidate for the Quincy School Committee.

He won the election and served for ten years. He served with distinction. As a School Committee member, John took the issues as they came. And, they came ranging from school construction and curriculum growth, through collective bargaining (at which he was an undisputed expert), to declining enrollment, school closings and fiscal restraints.

While competent in addressing such concerns, in my opinion, John Sullivan did not seek public office with such service in mind. Rather, to me, he sought election so that he could join in and contribute to the growth and development in the celebration of life and learning that goes on in a school as young people and adult learners come to know of themselves and of their world.

That this was his motivation was evident at every School Committee meeting that began with "Student Recognition." John would beam warmly and paternally at students who had been invited by the Committee to share with them, if only for a few minutes at the beginning of the meeting, their youthful accomplishments before the Committee addressed its agenda packed with seemingly more serious business; financial and legislative matters.

John loved that moment.

Again, John's motivation for public service was evident as he functioned as advocate for programs that reached out to improve the human condition of those most in need and least able to do for themselves. Among them were special education programs for the mentally and physically handicapped, social health programs for those suffering from alcoholism or addiction to drugs, QJC program aimed at preparing persons for careers in health occupations including nursing, and the Bethany Program for teen-age mothers and their infant children.

If John were able to be physically here among us, he would feel good about having so many friends around him, yet in his typical calm manner in the face of despair I'm sure he is counseling us now as he did last November, "This is not the end of the world!"

No, John, it is not the end of the world and while that is true, it is also true that the Quincy Public School system is better because of your service.

The legacy that you leave to us still in service to the school system is that we learn from you the value of a staunch fidelity to our mission and that we emulate your genial manner.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

WHO ARE THE BUYERS

QUESTION: Can you classify types of buyers and how each class operates?

ANSWER: Basically, there are three classes of people who look at homes. The first is in a hurry to move. They may have been transferred or already sold their present home. These are the buyers. The second kind is looking for a real bargain. They look only for ads by owners and for thousands of dollars under fair market value. The third kind will never buy. They enjoy looking at homes for a pastime.

Since Realtors publish 85% of classified home sale ads, the 2nd and 3rd groups of non-buyers will be compressed into viewing only 15% of the ads. It makes sense to list with a REALTOR.

85% of home sale ads are published by Realtors.

Take care of your own funeral arrangements now. So your family won't have to later.

By not taking care of your own funeral in advance, you force someone close to you to do it for you.

For the person who accepts the responsibility, making arrangements at the time of need is likely to be filled with uncertainties. The uncertainty of not knowing what you really wanted. Your personal preference. Perhaps, a favorite dress or suit. A special prayer. A clergyman with whom you are especially close. The uncertainties are endless.

The kindest thing you can do for your family is make your own funeral arrangements far in advance of need. That way everybody will know the kind of funeral you would like to have.

'Descended Into Hell' Squantum Church Sermon

"Descended Into Hell" was the title of the sermon at the First Church of Squantum Sunday during the second service.

Church pastor, the Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, talked about the ways in which Jesus had gone through Hell during the period from Palm Sunday up to His Resurrection on Easter morning.

Offertory music included an organ solo by Minda Hurd and an offertory anthem, "Into the Woods My Master Went" by Austin Lovelace. Mary Ruth Scott directed the Chancel Choir.

Hymns sung were

"Beneath the Cross of Jesus", "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross", "O Sacred Head, Now Wounded" and "In the Cross of Christ I Glory."

Greeters for the service were Lorraine Josselyn and her daughter, Beverly. Ushers were Stewart Scott and Tore Wallin. The Fellowship Hour was hosted by Katherine Hansen.

During the first service, the sermon was entitled "Are You Ready to Celebrate Easter?" Guitarists Mary Ruth Scott and Andrew Ogilvie provided the music, which included accompaniment for a number of Easter hymns which the congregation practiced for Easter.

Dr. Langevin used six large ink drawings of Jesus' opponents to introduce his theme which took the congregation from Good Friday to Easter Sunday.

He also showed a chart that tabulated the various resurrection appearances of Jesus to His disciples.

Last night (Wednesday), the last Lenten meal, a home-cooked pot roast dinner, was held at the church. Money raised went toward various projects of the youth ministry of the church.

After the dinner which began at 6 p.m., there was a time of Lenten worship and a talk by the pastor on Christian Church history.

Worshippers at the Palm Sunday service are asked to bring canned goods with them to be given to those in need.

Live Colt To Dramatize Palm Sunday At Bethany

As a dramatic way of reliving the Palm Sunday experience when Jesus rode into Jerusalem on a colt, the foal of a donkey, and was hailed as a king, a live colt will arrive at 11 a.m. as part of the festivities Sunday at Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center.

Following the 10 a.m. worship service, children will be able to ride the colt, with supervision, on the Spear Street lawn between the chapel and the sanctuary.

Long palm slips will be distributed and persons will be able to wave the branches and join the Church School children in shouting "Hosanna".

The religious and educational aspects of this is to enable participants to remember more vividly the details and meaning of the Palm Sunday events regarding Jesus and his disciples.

The Palm Sunday worship service and celebration will take place in the sanctuary at 10 a.m. The entire congregation will join in singing "The Palms" by Faure, as the processional hymn.

The Chancel Choir under the direction of Peter E. Krasinski, organist, will present two anthems from Stainer's "Crucifixion". The offertory will "Fling Wide the Gates", and the second selection, "God So Loved The World".

The Rev. Joel F. Huntington, associate minister, will serve as liturgist. Olive Hodgkins will read the scripture lessons. The senior minister, Rev. J. William Arnold, will preach the sermon entitled: "The New Jerusalem".

The following persons will be received into membership: Gary M. Connors, Mary-Ann G. Connors, Lawrence W. Cutler, and Rolf M. Gunderson.

Palms in the chancel will be placed by the Bethany Churchwomen. At the opening of the service, small missionary palm crosses made by native Masai Christians in Tanzania, Africa, will be given to all worshippers, gift of the Rev. and Mrs. Elden D. J. Zuern.

Children of the Sunday School will attend the first portion of the service in the sanctuary and then go to their classes from 10:30 to 11. Nursery care will be provided during the entire hour for babies and toddlers.

The worship service will be broadcast by delayed-tape over WJDA, 1300 kc, at 11 a.m.

At 11 a.m. there will be a coffee hour in the Allen Parlor, during which new members will be greeted.

Individuals and families from the community are welcome to share in the worship and fellowship, and to enroll children in the Church School.

Sunday at 4 p.m. a combined community choir of 60 voices will present Stainer's "The Crucifixion", in the sanctuary of Bethany Church.

The final Lenten Breakfast Service will be held in Bethany Chapel Wednesday, April 18, at 7 a.m. Rev. Zuern will preach the meditation on "Prayer as Consolation". A light breakfast will follow in the Parish House. Both the brief devotional service and the breakfast are open to the community. People can attend and leave for work by 7:45 a.m.

Faith Lutheran Fellowship Groups

Faith Lutheran Church of Quincy has launched a new ministry of Home Fellowship Groups.

Groups are intended to combine fun and fellowship with growth in personal Christian depth.

Meetings last one hour per week, and focus initially on relating Biblical characters and situations to the present day.

"In time, we hope the groups will choose for themselves what topics they would like to explore, be it parenting, world hunger, discipleship, lifestyle -- you name it," says

Pastor James L. Kimmell.

He has trained leaders for the past two months who will facilitate the groups, and he will continue meeting with them to develop additional skills and insights.

"It is a big step towards a comprehensive program of empowering people," he adds. He hopes that new leaders will emerge from the groups who will be able to lead either new groups or other areas of the church's ministry.

Although home groups are new to this area, the idea has been around since at least Biblical times. The small group movement is often an integral element in a growing parish, and is popular in South and Central America and other overseas ministries.

Kimmell envisions the groups not only as providing an important complement to worship and service in the life of the Christian, but also serving as a means whereby to draw newcomers and neighbors into a meaningful community.

Davis Urges Safety Measures For Chlorine

Kevin B. Davis, a candidate for the City Council from Ward 1, has asked for a discussion of the feasibility of developing alternative delivery times of chlorine used in the treatment process at Nut Island.

He called transportation of the chlorine cylinders "delivered via open flat bed trucks, tied down only by chains, past schools and heavily populated areas during daylight hours ... a ticking time bomb."

Davis pointed out that, while the MDC claims to have a perfect safety record, "it only takes one accident, one injury, one death to ruin that record."

Chlorine is so dangerous, he said, that during a tour of the Nut Island facility MDC officials expressed concerns about entering the chlorine storage and control areas.

"The time to take action is now," said Davis. He said he recently observed the delivery of chlorine gas at approximately 5 p.m. through congested traffic in the streets of Quincy Point, Merrymount, Adams Shore and Houghs Neck.

The delivery vehicles, he added, are not adequately marked as to their contents to warn passersby and the Fire and Police Departments in the event of a hazardous incident.

In a letter to City Councillor Patricia Toland, Davis requested the City Council to direct a meeting between Public Works Committee and the MDC to discuss the situation.

Cheney Urges MDC Rethink Chlorine Plant

Michael T. Cheney, a candidate for the City Council from Ward 1, has urged MDC Commissioner William Geary to reconsider construction of a proposed $2 million chlorination facility at Nut Island.

"The $2 million cost to build a new facility is a waste of taxpayers' money," he said at a recent meeting of the Quincy Citizens Association. "By the time the work is completed the facility will be outdated."

Cheney said the chlorination plant will create an even greater potential health hazard for the resident of Ward 1.

"What would happen," he asked, "if under this new plan a 16-ton truck with 36,000 gallons of chlorination got into a traffic accident on Sea St. The result would be disastrous."

"For the state to now impose on the residents of Ward 1 this new potential danger when they already have to bear the burden of existing environmental problems is irresponsible." Cheney proposed that the short term solution is to upgrade and renovate the existing facility at a cost of $400,000.

"This short term solution would be appropriate in view of the fact that the long range plan for Nut Island is to become a headworks," he said.

"Why spend $2 million on a solution that would create a greater potential hazard for our neighborhoods and give us a building that would be obsolete as the function of the plant changes in the near future?"

Proparvulus Club To Honor Deceased Members

The Proparvulus Club will honor the memory of its departed members and spiritual directors at a Mass Palm Sunday, April 15, at 9:30 a.m. in St. Stephen's Church, Boston.

Music will be provided by the Clancy Family Singers.

Fr. George Emerson,

pastor, will be guest speaker at the Communion Luncheon to be held afterward in the Wardroom at the U.S. Coast Guard Base, 427 Commercial St.

At last! A Home Mortgage with no unpleasant surprises.

Colonial Federal's new
Fixed Payment Adjustable
Rate Mortgage
is now available.

The adjustable interest rate home mortgages offered by most banks today have one major drawback. Because the interest rates vary, your monthly mortgage payments can vary. They can go up and they can go down. You have no way of knowing what your payments will be in the future. That's enough to discourage you from buying a new home.

Colonial Federal doesn't believe that mortgage payments should act like elevators. So, to make it easier for you to finance your new home, we've designed a brand new adjustable rate mortgage which offers you guaranteed fixed monthly payments for the first ten years. After this, the mortgage may be continued, modified or paid off without penalty.

No unpleasant surprises means that you can borrow and budget with confidence, knowing that your payments are unconditionally guaranteed to remain the same for ten years. And, that's a long time to have peace of mind.

This new mortgage is available only from Colonial Federal Savings Bank. It's just one more example of our continuing dedication to giving our customers the very best in personal banking services.

For more information, visit one of our convenient offices today or call 617 471-0750.

Sam Zax, president of Temple Beth El, announced that morning Passover services will be held April 17 and 18 at 9:15 a.m. with evening services April 16 and 17 at 6 p.m. Concluding services on Sunday and Monday, April 22 and 23, at 6 p.m. and April 23 and 24, at 9:15 a.m. Memorial (Yiskor) prayers on April 24 at 11 a.m. Rabbi David Jacobs and Cantor Morris Semigan will conduct all the services.

At Congregation Adas Shalom, 435 Adams St., Co-Presidents Leo Lofchie and Abe Greenspan announced that there will be no services on the night of the first Seder but there will be services preceding the Second Seder at 6:15 p.m.; a family Seder will follow at 6:45 p.m. Services for the concluding days of the holiday will be held at the Synagogue on April 23 and 24 at 9 a.m. Memorial (Yiskor) prayers on April 24. Rabbi Allan Press and Cantor David Grossman will conduct all the services.

The holiday of Passover comes in the springtime. Preparations are started early for the holiday, every room from the attic to the basement receives a thorough cleaning. Dishes are changed, silverware is boiled, dried and polished. Sometimes new pots and pans are substituted for ones used during the year.

Orthodox and Conservative Jews observe the Passover holidays for eight days while most Reform Jews celebrate only seven days. Israeli Jews celebrate seven days.

The story of Pesach is the story of the search for freedom by the Jews. It is the story of how God freed the early Israelites from slavery. Their newborn freedom gave the Jews the will to become a nation strong enough to conquer a land they could call their own. Freedom was the burning torch that led them across the parched desert to a land of milk and honey.

Pesach, known as Passover, recalls the last night in Egypt, when the Angel of Death passed over the homes of the Israelites, sparing their first born and smiting only the sons of Egypt. It is called the time of deliverance and Chag Hamatzos, the Feast of Unleavened Bread.

The Matzos we eat recalls the flat bread the Israelites ate when they fled from Egypt. So hasty was their departure that there was not time to prepare the dough properly and the bread was baked in the deepest sun made without leaven-flat bread, the bread of slaves fleeing oppression.

At the beginning of the Seder everyone sits down to a beautifully set table bedecked with flowers and candles. There is a special platter at the head of the table on which there are Three Matzos in memory of the unleavened bread which the Jews ate when they were freed from Egypt.

Bitter Herbs, for the bitterness of slavery; the shank of a lamb as a reminder of the Paschal Lamb; a roasted egg, symbolic of the festival offering which accompanied the sacrifice of the Paschal Lamb in the Temple; Haroseth, a food made of apples, nuts, cinnamon and wine, mixed together to look like mortar which the Hebrew slaves used in servitude; Parsley or Watercress, suggestive of the ancient customary hors d'oeuvres. It is now used as a token of gratitude to God for the products of the earth.

A cup of wine is set at the place-setting of each celebrant at the table. As in all Jewish ceremonies of rejoicing, wine is used as a token of festivity. Each participant in the service is expected to partake in four cups of wine. This number was selected as a symbolic of the four divine promises of redemption made to Israel in Exodus 6:6-7.

An empty wine cup is in the center of the table. This cup is filled as part of the Seder ceremony. It is known as Elijah's cup. It symbolizes the hope of man for the coming of God's kingdom upon earth.

Early in the Seder service, one of the three matzos on the ceremonial platter is divided in half. The half which is put away to be eaten at the end of the meal is called, Aphikomman, which is derived from the Greek language, meaning after-meal of dessert.

The origin of this custom may be traced to the Paschal Lamb which was eaten on Passover night. It was customary to reserve a small portion of the lamb to be eaten at the close of the meal. When sacrifices had ceased, a piece of Matzah was substituted.

The Aphikomman, hidden early during the Seder, is left to the end of the meal, so that the children attending the Seder keep alert during the entire service. The head of the family takes notice of the spiriting away of the Aphikomman by the children, who do not surrender until the master of the house is forced to redeem it by some gift, in order that the meal may be concluded.

The order of the Seder Service is as follows: The Kiddush (sanctification), all take a cup of wine and the leader recites the following benediction - "Blessed art Thou, O Lord our God, King of the Universe, Creator of the fruit of the vine. Blessed art Thou O Lord our God, King of the Universe, who hast chosen us among all peoples and sanctified us with Thy commandments.

In love hast Thou given us, O Lord, our God, solemn days of joy and festive seasons of gladness, even this day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread, a convocation unto us, a memorial of the departure from Egypt. Thou hast chosen us for Thy service and hast made us sharers in the blessings of Thy festivals. Blessed art thou O Lord, who sanctifiest Israel and the festive seasons. Blessed art Thou O Lord our God, who has preserved us and sustained us and brought us to this season."

At the conclusion of the prayer, all celebrants wash their hands, omitting the customary prayer. All at the table eat the greens, signifying life in the springtime; the leader breaks the Matzo and hides half. Wine is again poured in the glasses and the youngest male or female at the table asks the following four questions from the leader:

"Why is the night different from all other nights? On all other nights we eat leavened or unleavened bread. Why on this night, do we eat only unleavened bread? On all other nights, we eat all kinds of herbs. Why on this night do we eat especially bitter herbs? On all other nights, we do not dip herbs in any condiment. Why on this night do we dip them in salt water and haroseth? On all other nights, we may sit at the table either erect or leaning and on this night we recline?"

The leader replies to the child to the first question - When Pharaoh let our forefathers go from Egypt, they were forced to flee in great haste; to question two, our fathers were slaves in Egypt and their lives were made bitter; to question three, for a sign of hope and to question four, reclining at the table was a sign of a free man in older times.

The reader continues to read from the Haggadah (which means "telling") the story of the Exodus from Egypt. The Rabbis said that there are four kinds of children, each one quite different from the rest; and each needs to be told the story of the Exodus in a different way.

The first kind is the wise child, who loves Pesach and is eager to celebrate the holiday; another is the irreverent child, who is scornful and does not feel part of the whole celebration; the third is the simple child, naive and innocent and very shy, he would like to know what Pesach means; the fourth child is the one who does not even realize that something unusual is going on; he must simply be told, as the Torah, puts it, "This is because of what the Lord did for me, when I went forth from Egypt."

"When the story is finished, the meal is served. First course is hard boiled eggs served in salt water, for tears and hope have always been the lot of the Jews. Other foods included in the Passover meal are fish, chicken or turkey, soup, with Matzo balls and for dessert cake and each person receives a small piece of Matzo.

The leader of the Seder service rewards the finder of the Aphikomman with a gift. After drinking the third cup of wine, the door is opened and the fourth and last cup of wine is filled. The cup for Elijah the Prophet is filled and Elijah is welcomed by all. The guests at the table rise to greet him.

Elijah in Jewish tradition is the long expected messenger for the final redemption of mankind from all oppression. The leader takes the cup of wine in his hand and recites the final benediction. All at the table complete the reading of the Haggadah and join in singing Passover songs.

The festival of the First Fruits of the season or the Feast of Weeks, Shavuot, comes seven weeks after the Passover holidays.

North Girls Hope To Stay On Fast Track

The North Quincy girls' track team, which opens against Brockton today (Thursday) at 3:15 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium, hopes to continue where the cross country and winter track teams left off.

The Raiderettes were undefeated in cross country and won the state Division One title and the winter indoors track team was also unbeaten and won the state Div. One crown. Last spring the North girls won the Class A title despite an unusual losing (2-5) dual meet season.

Veteran coach Lou Tozzi has taken the spring season off due to personal reasons and plans to resume coaching in the fall. Taking over as head coach is Jeff Hennessy, who assisted Tozzi for the past two years and has given many of the girls on the team their start with the Quincy Track Club.

Assisting Hennessy is Mike Burke, who is in his third outdoor season as assistant.

As usual, the distance runs are loaded with talent and will be North's strong point.

Leading the way is all-scholastic Mary Ann Kelleher, coming off an undefeated winter campaign. Veterans Tracy Corrigan and Diane Lindenfelzer have state meet experience and provide excellent leadership. Meg Leary, another veteran, will miss the spring season due to an injury.

"There is also a great group of young up and coming stars such as Tricia Barrett, Julie Walsh, Ann Toland, Sharon Barrett and Tricia Leary," said Hennessy. "All scored with high frequency indoors except Sharon Barrett, who is returning from a broken foot."

In the middle distances North suffered another blow as Lisa Fitzgerald will see no action due to a foot and knee injury.

Providing capable back-up are Teresa Collings, Leann Fitzgerald, Joanne Zdzankowski, Laura Barrett and Cheryl McCarthy.

More depth is needed in the sprints and hurdles and Hennessy will be depending upon Laura Ciulla, Lori Magrath, Alice Reilly, Donna Gelsomini and promising newcomers Julie Killion and Jennifer Raftery.

In the field events Ciulla and Magrath will long jump and Collings and Killion will high jump.

The throwing events are in good shape with a veteran group. The javelin is headed up by Eileen Crehan and Georgia Traficante, two of the best in the state. In the discus Noreen Connolly should do well and she is backed up by Missy Silkwood and Denise Shields.

Crehan, Connolly, Silkwood and Shields will also throw the shot, while Crehan and Traficante will also lend a hand in the running events.

Following today's meet the Raiderettes are idle until April 24 when they will host Brookline at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"We have worked hard preparing for Brockton, always tough outdoors," said Hennessy. "I am hoping we can dominate the distance runs, hold our own in the throws and hope for a gift in the sprints and jumps. The North Quincy tradition of pride and a positive attitude will see us through."

-- TOM SULLIVAN

St. Joseph's Goliath B's Upset Union For Crown

The underdog St. Joseph's Goliath B basketball team upset previously unbeaten Union Cong. of Braintree, 40-35, to win the division championship of the YMCA-Church League.

St. Joseph's, which had won three of its previous four playoff games by a single point, including a win over previously undefeated St. Clare's, ended its season with a 13-3 record.

Making up the championship team, coached by Dr. Mark Jaehnig, were David Jennette, Billy Ryan, Tim Brillo, Anthony Battistone, Dan Jaehnig, Ricky Morris, Mike Sclaro, Jim Shugrue, Billy Hutton and Joe LaFleur.

St. Joseph's gained an early lead behind some timely shooting, strong defense and aggressive rebounding, but saw a six-point advantage shrink to a single point with less than a minute left in the game.

However, two steals led to late baskets to clinch the victory.

Jennette led the scoring with 14 points, Battistone had nine, Jaehnig and Brillo seven each and Ryan three. Morris contributed some solid defense.

Connolly Ends Brilliant Career At B.U.

Quincy's T.J. Connolly recently ended an outstanding hockey career at Boston University.

The Terriers' captain, who scored 23 points on three goals and 20 assists in addition to playing outstanding defense, finished with a career total of 11 goals and 58 assists for 69 points.

Connolly was named first team All-East, first team All-New England, the top East player in the East-West all-star game and won BU's Fitzgerald Award.

HOLLYWOOD—He's played some of television's most memorable roles, but when I mention his name, most people never remember his face.

I'm speaking of celebrated character actor, David Dukes, one of the most sought after, and respected men in show business today. His portrayal of the bitter one-armed son in the short-lived, but critically acclaimed series "Beacon Hill," coupled with his unforgettable performance as Edith Bunker's would-be rapist in "All In The Family" have earned him a spot high on the preference list of every producer in town.

Add to his credits a very convincing reading as the jittered lover of All McGraw in last season's blockbuster mini-series, "The Winds of War," along with starring roles in successful box-office feature films, "Only When I Laugh," and "Without A Trace," and you have an actor whose name may not be on the tip of everyone's tongue, but whose work has riveted a lasting impression in their memory.

"My agent calls me a real person actor," states Dukes. "I don't think I would ever work out in a weekly series because I enjoy changing characters and changing mediums. As long as I can continue to make a living by jumping from theatre to television to film and travel the world playing interesting and very challenging characters, I'm very happy."

NEWSCARRIERS WANTED
Here's a chance to earn extra money by building a Quincy Sun home delivery route.
Telephone: 471-3100

Featured in an all-star cast in the upcoming CBS mini-series "George Washington," Dukes is quick to expound on his current state of theatrical happiness. "Mine is a wonderful life, it's everything an actor would want it to be... my last few years have been an actor's dream, as I have worked with some of the most talented people on some of the most interesting projects."

In addition to his success in both feature films and television, the native of San Francisco has won the applause of those who have seen his work on Broadway where he starred in "Amadeus," and was nominated for Tony and Drama Desk Awards for his performance opposite Richard Gere in "Bent."

Of all of his many roles, the one he will be best noted for will be his brilliant portrayal of a man who riled the morals of an entire nation when he attempted to rape a woman who at the time was held in higher esteem than the flag, apple pie, and the entire sixth fleet. Through tons of mail, David Dukes learned you just don't mess with the Dingbat. The scene and dialogue between Dukes, and series star, Jean Stapleton will go down in the annals of television as one of the most powerful interactions ever created for any form of stage presentation. Even in rerun, this true classic lives as one of television's most distinguished moments.

In April's eight-hour series based on the life of our nation's first president, Dukes plays Washington's best friend, George William Fairfax. His character is an English gentleman who befriends the young Washington, and shows him the lifestyle of the upper class.

While Duke's agent calls him "a real person actor," I call him an actor's actor. He may not possess one of the most memorable names, but I'll tell you, once you have seen him work, you'll never forget his performance.

Got a question for your favorite star? I'll track 'em down for you. Send questions and comments to James S. Leach c/o THE VIDEO CONNECTION, 22761 Pacific Coast Hwy., Malibu, Calif. 90265.

WEEK OF: APRIL 12

AQUARIUS - January 21-February 19
Accent is on partnership arrangements, especially regarding friendships - new and old. Financial transactions proceed smoothly, so long as you're honest with yourself. Secretive relative is chatty.

PISCES - February 20-March 20
Be sure to spend time with ailing friends - your warmth brings more than you know. Some delays on the weekend, but starting Monday you make great strides on nearly all fronts.

ARIES - March 21-April 20
Acquaintance may show a jealous side - best approach is to ignore him/her. Romantic commitment is enhanced during the week, and social circle may broaden on weekend.

TAURUS - April 21-May 21
Relationships with relatives continue to improve. You're feeling more vigorous, but avoid overly strenuous activity. Domestic obligations may be unexpectedly costly after the weekend.

GEMINI - May 22-June 21
Persistence pays off in realms of career and education, but opt for a more spontaneous approach in matters of the heart. Loved one reacts positively to your honest, outspoken words.

CANCER - June 22-July 22
If entertaining, emphasis is on originality and surprise. It's time to address higherups with your concerns, but don't look for an argument in the romance department.

LEO - July 23-August 22
Business agreements need added review before you sign on any dotted line. Family member is becoming more liberated. Loved one is unexpectedly receptive to your ideas.

VIRGO - August 23-September 22
Watch out for people putting words in your mouth or making decisions on your behalf. In love matters, a combination of spontaneity and generosity works near miracles.

LIBRA - September 23-October 22
Loved ones are determined to help you make up your mind; don't let them put the pressure on too heavily. Newfound friend surprises you with his humor and kindness.

SCORPIO - October 23-November 21
Family matters dominate the week; there may be a combination of reunions, reconciliations, and more-or-less healthy debates. Attitude toward finances shows positive signs of change.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22-December 22
The bad news? Dull chores cannot be postponed. The good? You may be lucky enough to recruit a charming person to help you out. Possessive friend becomes more understanding - at last.

CAPRICORN - December 23-January 20
You understand both sides of family situation and may be able to formulate a solution by the end of this period. Small financial gains are possible from the weekend onward.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Originality is your strong point, along with an ability to get others excited about your ideas. Impulsiveness is another trademark. More planning, more revising, and the usual dose of imagination - and you can advance toward goals at a very healthy pace.

Conversion Work Begins On Old Quincy School

Workmen have begun converting the old Quincy School on Newbury Ave., North Quincy, into an apartment house with 37 one-bedroom units and 12 two bedroom units.

A construction ceremony was held Tuesday at the school. Occupancy is expected in the late fall.

The school building, which dates back to 1907, was placed on the National Register of Historic Places last fall, enabling the developers to obtain tax credits under the Accelerated Cost Recovery System.

The developer is Quincy Schoolhouse Properties, a partnership of Robert Kenney of Urban Consulting Associates, Richard Barry, both of Quincy, and F.X. Messina of Braintree.

The contractor is F.X. Messina Enterprises.

Except for cleaning an minor ground floor alterations, the exterior of the building will be unchanged while the interior will be completely renovated into contemporary living units.

"The neighborhood said from the beginning that they wanted mostly one bedroom units at affordable prices," said City Councillor Joanne Condon. "I think the developer has worked very hard to respond to our concerns."

Some rents in the building will be as low as $450.

Quincy Democrats will be meeting this weekend to organize their ward and city committees and elect male and female members to the Democratic State Committee.

Ward 1 Democrats will meet tomorrow (Friday) at 8 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Community Center to elect officers and 10 representatives to the Senate District Caucus.

Ward 3 Democrats will gather at 9 a.m. Saturday, April 14, in the committee room at 125 Granite Place to elect officers and representatives to the caucus.

Ward 4 Democrats will congregate at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow (Friday) at the Faith Lutheran Center on Roberts St. to elect officers and representatives to the caucus.

Ward 5 Democrats will meet at 8 p.m. tomorrow (Friday) at 55 Sea St. to elect officers and representatives to the caucus.

The Senate District

Caucus will be held Sunday, April 15, at 2 p.m. in the Atlantic Middle School on Hollis Ave., North Quincy, to elect one man and one woman to the State Committee.

The Democratic City Committee will hold its organizational meeting Saturday, April 14, at 10 a.m. in the Fore River Clubhouse on Nevada Rd., Quincy Point, at which time new officers will be chosen.

Democrats Meet To Organize Committees

Special Vacation Week

Schedule At Hancock Pool

In addition to the regular evening hours, the Lincoln Hancock Community School pool will offer supervised swimming from 10 a.m. to noon Tuesday, April 17, Wednesday, April 18, and Thursday, April 19.

The swim is for youths age six to 18 years and adults who accompany children. The regular pool participation card may be used or a guest fee can be paid at the door.

The pool will be closed on Patriot's Day, April 16, Good Friday, April 20, and Easter Sunday April 22.

Additional information can be obtained by calling 773-1380, ext. 204.

McCauley Submits $75.9 Budget

Mayor Francis X. McCauley presented a $75.9 million city budget for fiscal 1985 to the City Council Tuesday night and the Council passed it on to its Finance Committee for consideration.

The total of $75,866,757 is up 4.98 per cent over the expenditures to date for fiscal 1984.

In a brief message to the Council, McCauley said:

"I believe the amounts funded for the various city departments will allow our city government to continue to provide an acceptable level of city services in fiscal year 1985."

School expenditures make up 40.7 per cent of the city budget, police and fire 18.4 per cent, public works 8.5 per cent, all other departments 8.4 per cent, and "uncontrollable expenses" 23.6 per cent.

The uncontrollable expenses included retirements $7,922,594; non-school debt service $1,792,291; employees' insurance $3,822,573; non-contributory pensions $1,148,643; workmens compensation $400,000 and the General Dynamics bond $2,809,441.

McCauley said the major increases in the budget were in those fixed costs, which increased $2,147,959 in spite of the fact that non-school debt and interest went down by $1,922,701.

Payment on the General Dynamics bond, which is held by the company, appears on the city budget for the first time and will continue for the next 10 years.

"Salary increases granted to city employees during fiscal year 1984 make up most of the remaining increase," said McCauley in his message.

He noted that "while net additional state aid increased $1,682,171 for fiscal year 1985, the rate of increase declined by 51 per cent over the rate of increase for fiscal year 1984."

The budget is based on $86,958,026 in projected revenues for fiscal 1985, including a $47,067,504 tax levy (fixed by Proposition 2½) $10,800,000 in estimated city receipts, and $29,090,522 in cherry sheet receipts.

This is balanced by $6,197,957 in cherry sheet charges, $2,355,000 in current overlay, $1,500,000 in overlay deficit, $300,000 in snow deficit and $300,000 in cherry sheet offsets for non-appropriation charges of $10,652,957.

This means that the city will have $438,312 available for additional appropriation during fiscal 1985.

Informative figures included by McCauley is his budget message showed that the tax levy decreased by $21,065,264 or 31.4 per cent between 1981 and 1984, thanks to Prop 2½.

The tax levy in 1981 was $66,984,782 and in 1984 it was $45,919,518. The levy of $47,067,504 for fiscal 1985 represents an increase permitted under Prop 2½.

McCauley also showed figures covering state aid receipts since 1981.

They included $12,734,523 in 1981, $16,498,554 in 1982, $23,628,416 in 1983, $27,245,167 in 1984 and $29,090,522 in 1985, a cumulative increase of $16,690,919 since 1981.

Hunting House Lots For Bid

Mayor Francis X. McCauley and Planning Director James E. Lydon, announce the sale of the Hunting School house lots.

Bids will be accepted until Wednesday, May 9 at 4 p.m. Bids will be publicly opened and read aloud at 6 p.m., Wednesday, May 9, in the City Council Chambers.

City Looks Into Punch Card Voting

By TOM HENSHAW

The future of voting in Quincy may be by punch card if City Clerk John Gillis has his way.

The punch card voting machines that were being demonstrated, said Gillis, could cost the city as little as $75,000 or as much as $150,000 and trim as much as six hours off the time needed to count ballots.

"It's about time," said Gillis, who was up until after 4 a.m. with the Presidential primary election last March 13. "After 27 years I'd like to see some improvement in voting procedure."

Gillis showed off the machines to Mayor Francis X. McCauley and was scheduled to make a pitch for them at the City Council meeting Tuesday night.

Brian C. Crowley, vice president of Electronic Voting Machines Inc. of Newton, said the voting unit of the machine costs $150 each and the unit with stand, case and light costs $300 each.

The city would need about 500 machines to outfit its 39 precincts, he said, based on the rule of thumb that one machine is needed to service every 100 voters.

McDonald's License Request Continued

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Proponents and opponents spoke for more than an hour Tuesday morning about a proposed McDonald's restaurant in North Quincy near the MBTA station.

The License Board members said they would like more time to consider the matter and voted to continue the license request until Tuesday, April 24.

Atty. Patricia Hunt told the board that John Gillis is requesting a common victualer's license for McDonald's at 275 and 295 Hancock St.

His son, Steve Gillig, who also operates the McDonald's on Southern Artery, Quincy, and in Weymouth will manage the North Quincy restaurant on the first floor of the former Otis Elevator Building, said Miss Hunt.

President of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, Gillig would employ 70 full and part time employees at the restaurant, which would have seating for 104 customers.

Parking for 42 vehicles will be available on adjacent property, said Miss Hunt, and McDonald's has a 20 year lease with another 20 year option for both the building space and parking area.

McDonald's is planning to invest $350,000 in the building, $100,000 in site improvement, and $150,000 in equipment, said Miss Hunt.

The area will be fenced and screened, she said, and hours would be 6 a.m. to 11 p.m. Sunday to Thursday, and 6 a.m. to midnight Friday and Saturday.

Miss Hunt gave the board a petition signed by 1400 people, 500 from North Quincy, who favor the proposal. She also gave the board letters from a number of local businesses in favor.

said that a traffic study of the area indicated the restaurant would not have much more impact on the area.

In response to a question by Police Capt. Paul Nestor, who indicated the meeting in place of Police Chief Francis Finn, Ching said the study involved theoretical concepts and not actual driving in the area.

Six people at the meeting spoke in favor.

Joanne Condon, councilor of the ward in which the restaurant would be located, said she was opposed to the location, but not to McDonald's or Steve Gillig.

Mrs. Condon said the area is already congested with traffic and the restaurant would make the problem worse. She also cited the close proximity of schools to the site, and said increased pedestrian traffic would also contribute to congestion.

Mrs. Condon pointed out the close proximity of a fire station. "It would not be in the best interest of public safety if there were a delay in the response time," she said.

Representatives of the Atlantic Neighborhood Association, Atlantic Neighborhood Center, North Quincy Business Group and Sacred Heart Parish Council spoke against the proposal as did several other speakers.

Mrs. Condon also gave the board letters and a petition signed by those against the proposal.

Fire Chief Edward Barry said he didn't think there would be any great traffic problem affecting the fire station, and said he wasn't opposed to the request.

Health Commr. Dr. M. Grace Hussey said there were good points presented on both sides.

Capt. Nestor said there would be a police problem, particularly with the left hand turn in and out of the restaurant. Nestor said traffic and children would be a grave concern, and he objected to the request.

Gillig said he would not object to a sign prohibiting left hand turns at the restaurant, but Mrs. Condon said the sign would be illegal if it were on private property.

Gillis said he agreed with Chief Barry.

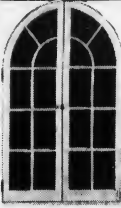

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald said there was a lot of information to consider. He made the motion to continue the request.

Fire Hydrant Testing Starts April 23

Fire Chief Edward F. Barry announces that on Monday, April 23, the Quincy Fire Department will start its annual hydrant testing program, under the direction of Deputy Chief Thomas C. Andrew and Firefighter Robert N. Mood of the Training Division.

Testing will take place from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. Hydrant testing will take place in all sections of the city at the same time.

During the testing of the hydrants, residents may experience some discoloration in their water. This water is not harmful to drink or use, but should be checked before using washing machines. Persons experiencing discoloration of their water are requested to flush their water systems by opening their cold water faucet for a few minutes then wait approximately one hour. If the water does not clear, repeat the flushing procedure.

Chief Barry estimates that the hydrant testing program will take four weeks to complete.

The restaurant has held a common victualer-wine and malt license.

Atty. Rocco DeFazio told the board that applicant

Constance Affa is requesting the license to keep up with competition from other restaurants.

Robert Colman of Colman's Sporting Goods, Quincy Sq., spoke in favor of the request.

Carl DeLauriers of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association

City Clerk John Gillis pointed out that Ward Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro is opposed to the board granting the license.

Gillis also noted that the restaurant has had a good record.

Board Denies Request For Old Gold License

The License Board voted 3 to 1 Tuesday to deny a request from Rainbow's End Jewelers, 294 Water St., for an old gold, jewelry, diamonds, silver and estate furniture license.

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald made the motion to deny the license.

which was seconded by Fire Chief Edward Barry. Police Capt. Paul Nestor also voted to deny the license.

Health Commr. Dr. M. Grace Hussey abstained, and City Clerk John Gillis was in favor.

At an earlier meeting, Atty. Nathaniel Sherman told the board that store owner Lawrence A. Dreyfus of Quincy has had a criminal record.

At this week's meeting, the board went into executive session for about five minutes. MacDonald said the board reviewed Dreyfus' police record.

Readers Forum Comments On State Of Republican Party

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I would like to take this opportunity to personally thank the members of the Republican City Committee of Quincy for their cooperation and interest during my four-year term as chairman.

However, due to my own time schedule and commitments, I did not seek re-election as chairman. A further consideration was the fact that, with the state of the Republican Party in Quincy, a new face with new ideas would appear to be in order. Therefore, I was pleased to nominate Raymond Sullivan who has pledged himself to building the membership of the City Committee. I would ask the committee to give him every assistance in his endeavors as they did for me and I will cooperate with Mr. Sullivan in any way that I can.

The state of the Republican Party in Quincy was brought home to me very recently. Upon calling the Ledger the morning after the election to ask for the results of the Republican ballot for State Committee members, I was told that they had not been tallied at the Ledger because there was "no interest in those results". This is a sorry statement for our two-party system which should provide the checks and balances as set up under the Constitution. Good luck to the new City Committee Chairman in his goal of changing this thinking.

McCauley Has Della Chiesa Look

Mayor Francis McCauley is starting to look like another Amelio Della Chiesa.

Della Chiesa is Quincy's longevity champ in the mayor's office. He served 12 years — longest in the city's history and retired undefeated.

Eight of those years were under Plan A and four during Quincy's stormy marriage to Plan E. (Charles Ross holds the record under Plan A with nine years.)

How long will McCauley serve?

This week, at least, the answer would seem to be: as long as he wants to.

One astute political observer and former office holder in the opposition camp, shrugs and says:

"There are no real major issues. Everything is running smoothly for him. The people aren't upset over much of anything. And he isn't making any mistakes."

The next city preliminary election is still some 17 months away and, of course, issues can suddenly pop up and people can become unhappy and mistakes can be made.

But right now it looks like there is a good chance that McCauley could win a third term without any major opponent trying to block him.

DELLA CHIESA

The names of City Council President James Sheets and City Clerk John Gillis keep coming up as potential mayoral challengers.

Both certainly would be considered major contenders. Both are known, both could raise money to finance a campaign and both could put together other support.

Councillor Joanne Condon is another strong possibility. In fact, some observers think she is more likely to make the plunge than Gillis or Sheets.

But, if there aren't any big issues and problems, voters aren't going to turn out the incumbent.

Sheets, Gillis and Condon know their political A, B, C's: if you don't have a chance of winning, don't run.

If there was a mayoral election this week McCauley would win — and probably in a breeze.

If things stay as calm as they are and nobody drops a political banana peel in front of McCauley, he might even get another free ride to re-election.

It has only happened twice in Quincy's history.

The first given that honor was Thomas Burgin in 1940, (who turned 82 Sunday) and the second was McCauley in 1984 — 44 years later.

McCAULEY

It's hard to think the opposition camp would let that happen again. But the best they might come up with might be a token nuisance opponent.

But unless the present political picture changes drastically, McCauley looks like a three-term winner. And, maybe a fourth? And . . .

ELLIOT RICHARDSON stopped off at The Quincy

Sun office last week in a campaign swing through Quincy in his quest for the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate.

Richardson who projects a stiff, serious conservative image, didn't come through that way at all.

He was serious about world affairs but in a fun mood on a local matter.

Richardson was asked if it were true that he worked at the old Fore River Shipyard as a welder.

No, he never worked there as a welder but he went to welding school there in 1941.

But he did work for the Local 5 Shipbuilders Union newspaper — as a cartoonist. It was when Local 5 and the Independent union were battling for certification.

He smiled as he recalled those days and then suddenly burst into the CIO union song: "Lewis is our leader! Lewis is our leader!"

Lewis, of course, was John L. Lewis, the bushy-browed national leader of the CIO.

At that particular moment, unfortunately, our CH. 8 TV camera was at City Hall. It would have been a scene for posterity.

Peter Kenney, Mayor Francis

McCauley's executive secretary, as a contender for the QHA's Leased Housing Administrator vacancy caused by the death of John (Bud) Kelliher. Kenney says he's not interested in the $35,000 plus post and is happy where he is.

Still reportedly interested, though, are Assessor James Papile, Councillor Joseph LaRaia, Norfolk County Commissioner George McDonald and former Councillor John Quinn.

Whatever is decided about the machines, said Gillis, they would not be ready for the May 15 preliminary election or the June 12 general election in Ward 1.

"If we bought them," he said, "we would have to have approval by the Secretary of State by early June to have them available for the state and national election in the fall."

Counting ballots in the March presidential primary kept election workers up until 4 a.m., eight hours after the polls had closed.

Under the same circumstances with punch card machines, said Gillis, they would have wrapped up by 10:30 p.m.

"We would save a lot of money in the cost of police overtime, pay for election workers and meals," he said.

The machine one of two or three types approved by the State Legislature, is in use in several Massachusetts cities and towns. Now that Worcester has adopted machine voting, Quincy is the largest city in the state still counting ballots by hand.

The voting units of the machines demonstrated in Quincy consists of a booklet containing the names of all candidates and the referendum questions.

When the voter arrives at his polling place he is given a punch card ballot that is inserted in a slot under the booklet. As he turns the pages he punches a hole in the card with a stylus beside his candidate's name.

When the polls close, the cars are fed through a computer that records the vote and totals each candidate's count.

Crowley said the machines can handle up to 235 candidates and referendum questions.

Written candidates cannot be recorded on the punch card but must be noted on the envelope that is provided for the car so that secrecy of the ballot can be maintained.

Absentee ballots, of which the city has between 2,000 and 3,000 in each election, are handled in the same manner, punched and mailed to be included in the election night count.

Caucus Vote Seen As Donnelly Power Play

Rosemary Coffey of Braintree, an aide to Cong. Brian J. Donnelly, was elected a state Democratic committeewoman Sunday and it was interpreted widely as a move by Donnelly to take a more active role in state party politics.

Coffey defeated Bernice Mader of Quincy, a protégé of Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, by a vote of 74-72 in what was considered to be an upset.

Last February, when he bowed out of the race for the U.S. Senate, Donnelly lashed out at "those who would make the Democratic party their own private political machine" and promised to play a more active role.

"It's hard to read too much into it," said Sen. Paul D. Harold, who chaired the caucus in which Coffey was elected.

"It could be the residue of the King-Dukakis split. It could be the Braintree people getting behind their candidate. Or it could be Donnelly or a combination of things."

Neither Donnelly nor Coffey were available for comment.

At the same caucus, James French was elected state committeeman by a 94-52 margin over Joseph Lydon.

Some question was raised about the voting process in the caucus in which delegates were required to sign their ballots under penalty of having them voided.

Harold said the signed ballot was a rule promulgated by the Democratic State Committee "which feels that it is like a roll call vote in the legislature in which everyone is recorded."

In the March presidential primary, one state committeewoman, Kathleen O'Donnell, and one state committeeman, Robert Gibbons, were elected by the party voters for four year terms.

Harold said the state committee decided to expand its membership by selecting members in caucus for two years "to give a bigger role to the ward and town committees."

The full committee, including about a dozen more members chosen by affirmative action, will hold its first meeting Saturday, April 21, at Framingham State College.

The committee will play a role in drafting rules and a platform for the June 9 state convention in Worcester, which will also choose senatorial candidates to go on the fall ballot.

The Democratic city committee met on Saturday and reelected Daniel G. Raymond chairman by a margin of 42-38 over City Councilor Patricia Toland.

Also elected were John P. Comer, first vice chairman; Leo J. Kelly, second vice chairman; Patricia Toland, corresponding secretary; Mary Dawson, recording secretary; and Joanne Condon, treasurer.

The committee voted recognition to Louise Brabazon, the longtime recording secretary, who is retiring from committee work to devote more time to her work for the City Council.

Chairman Raymond also set up a committee, chaired by Leo Kelly, to reorganize the city committee's bylaws.

Don't play the Lottery with your home mortgage.

Be safe-be sure with Colonial Federal's
new Fixed Payment
Low Interest
Adjustable Rate
Mortgage.

The adjustable interest rate home mortgages offered by most banks today have one major drawback. Because the interest rates vary, your monthly mortgage payments can vary. They can go up and they can go down. You have no way of knowing what your payments will be in the future. That's enough to discourage anybody.

To make it easier for you to finance your new home, we've designed a brand new adjustable rate mortgage which offers you guaranteed fixed monthly payments for the first ten years. After this, the mortgage may be continued, modified or paid off without penalty.

You can borrow and budget with confidence, knowing that your payments are unconditionally guaranteed to remain the same for ten years. That's peace of mind! And, if interest rates go down, as many economists believe they will in the next few years, you win big!

This new mortgage is available only from Colonial Federal Savings Bank. It's just one more example of our continuing dedication to giving our customers the very best in personal banking services.

Funding For Pollard Community Center Fails

Efforts on the part of Quincy Point residents to take over the Pollard School on Southern Artery as a community center apparently have failed for lack of funding.

Mayor Francis X. McCauley said he met with the community group last week and they informed him that "there is no real funding of enough magnitude to make citizen operation viable."

The mayor and the Planning Department had recommended that the old school building be sold to Anthony Losordo's Manel Properties Trust for $152,600 for conversion to condominiums.

But the City Council refused to approve the recommendation and the community group was given an opportunity to develop a plan for the building.

Preparations Started To Drain Quarry

Workmen from the J. F. White Construction Co. have begun site preparations for draining Swingle's Quarry in West Quincy for the body of Paul Gooch, 17, of Brockton who drowned there last June.

Deputy Public Works Commissioner David Colton said it may take some time to get the staging and fencing around the quarry since the company is testing the rock to make sure there will not be another cave-in.

Draining operations by the city were halted in September when a section of the granite wall collapsed into the water.

Colton said installation of the fence is causing considerable problems, too, since the post holes have to be drilled into the granite surface.

Historical Commission Hearings

The Quincy Historical Commission will hold a public hearing Monday, April 23, at 7:30 p.m. at City Hall to consider two proposed changes in property in the historic districts.

They are America Towns Up, 15-21 Adams St., and President Pharmacy, 152 Franklin St., South Quincy.

McCauley said Asst. City Solicitor Jay MacRitchie is researching to see if the city can now accept Losordo's bid or if it will have to start the bidding procedure all over again.

Some 80 residents of the immediate area, said McCauley, have submitted a petition asking that the building be sold immediately if funding for the community center is not forthcoming.

The building, abandoned for the past two years, has been the target of vandals.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK.

Charlie Chaplin, the silent film comedian once said, "Laughter is the tonic, the relief, the surecase for pain". But how can we find laughter and relief from the painful problems of today? The problems seem so complicated and persistent. Can we laugh at our personal problems? At the agony of starving nations? At the violence, crime and terrorism seen throughout the world?

With it all, there are times when laughter can and should occur. Even the most persistent of problems are eventually solved. It is a known fact that humor can and does mitigate the tragedies, inequities, and hardships which often appear hopeless. Without a lighthearted break from life's disquietudes, we would never fully appreciate a problem solved or difficulty dismissed. It is also a known fact that humor, a smile, or a good laugh can bring hope where there is hopelessness. Actually, laughter is a gift from God! "Rejoice", the Bible says many times, "He that is of merry heart hath a continuous feast"...

Reisberg Demands No More Nut I. Connections

Bernard Reisberg, a candidate for the City Council from Ward 1, has demanded immediate halt to "any further connections by any sewer line anywhere that directly or indirectly feeds into any line that winds up at Nut Island treatment."

Reisberg said he made the demand in a letter to MDC Commissioner William Geary and Geary replied that the suggestion is "worthy of consideration."

Geary also told him, Reisberg said, that the MDC as a result of the city of Quincy's law suit, has stated to the court that no further expansion to the North and South MDC sewage will occur.

Reisberg said that, in view of the fact that any solution to the problem will require three to five years for implementation, the already existing condition could worsen in that time if new connections are allowed.

"While a new plan is definitely needed," he said, "during the intervening time we can see that no additional sewage is coming into the system.

"Instead of spending unnecessary monies for chlorination, repairs or replacement of existing sewer lines it is needed to insure that the sewage will not escape into the bay."

Also cited in Reisberg's letter is the fact that the inaction on the treatment plant is the result of a "lack of concern on the part of those involved in past years, save for those who actually live in close proximity to the plant."

Reisberg said clear water for boating, fishing and bathing is a concern for all residents of the city and that pollution from Nut Island can affect the entire bay.

Holy Week Services At St. John's Church

Holy week services at St. John's Church will continue today (Holy Thursday) with Masses at 8 a.m. and 12:10 p.m.

A Solemn Mass of the Lord's Supper and the Mandatum will be held at 8 p.m. There will be adoration of the Blessed Sacrament following Mass until midnight.

Parish organizations and parishioners will have the opportunity during that period for meditation, prayer and adoration.

On Good Friday, the most solemn day in the church calendar, there will be Stations of the Cross at 12:10 p.m., instead of the usual celebration of Mass.

A harpist will provide meditative music. At 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. there will be the solemn services of Good Friday, including the adoration of the Cross and Holy Communion. A string ensemble will accompany the vocalization of the Passion.

Holy Saturday will include a Solemn Easter Vigil service in both the upper and lower churches at 8 p.m. There will not be any Masses Saturday morning, noon, or at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m., as customary.

Masses to commemorate the Resurrection of Jesus Christ on Easter Sunday will be celebrated at 7, 8:15 and 9:30 a.m. (upper and lower churches); 10 a.m. will be the special Tiny Tots Mass under a tent on the church grounds.

If it rains, it will be held in the school auditorium 11 a.m. (upper and lower churches) and 12:30 and 5:30 p.m.

Community Good Friday Service At Central Baptist

A Community Good Friday Service will be held at Central Baptist Church Washington St., in Quincy Centre, beginning at 12 noon Friday.

The service is co-sponsored by several Protestant churches in Quincy and Braintree whose pastors form the South Shore Evangelical Ministerium.

Theme of the service will be "Carrying the Cross" and will be considered in past, present and future tenses. Proceeding in one hour segments, The Rev. Beale Nauth, Pastor of Heritage Methodist Church, will preach in the first hour; The Rev. Kenneth Rayner, Pastor of the First Baptist Church in Braintree the second; and the Rev. Richard Menes, Rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church of Braintree will preach the third.

In each of the service segments, other members of the Ministerium, the Revs. Louis Mitchell of Fort Square Presbyterian Church, Russell Metcalfe of Wollaston Nazarene, Sidney Veenstra of Central Baptist Church, and Roger Kvam of the First Presbyterian Church, will preside and lead in the prayers. Special music from several churches will also be included in the service.

The public is invited to attend. Those not able to stay the whole service are encouraged to come and go at the breaks on the hour.

Holy Week, Easter Services At Bethany Church

Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, and Easter Sunday services will be held in Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Centre.

A special Maundy Thursday service will be held tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. in the sanctuary.

The first portion of the worship will be the observance of Holy Communion, since Maundy Thursday commemorates Christ's institution of the Last Supper in the Upper Room.

Associate minister, the Rev. Joel F. Huntington will give the meditation on "Passing the Cup" based on the Gospel lesson from Luke 22:7-18.

The senior minister, the Rev. J. William Arnold, will conduct the liturgy. Deacons and deaconesses serving the Communion will be Olive Hodgkins, Russell Hodgkins, Jean Ann MacLean, Kinya Mikami, Edwin Roberts.

The chancel choir, under the direction of Peter F. Krasinski, organist, will sing two anthems by Stainer, "Holy Jesus by Thy Passion," and "Could Ye Not Watch With Me," with Paul N. Allen, baritone soloist.

The second portion of the service will be the fourth century office of Tenebrae, which portrays the dramatic events leading to Christ's arrest, trial, and crucifixion.

As recounted in selected scripture passages, read by persons representing the disciples.

Tenebrae readers will be Richard Pincel, Helene Crofts, Corinne Mikami, Darryl Mikami, Louise Forsyth, Evelyn Kilbourne, Hugh MacFarlane, and Gerard Capobianchi.

As each reading is completed, a candle is extinguished and the sanctuary lights are dimmed until everything is in complete darkness, symbolizing the flight of all Christ's followers who deserted and left him alone in his hour of trial. The service closes in silence.

On Good Friday, April 20, there will be two identical 45-minute devotional services in remembrance of the death and the burial of Jesus. Services, in the Bethany Chapel, will be held at noon, 12:15 to 1 p.m., and in the evening, 7:30 to 8:15 p.m.

Services will include a litany "Confessions at the Tomb," and the cross will be draped in black with a crown of thorns plant on the altar.

Organist Peter Krasinski will offer improvisations for the prelude, "Meditations on the Cross," and for the postlude "Meditations on the Tomb." Soprano Marie Terese Giordano will sing "Crucifixion" by Barber at the noon service, and contralto, Jean E. Bettinson will sing, "He Was Wounded for Our Transgressions" by Dunlop, during the evening worship.

Rev. Huntington will serve as liturgist and Pastor Arnold will give the meditation, "A Great Kindness in Death."

On Easter Sunday at 10 a.m. the Resurrection of Jesus Christ will be celebrated in the Bethany sanctuary. The prelude will include selections by a brass ensemble, composed of Glenn DiBona and Andy Levitsky on trumpet, Robert Levitsky on trombone, Philip Trask on tuba, and Robert McElman, timpanist. The opening fanfare for organ, brass and timpani will be a composition by Peter Krasinski.

The Chancel Choir will sing as the offertory, "Lift High the Cross" by Sateren, and as a climax at the close of the service the brilliant work by Gerre Hancock, "A Song to the Lamb." Guest soprano, Marie Terese Giordano, will also sing the descants to the hymns, Handel's "Thine Is the Glory" will be sung by the Children's Choir.

The Easter Prayer: "An Act of Joyful Adoration" will be lead by Rev. Huntington. The scripture reader for the morning will be Howard S. Willard, Sr.

Pastor Arnold will have a story for the children, "The Beauty of the Lily" written by Frances Jenkins Olett. The sermon, based on the Gospel of John 20:1-31 and entitled "Jesus Stands Among Us" will be delivered by Rev. Arnold.

Some 145 lilies will fill the chancel as symbols of Christ's resurrection and as memorials. Most of the lilies will be given to persons confined to home, in hospitals, or in nursing homes.

The morning will begin with an Easter breakfast at 8:30 a.m. in Bethany's downstairs social hall for church members, friends and guests. The breakfast is sponsored by the Christian Education Committee under the leadership of Gerard Capobianchi with young people serving. Church School classes will be omitted, and the children are encouraged to attend the breakfast and service with their families.

All of the worship services and fellowship functions are open to the community and persons are most welcome to attend. For additional information contact the Bethany church office at 479-7300.

"THANK YOU" Quincy For Being Our Home For 65 Years!

COMMUNITY WEEK is an effort by Eastern Nazarene College to say "thank you" to the Quincy-South Shore community of which the college has been a part for 65 years. Many of our neighboring friends have little idea of the College, its academic programs, Fine Arts presentations, and facilities. We cordially invite all who can to "come get acquainted" during COMMUNITY WEEK 1984!

I hope to meet you during COMMUNITY WEEK. Our campus will be open to you. Come and let us make you welcome!

Eastern Nazarene College is a fully accredited liberal arts college with a reputation for combining the best in education with the best in Christian faith. Named by Channel Seven as "one of the most prestigious colleges in the area", ENC offers Bachelor programs in forty fields and grants 2 year associate degrees with four concentrations. The Graduate Division offers nine programs leading to Masters Degrees in Education, Religion, and Counseling.

Although ENC is sponsored and supported by the Churches of the Nazarene in the Northeast USA, its enrollment policy is fully nondiscriminatory. Currently, approximately one third of the nearly 900 students come from backgrounds that are non-Nazarene and one third come from the South Shore area.

Gregoire Proposes MDC Pool At Great Hill School

Mrs. Mary Crowley Gregoire, a candidate for the City Council from Ward 1, has proposed that the MDC build a recreational facility and swimming pool on the site of the old Great Hill School in Houghs Neck.

She noted in a letter to MDC Commissioner William Geary that the vacant school is slated for demolition and the MDC owes it to the people of Quincy to compensate for beaches polluted by the Nut Island Sewage Treatment Plant.

"I submit that the Great Hill School, with 10 acres of undeveloped land near the ocean, would be a perfect spot for an MDC recreational facility and swimming pool.

"A swimming pool on this site not only would be a good use for the land but fits in with my commitment to preserve open space and help to reduce youth problems in the area by supporting constructive activities."

She said she believes that the MDC could pay for building and running a swimming pool out of MDC Sewer Department funds.

Archbishop Law In Exclusive Interview At Sacred Heart Church Visits Voices Concerns Over Drunk Driving, Pe

By JOHN D. NOONAN
Sun-Channel 8 Reporter

Archbishop Bernard F. Law, making his first official visitation to Quincy, captured the hearts and plaudits of thousands of local residents who attended a Parish Mission Mass he celebrated at Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy or viewed simulcast of the service on Quincy Community Television in their homes.

The newly installed head of the Boston Archdiocese whose members number more than two and a half million faithful not only continues to be warmly and affectionately received wherever he appears, but, for the first time in an exclusive interview with Quincy Sun-Channel 8 TV news, Bishop Law revealed some concerns he has with several local, state or national issues.

At a reception in the Sacred Heart school auditorium following the Mission Mass celebration Bishop Law stated in an interview:

MOST REV. BERNARD F. LAW, Archbishop of Boston, left, was celebrant of a Mass at Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy last week. With him here are Fr. Joseph Scorzello, the archbishop's secretary; Fr. Peter Martocchio, pastor, Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Merrymount; and Fr. Cornelius Heery, Sacred Heart pastor.

• Drunk Driving...we have no right to be a threat to others...there is never a time when the abusive use of alcohol is justified...it is a sin to drink in excess...it is also legally a crime...

• Bishops Peace Pastoral...one of the most misunderstood and incorrectly quoted documents...somebody has done a snow job about what Bishops say in this letter...

• Abortion...I think that it is a scandal that an electorate so fully Catholic as we are does not make a more insistent voice in favor of life...and that is not our record in Massachusetts...

• Parish Councils...are certainly going to be a priority of mine...we all must have the same vision as to what a parish council is...

• Decline in Religious Vocations...it may be true in the U.S....world wide the picture is not that way...we respond to the work that has been done by all of us sharing in it more fully...

• Brotherhood...I hope to be able to further that spirit...we are all brothers and sisters...I hope and certainly pray that I can help bring that about more purposefully...

• Parochial School

EMILE BARRIERE of North Quincy receives Holy Communion from Archbishop Bernard Law. Sacred Heart pastor Fr. Cornelius Heery also distributes Communion.

Education...Catholic schools are entering a growth period, not a decline period...if in the Archdiocese we have a demand and desire for Catholic education far in excess of our ability to supply the demand that may say something about our priorities...

More than 1300 turned out on the last day of the Mission to see and hear Bishop Law at Sacred Heart celebrate Mass and deliver a homily. The upper and lower levels of the church were filled to capacity and the overflow watched on closed circuit television monitors in the school auditorium across the street. The entire service was also telecast simultaneously by Quincy Community Television Channel 3.

The mission was the first ever held at the North Quincy church which was open to persons other than just members of the parish. The theme was "Come Home" and was designed to reach out to anyone who might need spiritual enrichment, counsel or help. "After Sacred Heart There Is Only Heaven" buttons were distributed to everyone in attendance at the Mass.

In his introductory remarks which included reference to President John Adams, a man of strong religious conviction, Rev. Cornelius J. Heery, Pastor of Sacred Heart, said that "when an archbishop comes to a new archdiocese, there is a rebirth - a new beginning."

Every new archbishop has a dream for his people. Share yours with us. We will make it a reality," Fr. Heery stated.

In his homily the Bishop responded by saying "in the name of the church, I say how grateful we are that you have come home."

Some 125 parishioners assisted in the planning and arrangements for the mission which was a year and a half in the organizational stages.

Following the Mass Bishop Law shook hands with several hundred people who gathered in the school cafeteria to greet him. He spent some time also posing for pictures with various well-wishers. An honor guard of Fourth Degree members of the North Quincy Knights of Columbus participated in the church service and reception.

Take care of your own funeral arrangements now.
So your family won't have to later.

By not taking care of your own funeral in advance, you force someone close to you to do it for you.

For the person who accepts the responsibility, making arrangements at the time of need is likely to be filled with uncertainties. The uncertainty of not knowing what you really wanted. Your personal preferences. Perhaps, a favorite dress or suit. A special prayer. A clergyman with whom you are especially close. The uncertainties are endless.

The kindest thing you can do for your family is make your own funeral arrangements far in advance of need. That way everybody will know the kind of funeral you would like to have.

1984 QUINCY CANCER CRUSADE

Tuesday Evening, April 24

1200 volunteers will visit their neighbors to seek contributions to the American Cancer Society.

These Contributions go towards research, educational and patient service programs.

This year, 148,000 Americans who might have been saved, will die of cancer. Why? Because they didn't recognize cancer's warning signs--early on--when cancer is most curable.

On Tuesday, April 24, one of your neighbors will be knocking on your door asking for your support of the American Cancer Society and offering you a special Quick-Test on Cancer Risks. The test will help you determine if you have a higher than normal risk for some cancers and teach you some of the symptoms of cancer.

The Quincy Cancer Crusade urges you to give generously when your neighbor calls and ask for the Quick-Test.

How you live may save your life!

Quincy Edges Weymouth N., 7-6 Loses To Don Bosco

The Quincy baseball team, with only two returning starters, opened the season with two interesting non-league games last week, winning one and losing one in the last innings.

Bud Mosher's Presidents edged Weymouth North last Friday, 7-6, with a run in the seventh, after losing to Don Bosco, 6-4, in their opener in which they led, 4-3, going into the seventh.

Quincy, which has several scrimmages lined up this week, will open its Suburban League season Monday when it plays at Brookline at 3:30. Wednesday it will host Brockton at 3:30 at Adams Field.

Last Friday sophomore Larry Taglieri stepped into the hero's role when, in his first varsity at-bat, lined a single into left field in the last inning to drive in the winning run against Weymouth North.

"Larry had been a little discouraged because he hadn't played yet," said Mosher. "I told him to try to hit the ball about 120 feet and he hit a nice line drive."

The Presidents loaded the bases in the seventh on a walk to Joe Ciardi, an error and another walk, setting the stage for Taglieri.

Weymouth reached starter Joe Conti for three runs in the second inning and a 3-0 lead, but Quincy scored an unearned run in the bottom of the inning and Mike Notarangelo drew a bases-loaded walk in the third to make it 3-2.

Quincy took a 5-3 lead in the fourth with Pat Calabro singling in a run, and Andy Palamariello adding a two-run single.

Weymouth scored three runs off Notarangelo, who struck out nine in a fine bit of relief, in the sixth but freshman Steve Austin tied it for Quincy with an RBI single in the bottom of the inning.

In the opener against Don Bosco on a cold, rainy, snowy day, both teams made a number of opening day mistakes.

"It was only our sixth time outside and we really need work," Mosher said.

"We made the typical early-season mistakes that cost us."

Quincy took the lead in the first on singles by Notarangelo and Conti but Don Bosco scored three times in the third.

The Presidents cut the gap to 3-2 in the third when Mark Chambers walked, moved to third on Austin's single and scored on a fielder's choice.

Quincy went ahead, 4-3, in the sixth when Conti singled and scored on Joe Cullen's double. Cullen, however, was caught off second, one of three Quincy base runners picked off. Ciardi walked and later scored on Palamariello's single.

However, Bosco came back with three runs in the top of the seventh to pull out the win.

Notarangelo started for the Presidents but Conti took the loss in relief. The two Quincy pitchers combined to allow seven hits and struck out nine. But they also gave up nine walks.

Quincy Girls Display Power But Lose, 11-10

Veteran Quincy girls' softball coach Barbara Webster is lacking numbers this spring and the First Ladies face a rugged battle as they prepare for the Suburban League season.

The Quincy girls displayed plenty of offense in their non-league opener last week but dropped an 11-10 decision to Boston Latin at White Stadium.

They met East Boston Tuesday and will open their league season Monday against Brookline at Faxon Field at 3:30. Next Wednesday they play at Brockton and Thursday will be home to Cambridge Rindge and Latin, all at 3:30 p.m.

Miss Webster has only one senior, Capt. Susan Morrison, who is back at second base.

The other returnees are hard hitting pitcher Kathy Thornton, shortstop Beth Veneto, third baseman Chris Cucinattis and catcher Andrea Griffin, who last year played shortstop.

Karen Eames, Mary Ellen Thomas, Debbie Herron and Colleen Phillips are the outfielders and Cindy Callahan, up from the sub-varsity, is the first baseman.

QJC Wins, Loses In Season Openers

By PETE ZOIA

Dave Burke's Quincy Junior College baseball team opened the season last week and broke even in two games.

The Jaguars opened with a 4-2 win over New Prep but dropped a 7-6 squeaker to Blue Hills Technical School at Canton. Games with Blue Hills and Bristol Community College were rained out.

QJC will play North Shore Community College next Wednesday at 3:15 at O'Rourke Field and will host Blue Hills next Thursday at 3:30 at O'Rourke.

The opening win was highlighted by the pitching of Bob McCabe, who gave up only four hits, struck out five and walked two. His strikeouts came at crucial times, usually ending an inning. He helped his own cause with a double, single and base on balls.

QJC scored three runs in the first when Steve Ondrick singled, stole second and scored on McCabe's double. Tony Chiochio drove in McCabe with a single and Paul Gordon drove in Chiochio with a solid smash to center field.

New Prep was blanked until the fifth when an infield hit, triple and sacrifice fly accounted for its runs.

The Jaguars completed their scoring with a run in the fifth on a walk to Mike Jachning, who stole second, and McCabe's single.

Burke was impressed with the defense of both teams. "For an opener, it was well-played. I thought our infield played exceptionally well," he said.

QJC pulled off a fine 4-6-3 double play started by Tom O'Connell. O'Connell made another dazzling play, going deep to his left and throwing the batter out. Gordon also made an excellent play at shortstop.

McCabe was the only QJC batter with two hits, while O'Connell had a triple and Ondrick, Chiochio and Gordon each had a hit.

The Saturday morning loss to Blue Hills was also a well-played game. Blue Hills pitcher Tom Richmond gave up eight hits and had 12 strikeouts.

The Jaguars again opened the scoring with two runs in the first. McCabe singled and stole second, Chiochio walked and O'Connell drove both home with a ringing double to left-center.

Blue Hills tied the score with runs in the first and fourth innings.

QJC starter Joe Smith pitched well until the fifth when an infield error and a walk led to a four-run inning as the home team collected four hits.

Bill Flynn relieved Smith to start the sixth and a double and single gave Blue Hills the winning run.

QJC added a run in the sixth and scored three runs in the seventh but the rally fell short.

The Jaguar defense again sparked. O'Connell ran a country mile to pull a fly ball and the team pulled off two more fast double plays, one a perfect relay from right fielder Rich Vent to first basemen Dan Dunn to catcher Chiochio, cutting down the runner at the plate.

Chiochio had three hits and two RBI, Dunn had two hits and McCabe, O'Connell and Brian Miller one each.

Sports Memories

By TOM HENSHAW

Conley, Donovan Lead N. Quincy Over Thayer

Tom Conley's double and Dick Donovan's triple highlighted a six-run seventh inning as Coach Hal Forest's North Quincy High School baseball team walloped Thayer Academy, 11-6, on the latter's field in Braintree.

Scotty Whitelaw had three singles, each producing a run, for the Raiders and Conley also belted a triple, which might have been a home run had he not slipped and fallen on the soggy third base line and was tagged out.

Bill Walsh went the route on the mound for North, allowing seven hits and striking out 10. His Thayer nemesis was Webby Durant, who had a triple, a double and two singles in the losing cause.

The North Quincy lineup included: McDonald lf, Whitelaw 2b, Gallagher c, Conley 1b, Burke 3b, Wirth rf, Humphrey cf, Donovan ss, Walsh p.

QUINCY BOWS IN 10TH

Hingham's Joe Menice singled home Bob Basiliere with one run and Mickey Valentino scored on a fly ball as the Harbormen defeated the Quincy High School baseball team, 8-7, in 12 innings at Adams Field.

Lou Marini had three hits, including an inside-the-park home run, for the Presidents.

Quincy scored one run in the last of the 12th when John Werme walked, took second on a wild pitch, went to third on a passed ball and scored on Bob Weasell's sacrifice fly. Werme and Kelly allowed Hingham only nine hits.

QUINCY TEAMS WIN

Cookie Needel and Giffy McKinnon scored 16 points between them as the Quincy Pointers whipped the Mayor Tobin Club of Boston, 18-13, to win the Midget Division title in the Boys Club basketball tournament at the Charlestown YMCA.

Pratt Returns To North As Girls Softball Coach

By TOM SULLIVAN

Mary Pratt who, in her playing days, was one of the outstanding all-around female athletes in the country, has coached several Quinco and North Quincy teams on the high school and junior high level.

She is back at her alma mater this spring as coach of the North Quincy girls' softball team, taking over for Lou Ioanilli, and was greeted by an excellent turnout of 45 as the Raiderettes prepare for their opener April 23 against Weymouth North at Artery Field.

The Boston University Hall-of-Famer, who coached the Quincy girls' softball team for two years when the sport was first started in the Quincy schools, has a squad led by seven returning seniors.

They include three-year veteran Mary Holleran, hard-hitting first baseman; Lisa Ventola, who became the first string pitcher during the last half of last season; outfielder Kerry Gannon, catcher Cheryl Murphy, infielders Ann Sousa and Sandra Whitehouse and Sheila Graham, who previously caught but who will play the infield or outfield this year because of knee problems.

"I have been impressed by the versatility of many of the players," Miss Pratt said. "We appear to be lacking in depth, but many of the girls are capable of playing at a number of different positions."

Junior candidates include Michelle Ceurvels, Ann Duggan and Valerie Papapetros, who have looked impressive. "Michelle and Ann would appear to add a great deal of speed to the outfield and Valerie has shown great potential at third base," said the veteran coach.

Other juniors are Tracey Barnes, Diane Callow, Joanie Doherty, Jennifer Killeen, Maureen Ridge and Liesi McDonough.

Sixteen sophomores turned out and outstanding prospects for the varsity are Noreen Connolly, Melissa DeAngelo and Carolyn O'Reilly. Noreen rates as the number two pitcher and a strong candidate for shortstop. Melissa is a scrappy catching prospect and Carolyn would like to find a home at third base.

There are a number of good looking freshmen, the tops being Ann Anderson, Tricia Grant and Nancy Leonard.

Ann looks like varsity calibre, is the team's number three pitcher and a strong candidate for a starting outfield berth. Other freshman hopefuls are Jackie Fennessey, Ann McGuigan, Kari Jancaterino, Debbie Brigette, Kim Ridnisky and Linda Kane.

The Raiderettes have held scrimmages with Braintree, Milton and Quincy and will face a 16-game schedule as they hope to make the post-season tournament for the first time.

Miss Pratt is being assisted by junior varsity coach Kevin Jago and freshman coach Mary Lydon.

"We probably should be referring to Mary Lydon as Doctor, since she holds her PhD from Boston University," Miss Pratt said. "How often does one have the elegance of a coach with a doctorate?"

North Edges Williams

North Quincy's baseball team got off to a good start last Saturday when it held on to defeat Abp. Williams, 7-5, at Adams Field in a battle of veteran teams.

The scheduled return game between the two Monday at Braintree was rained out and will be rescheduled.

North coach Charlie Bunker has nine returnees from last season's team which barely missed making the tournament and veteran Williams coach Connie Carozzi, who has been coaching for more than 30 years after starring in the old South Shore League, has 12 back from last year's club which made the tournament.

The Bishops are among the favorites this spring in the Catholic Conference. Carozzi, incidentally, is an assistant coach for Morissette Legion.

The Raiders will host Bay State League power Natick Saturday morning at 11 at Adams Field, will play at Weymouth North Monday at 3:30 and will open their Suburban League season next Wednesday at Newton North at 7 p.m.

John Comeau pitched superbly for five innings in the opener and, thanks to the long-ball hitting of Keith Smith, had a 7-2 lead after five.

The Bishops scored two unearned runs in the third and Comeau ran into trouble in the sixth when he gave up three runs on a double, wild pitch, hit batter, another double, an infield hit and a sacrifice fly.

North took a 1-0 lead in the first on a walk to Steve Hogan, who stole second, a wild pitch, another walk to Chris Bunker, and Hogan scored when Bunker was thrown out stealing.

Williams took a 2-1 lead in the third, the runs scoring on a two-base error.

North exploded for four runs in the bottom of the third. Rich Books reached on a two-base error, Steve Higgins walked, Hogan had an infield hit, filling the bases, Bunker was hit by a pitch, forcing in the tying run, Higgins was forced at the plate but Smith hit a long triple to the 385-foot sign in right field to clear the bases.

In the fourth North added a run on an infield hit, a single by Brooks and a wild throw. The Raiders finished with a run in the fifth on Jack Bolster's single and Smith's long double to the fence in left.

The Bishops mounted a serious threat in the seventh, filling the bases on relief pitcher Hogan. But Hogan reared back and struck out the final batter, saving Comeau's win and ending the game.

"This was a good one to win," Bunker said. "We had only a couple of scrimmages and this cold weather was tough to play in. Comeau did a fine job and Smith really hit those two."

"North has a fine team," said Carozzi. "This kind of weather is tough for everyone. We have a veteran team and I think we will do well in our league. I lost my number one pitcher with a hand injury and hope he will be back when we open our league season. I think North Quincy will do very well in the Suburban League this year."

Crehan Leads North Girls Over Brockton

A brilliant performance by senior co-captain Eileen Crehan sparked the North Quincy girls' track team to a 60-58 victory over perennial power Brockton last week as the Raiderettes continued the year-long win streak (the cross country and winter track teams were undefeated) and made Jeff Hennessy's head coaching debut a success.

Hennessy, who started several of the North girls on their careers as director of the Quincy Track Club, takes over for veteran coach Lou Tozzi, who has taken the spring off but will return next fall as cross country coach.

The Raiderettes will meet Brookline next Tuesday at 3:30 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Crehan set a school record and became only the third girl in the state to surpass 140 feet in the javelin as she won the event at 140.5. She also won the shot put with a personal best 37.94.

The North girls rolled to a 22-5 lead after a 1-2 in the long jump and two-mile and a 1-3 in the shot put.

Brockton, however, came back due to its strength in the sprints and relays and stayed within striking distance until North swept the mile, always a strong event for the Raiderettes.

North's other winners were Georgia Traficante in the long jump, Ann Tolland in the two-mile, Mary Ann Kelleher in the 880 and Tricia Barrett in the mile.

Taking seconds were Laura Ciulla in the long jump, 100 and 220; Tricia Leary in the two-mile, Traficante in the javelin, Lori Magrath in the hurdles, Noreen Connolly in the discus (personal best 102-0), Diane Lindenfelzer in the 880 and Tracy Corrigan in the mile.

Placing third were Connolly in the shot, Leann Fitzgerald in the 440 and Julie Walsh in the mile.

Brockton swept both relays and took first and third in the 100 and 220.

"I was very pleased with the win and the performances of our underclassmen," Hennessy said.

"Forty-seven of our 60 points were scored by underclassmen, including 20 by freshmen, so that's a good sign for the future."

"We knew Brockton was going to be tough, but going 1-2 in the long jump was a surprise and made the difference because Brockton made no mistakes all day."

Hennessy was also surprised by the performances of Crehan.

"She bears watching now," he said. "We weren't ready to see that kind of a performance so early in the season. I have no idea what she's capable of now. The sky is the limit."

"I want to thank Mike Burke and our new assistant, Peter Chrisom Jr., son of our principal, who has helped in the field events."

North will enter several girls in the B. C. Relays with Crehan and Traficante in the javelin today (Thursday) and the 4 x 880 relay team competing on Saturday.

SKATEBOARDING SAFETY TIPS

Last year there were an estimated 27,500 skateboarding injuries serious enough to be treated in hospitals, 8 1/2 times as many as there were in 1974. Parents who buy them for their children should take steps to minimize accidents.

Equipment. Buy skateboards that are well constructed; they cost more but they're safer. Check the skateboard each week or so for any loose nuts or screws and to see that the wheels spin freely and are not wearing down unevenly. Require your child to wear protective equipment—at least a helmet and gloves, and ideally elbow and knee pads, too.

Safety Rules. Impress upon your child the importance of these do's and don'ts:

Do apply non-skid tape to the top of the skateboard. Don't skate in streets that are heavily traveled or on sidewalks where other people are walking. Do avoid sloping surfaces where it's easy to lose control of the skateboard. Don't hitch rides on moving vehicles. Do skateboard with a friend.

HOLLYWOOD—Growing up in the Detroit area during the 1960's left me with some vivid memories. There were the terrible riots, the Tigers winning the World Series, and the glory days of America's big cars with their big fins and big engines.

Probably my most lasting memory, and the one which comes back to haunt me nearly everyday, is the music created on the streets of the Motor City. I was there for the birth of the Motown sound, and maybe that's why it hurts so much when a part of it dies. You see, back in those turbulent times Marvin Gaye was my main man . . . and now he's gone.

Handling the growing pains of adolescence was made much easier knowing that every other month or so a new Marvin Gaye song would be flooding the Detroit air waves, "Marvelous Marvin," as we used to call him was the epitome of cool. He just always seemed to have his act together. I guess this is just another disillusion of youth.

One of Marvin Gaye's biggest hits, and one of my fondest Motor City memories says it best when it asks the question, "What's Going On?" Where in the world are we headed? Since my days as a boy in Detroit, I've seen bullets pass through the bodies of three presidents, a Pope, a Beatie, and now Marvin Gaye. Truly I wonder what's going on?

Like all of us, Marvin Gaye's life had its ups and downs. His tremendous popularity of the 60's faded during the late 70's as both his life and his career entered a self-imposed period of re-examination. It's only been in the past couple of years that he once again surfaced as one of the most charismatic entertainers to ever grace a stage.

Twice last year the world witnessed the magic of Marvin Gaye when he made two very electrifying appearances on CBS Television. During Motown's 25th Anniversary special he proved to be the cream of the Motor City crop of alumni when he strolled on stage, dressed in pure white, and brought the house down with a medley of his million selling memory makers.

His other, and probably most memorable television appearance came as a surprise when he unveiled his incredible rendition of the national anthem before last year's National Basketball Association All-Star game held in Los Angeles. I've seen some unbelievable athletic performances at L.A.'s Forum, but none can compare with Gaye's arrangement of The Star-Spangled Banner. In a very tasteful manner he added a touch of soul to his very patriotic tribute to America.

A few months ago there was talk of Columbia Records releasing Gaye's version of the anthem. It seems only fitting that at this time the label would put out this stirring memorial to Marvin Gaye.

As a young reporter, one of my first interviews was with Marvin Gaye and his singing partner, Tammi Terrell. When she died from a brain tumor, at the age of 23, I remember experiencing that helpless, often numb feeling that accompanies news of death. Today, I've got that feeling again.

As Marvin Gaye sings in "What's Going On," . . . "Father, Father, there's far too many of us dying." How true . . . damn, how true.

Got a question for your favorite star? I'll track 'em down for you. Send questions and comments to James S. Leach c/o THE VIDEO CONNECTION, 22761 Pacific Coast Hwy., Malibu, Calif. 90265.

WEEK OF: APRIL 19

AQUARIUS — January 21-February 19
Romantic misunderstanding can get out of hand — clear the air by the weekend at the latest. In education and career, raise expectations and carefully map out your goals.

PISCES — February 20-March 20
Being more candid with loved ones helps you attain key personal goal, and branching out brings positive career results. The arts play an important role in your life right now.

ARIES — March 21-April 20
You're organization personified, which brings plaudits on the job or in the home. One note of caution: Watch tendency to organize the lives of the people you love most.

TAURUS — April 21-May 22
Week's off to slow start, then you tend to overcommit yourself. Moderation's essential in physical activity; avoid tendency to do too little one day, too much the next.

GEMINI — May 23-June 21
You excel when it comes to fighting for a worthy cause, the cause this week is especially noble. Rearranged plans are for the best, leading to a lively weekend.

CANCER — June 22-July 22
Career victory is in sight — fact is critical. Romantic mixups are sprinkled through weekend. New spring look accents bright colors and the occasional dramatic touch.

LEO — July 23-August 22
Some friction in family matters may be unavoidable, but maintain your sense of perspective — and sense of fun. Ailing friends appreciate your devotion more than you really know.

VIRGO — August 23-September 22
Spring fever strikes with a vengeance, as your mind wanders from past to future. Try to express yourself creatively, your gifts in this area are quite considerable.

LIBRA — September 23-October 22
A sports or recreation program can include some pleasant fringe benefits. Community activities are favored. Older relatives can be a source of information plus inspiration.

SCORPIO — October 23-November 21
Attitudes in general are changing, and a new spring look can reflect the new you. Financial questions are answered by the weekend. Travel opportunity is worth exploring.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22-December 22
A new spring look can help boost your confidence, provided you don't try anything too extreme. Being more methodical, more objective helps you attain key goal on schedule.

CAPRICORN — December 23-January 20
Romantic judgment is clear, you can make your moves and your decisions with confidence. Relationships with older people are accented. Home improvement scheme may need more planning.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
Competitive, pioneering, full of originality and often spontaneous. These are your strengths — among others — but there are weaknesses too: lack of subtlety, lack of perspective, lack of discretion. For the sake of friendship, work on the last-named "lack of" — especially in the summer months.

Quincy Girls Bow, Rebound

The Quincy girls' track team again is small in numbers and extremely young but there are some excellent individual performers who have looked good in early meets.

The First Ladies, with only one senior and one junior, were outclassed by perennial power Brockton, 89-29, but bounced back last week to earn an unusual 59-59 tie with Brookline.

The Quincy girls will be at Waltham next Tuesday for a 3:15 p.m. meet.

"This is a very young team with mostly freshmen and sophomores," said Coach Ralph Koelsch, who handles the runners (John Franceschini coaches the field events). "It is a real rebuilding year and we are still looking for more girls to join."

"As with many of Quincy athletic programs, track has been hurt by Prop 2½ and the subsequent lack of a middle school track program. But there is the beginning of a good quality program for Quincy High girls track and we hope to see some new faces to go with our young nucleus."

Incidentally, the boys' program has been cancelled this year but it is hoped it will be revived next spring.

Among the top performers for the First Ladies are Mary Lou Wirtz (100, 200, long jump) and Cindy Morrell (shot put, discus and relays).

Runners showing promise are Sharon Steen, Kris Mullaney, Jennifer Golden, Chris Zupkofska, Julie Coste, Jill Fitzgerald, Laurie Pitts, Patty Wright, Kim Ellis, Diane Trubiano and Mary Kelly.

Leading the way in the field events are Kim Kelly, Pitts, Zupkofska, Mullaney and Tina Calabro.

In last week's tie with Brookline, several girls placed in three events for the undermanned First Ladies.

Morrell won the discus with a toss of 79.4 and placed second in the shot put and 440.

Hatfield Leading In Mass. Bowling State Tourney

Neil Hatfield, 15-year-old captain of the Atlantic Fuel Oil team, is leading the Senior Boys 'All Events' competition in the Mass. Bowling Association State Championships being held at the Mohegan Lanes, Webster, after two weeks, with a 1421 for 13 strings.

Hatfield compiled the score with a 311 team total; 568 Senior Boys five strings singles and a 542 Senior Boys doubles for five strings.

Brian Flanagan, capt. of the Montclair Men's Club, rolled a 1366 and is presently in third place.

Hatfield and partner John Broadbent had a 5-string 1062 second place in the Senior Boys doubles, and Hatfield's 568 is good for third in the singles to date.

Little Loop Senior team rolled a 1485, (paced by Dave Dionne's 321), now in 5th place, and the Juniors 1270 is in the 8th spot. Bob Kovalsky, 269, was high bowler.

Ten-year old Chris Stenmon (Harold Club) stole the show in the Junior 5-string singles with a 467, high for the Little Loop entrants with a 94 - 93 - 96 - 87 - 97 (467). A remarkable feat for the small but poised North Quincy youngster.

Koch Club Women Bowling Champs

The Koch Club Women's Bowling League A-Team defeated the Rag Dolls of Quincy, 1530-1514, in the finals of the fifth annual South Shore Women's Candlepin Bowling Tourney Sunday at the East Weymouth Bowl-A-Way to win the title.

The Koch Club fell behind by seven pins to the Rag Dolls in the opening string as Dorry DeGrazia rolled a 133 for the losers while the Koch Club was dropping under the 500 mark its first and only time in 15 strings of tourney competition but Barbara Murphy's 118 and Theresa Bonetti's 109 kept the champs in contention.

With both teams hitting their potential scoring punch in the second string, the Rag Dolls increased their lead to 16 pins entering the final by out-scoring the Koch Club, 527-518, in the second string as Donna Vallatini led a balanced scoring attack for the losers with 117 while Captain Maryellen Walsh paced the winners firing a 126 for the Koch's.

The Koch Club displayed its championship form in the third and final string when midway through Maryellen Walsh, Theresa Bonetti and Barbara Murphy all marked while Debra Koch chipped in a nine pin spare to insure the victory. The Koch Club women again displayed a come from behind surge to achieve the win as they had done in previous tourney competition.

Maryellen Walsh was high roller for the winning Koch Club with 338 while Theresa Bonetti had a 319 and Barbara Murphy 310.

Dorry DeGrazia posted a 356 for the losing Rag Dolls while Barbara DiCristofaro had a 302 and Donna Vallatini 301.

The Koch Club Captain Maryellen Walsh was recognized as the tournaments most valuable player and was presented with a plaque as she finished the five tourney matches with a 114. average. Other Koch Club scorers included Theresa Bonetti with a 104, average in 15 strings of tourney competition while Debra Koch had a 103, average, Barbara Murphy, 101, and Edie Maher, 96.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

Steve Downing, Manager

WHO ARE THE BUYERS

QUESTION: Can you classify types of buyers and how each class operates?

ANSWER: Basically, there are three classes of people who look at homes. The first is in a hurry to move. They may have been transferred or already sold their present home. These are the buyers. The second kind is looking for a real bargain. They look only for ads by owners and for thousands of dollars under fair market value. The third kind will never buy. They enjoy looking at homes for a pastime.

Since Realtors publish 85% of classified home sale ads, the 2nd and 3rd groups of non-buyers will be compressed into viewing only 15% of the ads. It makes sense to list with a REALTOR.

85% of home sale ads are published by Realtors.

Snowy At Easter

By STEVE RAYNE
Francis Parker School, Gr. 3
One day a rabbit named Snowy, was lost.

That wasn't going to stop him from bringing candies to the little boys and girls. Only one thing could stop him from that.

The one thing was the hunters that have been trying to track him down for nine years. If they get him this year there will be no Easter. Oh! He said to himself, "They're here."

Then he heard a gunshot. Oh! No! They must be going after some other rabbit. I have to help him.

Snowy saw his friends Thumper, Pinky, and Snowball. They were being followed by the hunters that were looking for him.

Snowy was scared but didn't want his friends to die. He ran out on the path and followed the hunters. The hunters stopped to shoot when a tree fell. It was a camper looking for firewood. The hunters looked and Snowy led the rabbits away.

Now the rabbits all had a happy Easter. They were all glad they wouldn't have to go through another nine years of this.

Validated Parking Open Next Week?

Validated parking could begin in downtown Quincy next week, possibly as early as Tuesday.

Arthur Foley, the mayor's aide, is scheduled to meet with Kinney Systems and Cincinnati Time tomorrow (Friday) morning "to get this thing wrapped up."

"It's possible that on Friday we'll be able to say, 'Here we go!'" said Foley. "An opening date could come out of the Friday meeting."

Cincinnati Time has just about finished installing equipment in the Ross and Hancock Parking Areas. Kinney will operate the lots once the work is done.

"We are now arranging to turn the power on," said Mayor Francis X. McCauley. "The heads of the parking meters will have to be taken off on the weekend before the opening."

McCauley said the badly needed repaving of the Hancock lot will be done later so as not to delay the opening of the validated parking.

"The Hancock lot is in bad condition and we know it," he said.

The Mayor said that Kinney Systems for the past few days has been interviewing people for jobs in the lot and has been selling validating stickers.

Bradlee's Groundbreaking Soon At Presidents Plaza

Groundbreaking ceremonies will be held "in the very near future" for a new Bradlee's department store in Presidents Plaza on Quincy Ave., according to an announcement by Mayor Francis X. McCauley.

Now that a traffic signal on Quincy Ave. at the Plaza entrance has been approved by the state, said the Mayor, more than $2 million will be expended on a major renovation and expansion of the shopping center.

Up to 300 new jobs, both full and part time, will be created when Bradlee's and a Medi-Mart Super Drug Store open in the fall. McCauley said new assessments will triple tax revenues from the property.

The existing tenants, Kustom TV, Radio Shack and Milo Beauty Shop, will remain and a spokesman for the developer, Presidents Plaza Limited Partnership, said other tenants are being sought.

Both Bradlee's and Medi-Mart are subsidiaries of the Stop and Shop company, whose corporate offices are located in Quincy Center Plaza in Quincy Square.

"Stop and Shop chose Quincy as a major target area and have entered into a long-term lease with the development firm," said McCauley.

"Spokesman for the development firm reveal that the city of Quincy has shown significant stability in its demographics, its disposable income and spending habits in the past decade which warranted significant attention and development of the project.

Open Space Hearing Cancelled

A public hearing on open space scheduled for Monday at City Hall, was cancelled because it was advertised too late.

The zoning change to be heard would have created two classes of open space, one for privately owned land, the other for publicly owned land.

The plan was designed to clear the way for a road to be built through open space at Boston Harbor Marina as a second access to the condominiums being constructed there.

Planning Director James

Lydon said the plan is being abandoned and replaced by a plan proposed by City Council Joanne Condon for a land swap.

The swap would involve open space land for planned unit development land on the Marina site so that the road could be built.

Lydon said the Planning Board will hold a hearing on that proposal Monday, April 30, possibly in conjunction with the City Council.

Adams Shore Fill Hearing

The Quincy Conservation Commission was scheduled to hold a public hearing yesterday (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. on a bid by William A. Dwyer to fill some 750 square feet of land at 98 Utica St. and 2-6 Eaton Rd., Adams Shore.

Survey Shows Pay Among Best Mayor Takes A 'No Raise' Stand On Police, Fire

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Francis X. McCauley released Tuesday the results of a survey that shows the Quincy Police and Fire Department to be among the best staffed and highest paid of comparable cities in the state.

Perhaps not coincidentally, the city and the fire and police unions have started negotiations for new contracts. The old ones are due to expire on June 30.

"There is not a heck of a lot of money available for salary increases in 1985," said McCauley. "We will present a bargaining position of no pay increases for fiscal 1985."

He said David Grunebaum, the city's labor negotiator, has been meeting with the unions on and off since February and "communicating the financial situation to them" in preliminary sessions.

The survey of police and fire protection in Quincy was conducted by Donald Hansen, the city personnel director, with the assistance of Arthur Foley, the mayor's administrative assistant.

In it, the personnel, salaries and activities of the Quincy police and fire departments were compared to those of 14 other cities of comparable size and one town (Weymouth).

"The city of Quincy clearly ranks far above the average and is second only to Cambridge in dollars spent per resident for police and fire services," said McCauley.

Statistics in the survey show that Quincy spends $84.69 per capita on its Fire Department and $87.20 per capita on its Police Department.

Board Continues McDonald's Request

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The License Board postponed a decision Tuesday on a proposed McDonald's restaurant in North Quincy, but City Clerk John Gillis said the board will definitely take action on the request May 1.

The matter was postponed at the request of Ward 2 Councillor John J. Lydon, Jr., who stated in a letter to the board that "several matters of public interest that should be addressed relative to this proposal have come to my attention over the past few days."

Lydon said he would like to be present at the hearing, but would be on vacation through April 27.

Atty. Patricia Hunt, who represents McDonald's, objected to the continuance because the public hearing part of the request is closed, and because Lydon did not include specifics in his letter.

However, Miss Hunt acknowledged that it was the board's prerogative to continue the matter.

Gillis, who is also license board chairman, said that only Lydon will be allowed to speak at next week's hearing, and Miss Hunt may give a rebuttal.

At last week's License Board meeting, proponents and opponents discussed the request for more than an hour.

Miss Hunt told the board John P. Gillis is requesting a common victualer license for McDonald's at 275 and 295 Hancock St.

His son, Steve Gillis, who also operates the McDonald's on Southern Artery, Quincy, and in Weymouth, would manage the North Quincy restaurant on the first floor of the former Otis Elevator Building, she said.

President of the Quincy Center Business & Professional Association, Gillis would employ 70 full and part-time employees at the restaurant which would seat 104 customers, Miss Hunt said.

Frank Ching, a registered professional engineer, said a traffic study of the area indicated the restaurant would not have much more impact on the area.

However, Ward 6

Councillor Joanne Condon said the restaurant would aggravate an already traffic congested area. She also cited the close proximity of schools to the site and said increased pedestrian traffic would also contribute to congestion.

She pointed out the possibility of congested traffic slowing down the response time of a nearby fire station.

Mrs. Condon, who could not attend this week's board meeting because of a conflict in schedule, also sent a letter to the board.

She stated that a right turn only sign on the McDonald's property, which was proposed last week, would be illegal and would back up traffic in front of the fire station.

Mrs. Condon also pointed out that the MBTA has a right-of-way on the McDonald's plan, and that a variance might be needed for off-street parking facilities.

Next week's meeting begins at 10 a.m. at City Hall.

Reisberg Draws No. 1 Ballot Spot

Bernard Reisberg has drawn the No. 1 spot on the May 15 special preliminary election ballot for the City Council from Ward 1.

Kevin Davis will have the No. 2 spot, Robert Johnston

No. 3, Mary Crowley Greigore No. 4 and Michael Cheney No. 5.

The drawing for ballot place was held Monday in the City Clerk's office.

Correction

The Quincy Sun regrets that in last week's edition because of a typographical error, a headline referred to Archbishop Bernard Law as Archbishop Lord.

The headline referred to a special section inside the paper featuring photos and an exclusive interview with Archbishop Law during his visit to Sacred Heart Church in North Quincy.

The special section correctly referred to him as Archbishop Law.

Condon, La Raia Clash On Parking Lot Sale

City Councillors Joanne Condon and Joseph J. LaRaia clashed last week over the proposed sale of some 1,000 square feet of city owned land in North Quincy for expansion of a parking lot.

The proposal was in LaRaia's Land Conveyance Committee and he refused to let it come out for a vote because, he said, he needed "to have a point cleared up."

The land in question adjoins the parking lot of David Chu's Cathay Pacific Restaurant at Hancock St. and Newport Ave. Extension and Chu has offered $2,000 for it to enlarge his parking lot.

The matter has been in committee since Feb. 6.

Condon said the North Quincy community is anxious to see that Chu gets the land because it is holding up the parking lot expansion and parking is an acute problem around the restaurant.

LaRaia at first refused to detail his reasons for keeping it in committee but, in the face of Condon's questioning, he finally said he thought the city could get more than $2,000 for the land.

Condon sought a Council vote to force the sale out of committee but it failed by a 6 - 2 margin with only Councillor John J. Lydon voting on her side.

NEW MEMBERS of the Democratic State Committee, James French of Quincy and Rosemary Coffey of Braintree, are congratulated by Sen. Paul Harold after their election at the district caucus. Robert Gibbons and Kathy O'Donnell, both of Quincy, elected earlier, are at right.

Council Approves Sears UDAG Application

The City Council has approved the application for a $1.1 million federal urban development action grant (UDAG) to build a parking garage in connection with a renovated Sears building in downtown Quincy.

F. X. Messina Enterprises of Braintree has proposed to purchase the building for $2.1 million from the Faxon Trust and convert it into as many as 10 retail stores on two levels -- the Parkingway and Hancock St.

The Council's Ordinance Committee held a surprise public hearing on the UDAG last week so that the application could meet the April 30 deadline set by the federal government. Final action on the sale is conditional on the UDAG.

The federal grant would be used to construct a parking garage in the rear of the building, tied in with the city-owned Ross Parking Garage.

Councillors were told that the converted store would include a walkway through the building that would provide access to the retail stores and also create a flow of foot traffic through the Parkingway to Hancock St.

Present at the informal hearing were Francis X. Messina and Arthur Stavris of F. X. Messina Enterprises and Eden Milroy of Arrowstreet, the architectural firm.

Fences Proposed For Pools

City Councillor Patricia Toland has filed an ordinance that would require fences around swimming pools to keep young unattended children from falling in.

The proposal, which was sent to the Council's Ordinance Committee for consideration, would call for a fine of $100 for each day that a violation continues.

It would apply to any swimming pool, fish pond or other body of water 24 inches or more in depth. The fence would have to be at least six feet high with self-closing latches four feet above the ground.

Board Denies License For Plaza Liquor Store

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
The new Pilgrim Plaza in Quincy Point will have a variety of stores, but a liquor store apparently won't be one of them.

The License Board voted 4 to 1 Tuesday to deny a request from Presidential Liquors for transfer of its retail all alcoholic license from 1222 Hancock St., Quincy Sq., to 21 Scammell St.

City Clerk John Gillis was in favor.

Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro told the board he was "definitely opposed" to the license transfer.

"I may have phrased it differently before," said DeCristofaro, referring to an earlier meeting when he said he felt he couldn't legally oppose the request because it was a transfer within the ward.

DeCristofaro said Quincy Point is overburdened with liquor stores. He also expressed surprise that Gillis, a Quincy Point resident, favored the request.

Gillis said he has continually voted for businesses where it is zoned correctly.

Atty. Carl Johnson, representing owners John J. Martin and Charles O'Leary, said the store is being forced to change its location because of the sale of the Elks Building. He gave the board a petition signed by proponents.

Johnson said the two men have their life's savings invested in the business, and that the plaza location with off-street parking is better than a main road with no off-street parking.

Stacia LaFavre, daughter of Martinsen St. resident Charles R. Martensen, questioned whether liquor was prohibited when the Board of Appeals Zoning granted a variance for the plaza.

Mrs. LaFavre also gave the board a petition signed by residents opposed to the request, including the Rev. William McCarthy, pastor of St. John's Church.

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald said the variance did not prohibit a liquor store, but said he agreed that Ward 2 has more than its share of liquor establishments.

Police Capt. Paul Nestor said a disadvantage of the move to Scammell St. would be the close proximity to Faxon Park and Martensen St. which have been trouble spots.

Fire Chief Edward Barry and Health Commr. Dr. M. Grace Hussey were also opposed.

Johnson said that his clients will appeal the board's decision, which he called arbitrary, to the Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission.

$100,000 State Grant For Southwest Housing

Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services has been awarded a state grant of $100,000 for housing rehabilitation in Southwest Quincy and an additional $28,000 for operating funds.

Jane Ford, executive director, said the additional funding will ensure the continued success of the upgrading of housing stock in Southwest Quincy.

Mayor Francis X. McCauley said the neighborhood public-private partnership, headed by the Rev. James Kimmel, has been successful in the past three years in improving the area's housing stock.

She was administered cardio-pulmonary respiration en route to the hospital by Richard Serino of Abington, a paramedic who was attending services at St. John's.

Later Sunday she was transferred to Children's Hospital by emergency vehicle with two doctors in attendance.

Comments On Houghs Neck Article

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

May I have this opportunity to comment on the front page article in the Quincy Sun of April 5th which read "Houghs Neck Residents I Meet On Street Violence".

As coordinator of the Houghs Neck Community Center for the past four years, I have walked to work every day and at least three evenings a week. I have passed groups of youngsters on the street corners, and I have never felt threatened by them. I have always been met with friendliness and respect.

The actions of five of Houghs Neck adults and teens would lead people to believe that this represents the majority of Houghs Neck residents. That would be a completely false assumption. One horrible instance of violence is not indicative of "The Neck". Houghs Neck is a great place to live and probably one of the best places in Quincy to raise youngsters. Sure, it isn't perfect. What place is? Why does the evil men do, make headlines and the good that men do is relegated to the back page? Peace Be With You and Us!

Praises QHS Choir

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Recently the Quincy High School Concert Choir under the superb direction of Catherine Carnabuci presented a program of sacred music at the Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

Over 50 young people who have dedicated themselves to excellence in music shared their talents with us. Their outstanding performance reflects the musical education and training they have received at Quincy High School and the commitment and competence of their Director.

On behalf of our church and community I would like to express my appreciation to and admiration of these young people and Mrs. Carnabuci. They are a continuing source of pride to their parents, their school system, and to their church and community.

Tom Burgin Reminisces

Waiting until 4 a.m. for the final Quincy votes to drag in, in last month's Presidential primaries was considered an ordeal.

But that was lightning fast compared to "the good old days" of the late 1940's and Quincy's first Plan E election.

Former Mayor Thomas Burgin recalled that election in a Quincy Sun TV Ch. 8 interview on his 82nd birthday shown last week.

The election was in 1949 as Quincy began its stormy marriage with the city manager form of government.

Seven at-large councillors were to be elected and there were — get this

This was a PR election. Proportional Representation or preferential voting representation. Voters did not mark an X beside the candidates names but a number: No. 1 for first choice, No. 2 for second choice and so on down to No. 7 or all the way down to 59 if the voter cared to.

It took 130 counters six days to count the votes to decide which seven were elected.

Burgin, who had served four terms as Plan A mayor from 1935 to 1942 when he resigned to join the Navy, still had his old political magic in that election.

He topped the field and had enough first choice ballots — 5,934, some 2,322 in excess of the 3,612 required — to win the first of the seven seats on the first day of the counting.

Then the No. 2 choices on his excess ballots were counted along with 1's and 2's on the other ballots until the other six winners were known. It took the six days to decide who the other six were.

AUSTIN

And, it went to the 48th counting before the last three — Carl Anderson, Frank Orcutt and David Crowley — were declared winners.

When the seven were inaugurated in 1950, Burgin's colleagues honored him by electing him Quincy's first Plan E mayor.

Under Plan E, the mayor was like the City Council president and ceremonial head of the city. The chief executive, however was the city manager and the council picked William Deegan of Wisconsin as the first one.

There was a lot of hope for Plan E but it didn't work out. After an eight-year stormy marriage, Quincy divorced Plan E and returned to the present Plan A form of government.

"I really didn't care for that kind of voting," says Burgin. "I was never a fan of Plan E. I would rather have the people vote directly for mayor — not have seven councillors pick the city's chief executive."

Burgin, who was called Quincy's "boy mayor" when he was first elected aged 33 in 1935 and is now Quincy's elder statesman, touched on many subjects during the Sun Ch. 8 interview. Among them:

THE DEPRESSION: Some 10,000 people in Quincy were on relief rolls land another 1,800 on federal WPA and PWA projects. "It was pathetic and I will never forget it."

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT'S visit to Quincy in 1936 when he was campaigning for re-election against Alfred Landon. Burgin's daughter, Claire, then six, had a big bouquet of roses to present to Mrs. Roosevelt.

Just before she was to present them her father noticed she had a Landon button on her dress.

"You can't wear that, dear," Burgin told her.

"Why can't I wear it?" she wanted to know. "I'm for Landon."

"So am I," Burgin said. "But he is running against the President of the United States the man you are going to greet and it wouldn't be nice for you to wear that button."

Claire gave in and the Roosevelt motorcade arrived in front of First Parish Church in Quincy Sq.

A Secret Serviceman swung Claire up into the open car in which the President and First Lady were sitting in the back seat and deposited her in Roosevelt's lap.

"Aren't those lovely roses" the President said to her. At that, Claire clutched the roses close to her, glared 59 candidates!

at the President and said: "These aren't for you, they're for Mrs. Roosevelt."

With that, Roosevelt tilted his head back and roared with laughter.

Mrs. Roosevelt leaned across to her husband and mused: "That should take care of you."

HURRICANE OF 1938: "There were 3,900 trees down and all the fire alarm boxes and police boxes were out of commission. There was no electricity."

PEARL HARBOR ATTACK: Burgin rushed back from Cape Cod and went 72 hours without sleep readying the city for the war. A day later, 1700 troops were sent to Quincy and he had to billet them by that night. "We had to commandeer Masonic halls, Knights of Columbus halls, church halls — but we did it."

CALVIN COLLIDGE'S visit to Quincy before Burgin was mayor but a member of the reception committee. After touring First Parish Church, Collidge was asked what he thought of it. Always a man of a few words, he replied: "It's lovely." (Period.)

PRESIDENT KENNEDY: Burgin got to know him when he was a Congressman. "I held him in the highest esteem."

HIS FAVORITE MAYORS: He was reluctant to name them but after some thought and prodding said: "Of the recent ones, Jim McIntyre. I was close to him. I thought the world of him."

"In the early days, I looked up to Perley Barbour and Joseph Whiton and had the highest regard for Charles Francis Adams."

TIGHTEST OPPONENT: Leo Mullin who had the advantage of being acting mayor when Burgin first ran in that special election of 1935. Later, as incumbent, Burgin went up against a couple of heavy hitters in Thomas McGrath and Charles Ross and defeated them. He was unopposed for a fourth term.

BIGGEST CHANGE IN CITY: "The advent of the MBTA. It completely changed Quincy Sq., and changed Wollaston, Norfolk Downs, Atlantic and Quincy Adams."

RENAMING OF UPLAND RD. to Hon. Thomas S. Burgin Parkway in his honor: "I was humbled. It was awfully nice of them to do it. How nice it is to give someone a pat on the back while he is here rather than send the flowers later."

QUINCY OF THE FUTURE: "Quincy will go through a great change. It has been a residential city of houses but the apartments are coming. There will be a great growth in the business community — a substantial change in residential. But our zoning will help. There will be no skyscrapers."

FAVORITE ACHIEVEMENT: Surprisingly it was not political but the new YMCA building. He was president of the Y when over $1 million was raised the biggest fundraiser in the city's history — to build it. "I think that would stand as the greatest memorial anyone would want to leave — it's dedicated to youth."

Mayor Takes A 'No Raise' Stand On Police, Fire

communities, including Quincy, in the survey was $70.35 on fire departments and $67.59 on police departments. Quincy was second only to Cambridge in both categories.

"The city of Quincy meets or exceeds the average number of uniformed personnel per capita in five out of eight categories," said McCauley.

"This means that despite the fiscal constraints we have faced, the departments have been manned at better than average levels."

According to the survey, Quincy has one deputy fire chief per 17,000 people, one fire captain per 7,100 people, one fire lieutenant per 2,100 people and one firefighter per 479 people.

The average is one deputy per 16,000 people, one captain per 6,400 people, one lieutenant per 2,400 people and one firefighter ratios.

Again according to the survey, Quincy has one police captain for every 17,000 people, one police lieutenant for every 7,100 people, one police sergeant for every 3,700 people and one patrolman for every 530 people.

The average is one captain for every 15,400 people, one lieutenant for every 7,300 people, one sergeant for every 4,100 people and one patrolman for every 532 people.

Cambridge, Fall River, New Bedford, Newton, Springfield and Worcester have lower patrolman-citizen ratios.

"Salary comparisons place Quincy at or near the top in all ranks for both departments," said McCauley.

The survey shows that Quincy pays deputy fire chiefs $41,943 a year, fire captains $34,100 a year, fire lieutenants $27,724 a year and firefighters $22,540 a year.

The average is $32,632 for deputies, $27,238 for captains, $23,691 for lieutenants, and $20,271 for firefighters.

Quincy pays its deputies, captains and lieutenants more than any other community in the survey and its firefighters are paid second only to Cambridge, which pays $23,393.

The survey shows that Quincy pays its police captains $41,943 a year, police lieutenants $34,100 a year, police sergeants $27,724 a year and patrolmen $22,540 a year.

The average is $30,527 for captains, $26,805 for lieutenants, $23,306 for sergeants and $19,627 for patrolmen.

Again, Quincy pays its captains, lieutenants and sergeants more than any other community in the survey and only Cambridge is higher in patrolmen's salaries, $23,325.

"Finally and happily," said McCauley, "we can report that police and fire statistics show a drop in police calls for service and total crimes. Fire response to alarms has maintained a steady pattern."

"These figures speak for themselves and are further indication that with present manpower levels the citizens of Quincy can look forward to continued safety in the community."

Brett, Mullen Lose Election To 'Official' Slate

A late count of votes from Brockton and Ward 18 in Boston appeared to give Sen. James McCormack of Quincy and Rep. Michael Paul Feeney of Hyde Park an edge over Rep. Joseph E. Brett of Quincy and James G. Mullen of Milton for delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

McCormack and Feeney, who were known as the "official" candidates, emerged from the district election with 7,666 and 6,859 votes respectively to 5,477 for Brett and 5,821 for Mullen.

Prior to the election, Brett and Mullen had demanded the resignation of Rep. Gerard F. Doherty of Charlestown as chairman of the Democratic State Committee for taking sides in the delegate contest in violation of the rule that the committee cannot spend money to defeat Democrats.

They charged that 40,000 flyers, signed by Doherty, had been mailed out endorsing the "official" slate and a full page advertisement was taken out in the Patriot Ledger urging Democrats to "be sure to vote for the entire official Democratic slate."

The ad emphasized that "party unity is highly desirable. The official slate is the one selected by U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Speaker of the House John W. McCormack, Gov. Endicott Peabody and chairman of the Democratic State Committee Gerard F. Doherty."

The Rev. Bedros Baharian, senior pastor of the Quincy Point Congregational Church, disclosed that the church is considering construction of a $2 million senior citizens center and housing project designed for people 62 years of age and older in the lower middle income retirement bracket.

He said the project, which would include about 168 units of efficiency apartments, one bedroom and two bedroom complexes in a seven-story fireproof building, is planned for a 4½ acre site at the corner of South St. and Southern Artery.

MAYOR PROTESTS

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa vehemently denied charges by Health Commissioner Dr. Richard M. Ash in a Boston newspaper that Quincy is "now the city of fires, smoke, stink and the biggest cockroaches east of the Mississippi" because of its dumping practices.

Condon Proposes PUD, Open Space Land Swap

City Councillor Joanne Condon has proposed a new plan to break the zoning deadlock that has stymied further development of the Boston Harbor Marina property in Squantum.

She filed an amendment to the zoning ordinances that would rezone 51,600 square feet of land from open space to planned unit development (PUD) in swap for 52,000 square feet from PUD to open space.

The move would permit the developers of the Marina Bay condominiums to build a second road to their development, thus enabling them to fulfill one of the key requirements of their PUD agreement.

Condon's proposal is the third attempt to break the deadlock.

Earlier zoning change bids would have permitted roads to be built through open space and would have classified open space as public and private with roads permitted in the private category.

Condon said she felt obligated to try to find a way out of the dilemma because "I feel responsible for putting the developer in the position of not being able to satisfy the PUD by building a road."

Donnelly To Fight Party 15 Per Cent Rule

Cong. Brian J. Donnelly says he plans to offer an amendment at the Democratic State Convention in June to lower the so-called 15 per cent rule to 5 per cent.

The party rule says that only those candidates for a particular office who gain 15 per cent of the delegate votes at the convention can have their names on the primary ballot.

Donnelly lashed out at the rule last February when he withdrew his name as a possible candidate for the U.S. Senate.

"I feel strongly that the party is going in the wrong direction," said Donnelly. "We are overcomplicating the process. My party should not be in a position to exclude people from office."

Back in February, Donnelly promised to be more active in local politics and the election of his aide, Rosemary Coffey of Braintree, to the Democratic State Committee is one of the first signs.

"She has been active in the party," he said. "She came to me with the idea of running and asked me if I had any objections. I had none. I'd like to see my friends more active on a local basis."

Donnelly said he plans to go to the State Convention in Worcester "and fight the 15 per cent rule. I'm going to offer an amendment setting a 5 per cent threshold."

New Law Aids Deaf

Discrimination against deaf people because of such deafness or because they use a guide dog is illegal in Massachusetts under new legislation effective next month, reports Sen. Paul D. Harold.

The comprehensive new law prohibits discrimination in housing and public facilities, and makes provision for licensing businesses which train dogs for use by deaf people.

The law extends to deaf people similar rights to those already law for blind persons, Harold said.

The new law also makes it an "unfair educational practice" for an educational institution to refuse admission because a student is blind or deaf or uses a guide dog, and establishes rules for legal proceedings

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Easter is more than a legendary story... It is an historical fact accepted as such by Christians who believe in the divinity of Christ... As an historical fact, Christians KNOW it was a fallacy when His tormentors exclaimed, "He saved others, himself He cannot save." At that particular point in history, Christ was identified by His Jewish and Roman opponents as a fraud; a self-proclaimed Messiah who in their beliefs was disposed of on a cross.

They were mistaken. He was not disposed of. The historical fact of Resurrection proves the point. When the angel said to the peasant women who visited His tomb on Easter morning, "He is risen, as He told you He would rise again" - the message of Easter became clear and certain. The message of Easter proves Christ as the victor - not the victim. As the victor, Christ showed the world that life after death can be a certainty for all who believe in Him and follow His pattern of living during their lifetime. The story of Easter is the story of Resurrection - a story of life everlasting...

The senior choir, under the direction of Lambert Brandes, sang "None Other Lamb" by Joseph Roff.

Over 800 Expected In PSSB Walk April 29

One of the largest fund raising walks for a South Shore organization will take place Sunday, April 29.

Robert F. Taylor, executive director of the Protestant Social Service Bureau, 776 Hancock St., said more than 800 members of South Shore churches will take part. "This will be the largest group in the 10-year history of the Walk," he said.

The walkers hope to raise $30,000 for the adoption, counseling and foster care programs of the agency which services residents of all South Shore communities.

Headed by Robert and Carla Steen of Weymouth, the walk committee is completing its recruitment of walkers and sponsors. "We have been working on this year's walk since last fall," reports Robert Steen. "It takes time to coordinate that many people."

The 10 mile walk covers both Quincy and Milton and will begin and end at the new Howard Johnson Plaza building in the State Street South area in North Quincy.

Local public officials including Quincy Mayor Francis X. McCauley, State Sen. Paul Harold, state representatives and city councillors.

First Squantum Church Holds Easter Sunrise Service

Members and friends of the First Church of Squantum celebrated Easter with a sunrise service at Moswetuset Hummock, an Easter breakfast at the church and, later, a traditional Easter morning service with three choirs.

The sunrise service took place in a sheltered cove at the hummock at the water's edge.

Guitarists Mary Ruth Scott and Steven Williams provided the music. Church pastor Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin brought the Easter message.

After the service, the worshippers returned to the church for an Easter breakfast prepared by Ruth Swenson, Hazel Mayne, Patti Hurd, Evelyn Ahearn, Grace Holmes and Gretchen, Laurel and Holly Bumpus.

The traditional service began with a dramatization of the biblical story of the women's early morning visit to the tomb. The women were played by Diane Lindblad, Jeanette Crosby and Valerie Gorrill. The angels were Robert Dixey and David Scott.

The Junior Choir performed Duane Blakley's "Festival Fanfare" which included choral speaking, the playing of tone bells and several kinds of singing. Mary Ruth Scott directed.

The Youth Choir joined with the Chancel Choir to the Easter anthem, "All Praise, O Risen Lord" by Dykes/Smith.

Hymns sung during the service included "Christ Arose" and "The Day of Resurrection." Robert Gorrill accompanied with his trumpet.

Lori Ogilvie and the children of the church assisted the pastor in explaining what happened at the tomb on the first Easter morning. Justin Deary led the children's Easter greeting.

Dr. Langevin's sermon was entitled, "Christ's Resurrection and Ours." Greeters for the morning were Barbara Fluhr, her son Steven and her daughters Kathi and Kristin.

Ushers were Tore Wallin, Stewart Scott, Leon MacIntyre and Don Frazer. The Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by the same women who had prepared the breakfast earlier in the morning.

There will be two services this Sunday: the guitar service at 8:30 a.m. and the traditional service at 10:30 a.m. Theme of both services will be the miracle of Christ's resurrection.

won't have to later.

By not taking care of your own funeral in advance, you force someone close to you to do it for you.

For the person who accepts the responsibility, making arrangements at the time of need is likely to be filled with uncertainties. The uncertainty of not knowing what you really wanted. Your personal preferences. Perhaps, a favorite dress or suit. A special prayer. A clergyman with whom you are especially close. The uncertainties are endless.

The kindest thing you can do for your family is make your own funeral arrangements far in advance of need. That way everybody will know the kind of funeral you would like to have.

Squantum Pastor Decries President Reagan's Policies

The Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, in a sermon at the First Church of Squantum, recently decried President Reagan's policies in Central America, particularly the U.S. backed mining of Nicaraguan ports.

Dr. Langevin cited reports that have been coming to church people in this country for over a year from Christian missionaries, both Roman Catholic and Protestant. The missionaries are working in Nicaragua and have witnessed first-hand the terror and violence committed by the "contras", mercenaries stationed just across the Nicaraguan border in Honduras and sponsored by the American government.

The pastor also spoke of "accounts of the situation given by Americans in those countries working for our own government that tend to confirm these stories."

In addition to those sources, Dr. Langevin said, "Christians in Nicaragua, both Roman Catholic and Protestant, have for months been writing to Christians in this country imploring us to call our own government to account for the destruction being inflicted on them there."

Condemning the president's judgment in this matter, the pastor argued that "this is not to suggest that we should be soft on Communism—one of the most vile and wicked systems ever conceived—but it is to say that Christians must condemn terrorism, hooliganism and violence wherever it is done and whoever does it."

"Christians must demand a better way of dealing with Central America than the old tired methods of supporting the dictators of the right because, at the very least, we think we can rely on them to oppose the dictators of the left."

"We must demand that our government find a better way of stabilizing Central America than subversion and violence and terrorism. And on this point, we must call upon the President to rethink his policies which are so misguided and so wrong. They do not contribute to our peace or the peace of the world."

Dr. Langevin's remarks were made in his Palm Sunday sermon entitled "Why Jesus Wept."

The service opened with a reading of the Palm Sunday story from the Gospel According to Luke. The pastor narrated the story while persons in the congregation portrayed the different parts including Jesus, Don Frazer; Disciples, Ralph Dougherty, Ken and Millie Johnson; Owners of the Donkey, Carl, Barbara and Marsha Anderson; Pharisees, Calvin and Gretchen Bumpus; and the combined choirs as the Palm Sunday crowd. Two little boys in the congregation, Sam and Jeffrey Corey, sons of Sam and Pat Corey, distributed the palms to worshippers before the opening hymn.

Hymns sung during the service included "All Glory, Laud, and Honor", "Ride on, Ride on, in Majesty", "Lord, Who Throughout These Forty Days", and "In the Cross of Christ I Glory." Violinist James Sumner played the organ to accompany the congregation.

The Junior Choir sang "Little Grey Donkey" by Natalie Sleeth, accompanied by children playing instruments; Kerri Akin, Blythe Bumpus, Marci Hurd and Amanda Young, sandblocks; and Kristen Reister, woodblock. Mary Ruth Scott directed.

The Youth Choir and the Chancel Choir combined to sing the traditional "Palm Branches" by Jean-Baptiste Daure.

During the service, the bags and boxes of canned goods and food which have been contributed by members of the congregation over the past six weeks were dedicated to the service of God. The food will be given to families in need this week.

Greeters for this service were Charles and Genevieve Todd. Ushers were Stewart Scott and Leon MacIntyre. The Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Barbara Anderson and Shirley Mason.

Microwave Made Easier

Automatic cooking and roasting controls, "smart" instruments that cook foods to just the right degree of doneness, make General Electric's microwave ovens easy for anybody to use.

The "Auto Cook" control is a sophisticated built-in sensor that regulates the oven by sensing steam released from the foods. It automatically adjusts to the size, volume and density of the food to insure proper results.

The "Auto Roast" control employs a temperature probe to monitor the progress of most meats and poultry. The oven automatically adjusts power levels for even cooking and tender, juicy results. It includes an automatic simmer setting to slow-cook foods, and once the food is done, the control keeps the oven at serving temperature for up to one hour.

Keep a Lid on Pool's Waste of Money and Energy This Summer

Ever feel that you're throwing pennies (and dimes and dollars) into your swimming pool everyday? A pool can be great fun but maintaining it is an expensive proposition.

The most important savings of both energy and money can be made with the purchase of a pool cover. A properly fitted pool cover can greatly reduce a pool's heat loss. In fact, it can decrease by as much as 40 to 70 percent the amount of fuel needed to keep the water at a comfortable 78 to 80 degrees.

Evaporation is the biggest single cause of heat loss. When changing from liquid to vapor, water at the surface of a pool absorbs heat and removes it from the water below. An uncovered pool will lose a tremendous amount of water by evaporation to the surrounding air—especially in a hot, dry climate. Convection, where the wind and cool air remove heat from the

The most important way pool owners can save money and energy, according to the National Energy Watch, is to invest in a pool cover. A properly fitted pool cover can decrease the amount of fuel needed by as much as 40 to 70 percent, to maintain the water at a comfortable 78 to 80 degrees F.

pool's surface and radiation, where a warm pool radiates heat directly to the cooler sky, adds to the heat loss. While all covers reduce the loss of waste by evaporation, they differ in their insulation value and in their ability to take in and transfer the sun's heat to the pool water.

Some covers collect heat from the sun thereby eliminating the need for heating fuel during the summer and extending the swimming season an extra month. Also, by keeping debris out of the water, a cover can reduce the amount of time and electricity needed to operate the pump and filter system.

There are four basic types of covers. Two of them—transparent and translucent covers—are especially effective for unheated pools that receive unobstructed sunlight. They are most efficient for those owners who only use their pool several hours a day.

Opaque foam covers, or thermal covers, are usually made of non-absorbent plastic foam with a top layer of tear-resistant material.

Opaque plastic sheet covers are made of woven plastic materials and are anchored above the water at the sides of the pool.

Since the life of a cover is affected by deterioration from the sun's ultraviolet rays and the pool's chemicals, the warranty policy as well as cost should be carefully considered. Also, check to see if the purchase of a cover qualifies you for tax credits in your state.

Now gardeners can bolster Olympic spirit with beauty

The Olympic Games and the garden rose may seem like an odd couple but, historically speaking, they share some roots.

By the seventh century B.C., the Olympics already were the foremost national festival of ancient Greece. The same Greeks who so revered athletic perfection also were devoted to the rose — their "Queen of Flowers."

In fact, one of the earliest known paintings of a rose was discovered among the ruins at Knossos, a royal palace on the Greek island of Crete.

New rose

In 1984, the Olympics and the rose will have a closer, more special relationship. A magnificent new hybrid tea, name 'Olympiad,' has been selected as the Official Rose of the 1984 Games, to be held in Los Angeles. Proceeds from the sale of each rosebush will go toward supporting America's Olympic effort.

The Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee prefers a rose because it is the most popular ornamental plant in the world.

Nations as distant from "OLYMPIAD," the official rose of the 1984 Olympic Games, is the first red hybrid tea in 19 years to win the All-America Rose Selection, the rose industry's highest award for excellence. It is produced by Armstrong Nurseries of Ontario, California.

one another as England and Russia or India and Brazil are among those that once designated the rose as an official emblem.

piad' is that and more. It was named a 1984 All-America Rose Selection, the rose industry's most coveted award for excellence. 'Olympiad' is the first red hybrid tea so honored in 19 years.

The blossoms are unique. Unlike other red roses, 'Olympiad' flowers never fade to purple or blue with age.

Pleasurable beauty

'Olympiad' is a joy to grow. Plants are well-branched and reach a height of four to five feet. During moist, cool weather, its plentiful green foliage luxuriates where leaves of less disease-resistant varieties might succumb to fungus problems.

The pointed buds and subtly perfumed flowers rest upon tall, strong stems that make 'Olympiad' perfect for bouquets. Each classically urn-shaped blossom is composed of 30 to 35 velvety petals.

The bushes require no special care or treatment. Plant them in any garden spot that has full sunlight and well-drained soil.

An Olympic Rose should be a champion, and 'Olympiad' is that and more.

'Olympiad's' compact form lends itself to placement in perennial or shrub borders, flower beds or even large flower pots on terraces and patios.

It is no accident that 'Olympiad' contains almost every desirable characteristic a garden rose can offer. Ten years of research went into making this rose a winner.

Thousands of 'Olympiad' bushes have been planted throughout Los Angeles as part of the Olympic pageantry. Why not plant these same roses around your home in honor of the Summer Games? You will be rewarded with magnificent red blooms for years to come.

For further information, or to reserve your own rose plant, write: Los Angeles Beautiful, Inc., 1984 'Olympiad' Rose, 404 S. Bixel St., Los Angeles, CA 90017.

The lowdown on home equity loans.

An equity loan (or second mortgage) is based on a factor of the difference between the present market value of your home and your current mortgage balance. Borrowing against the equity you have in your home is worth considering, if you can use some money for home improvements, college tuitions or other reasons.

If you're looking into an equity loan, look carefully.

Because rate isn't everything.

In fact, at some banks, a competitive rate is just the beginning of what your loan actually costs.

But not at Quincy Savings.

A 14% fixed rate* for 10 years, plus a modest legal fee, is all we charge for a second mortgage of up to $30,000.

Compare that with what other banks charge.

You'll often find they add some unexpected costs. Application fees of up to $200, for example. Variable rates that might increase your costs in the future. Appraisal fees, points and other miscellaneous charges as well.

Now that you have the real lowdown on equity loans, call our Consumer Loan Center at 471-3500 or visit our nearest office for an application.

Laundry Equipment Needn't Be Hidden

There's no need for all those extra steps, say home economists from Whirlpool Corporation. Today's washers and dryers are handsome enough to move right into the kitchen or family room where they're close at hand and ready to go to work for you.

Traveling around the house to some hidden location to get to your washer and dryer can add extra time, effort and inconvenience to doing the laundry.

Major home appliance manufacturers are placing greater emphasis on the appearance of appliances so there is no longer the need to keep them hidden in your basement or utility room. But just as important as good looks are the efficient time-saving features. For example, Whirlpool's solid state electronic touch controlled washer offers the versatility needed to handle modern fabrics with just a touch of a finger. For a regular/heavy load, the user merely sets the water level and the "power on" switch, and the machine does the rest. For other wash loads, after the water level and "power on" have been set, the user just touches the fabric selector to fit the load.

Ceiling Fans: Efficient, Economical, Attractive

Ceiling fans are enjoying a rebirth in popularity, largely because of their appeal as decorative items. But recent research has shown the fans are very effective and economical cooling devices.

Ceiling fans are capable of making room occupants feel comfortable at temperatures up to 85 degrees Fahrenheit, according to research conducted at the Institute for Environmental Research on the campus of Kansas State University (KSU).

In the ceiling fan tests participants were subjected to a range of temperatures without a ceiling fan and with a ceiling fan providing various air velocities. Test results showed that occupants felt as comfortable at 82 and 85 degrees with a ceiling fan operated at high velocity as they did at 76 degrees with no fan at all.

The ceiling fan's ability to provide cooling effects at temperatures into the mid-80's is of great significance in these energy-conscious times. Ceiling fans are very economical to operate and can result in substantial energy savings when used to supplement air-conditioning. The KSU study conservatively estimates that a homeowner can realize energy savings of at least 18 percent when the ceiling fan is operated at 85 degrees instead of the air conditioner. An article in the July 1982 issue of "Consumer Reports", exploring the benefits of the ceiling fan, emphasized the economical operation of the devices. The article noted that, based on national averages, the cost for running a ceiling fan for eight hours would be about one-half penny.

In addition to its economical advantages during the summer months, the ceiling fan offers energy-saving potential in the winter as well. Operated at low speeds, the fans help to recirculate the air during the winter, distributing the warm air that collects near the ceiling to the room below.

By circulating the warm air in this manner, the ceiling fan helps to take some of the burden off a home's heating system, again saving energy and money.

Of course, the ability of the ceiling fan to enhance virtually any decor makes the fan an even more popular item. Today's ceiling fans are available in wood, brass, cane and other finishes in wide ranges of colors. Fan accessories include a variety of lights, swag chains, pull tassels and decorative covers.

Ceiling fans are available with short-stem assembly, allowing for them to easily fit into rooms with stucco, eight-foot ceilings, with seven feet of clearance. The fans range in size from 36 to 52 inches. The larger fans are suited for family rooms, bedrooms, kitchens, porches, offices and other large rooms. The smaller models are designed for use in tighter quarters such as hallways, small offices, stairways, dining rooms and apartments or small houses where space is at a premium.

Optional speed controls for the ceiling fans include pull chains allowing for high and low settings and solid state controls allowing for infinite settings. A number of models allow you to change the fan's rotation, reversing the air flow.

Ceiling fans are easy to install as a do-it-yourself project. The fans come with detailed installation instructions and can be mounted quickly and easily.

The Home Ventilating Institute (HVI) cautions homeowners to be careful in selecting a ceiling fan. HVI, a voluntary organization of leading manufacturers of powered home ventilating equipment which certifies products according to uniform testing procedures, notes that some ceiling fans are built strictly as decorative items and are not made to circulate air at all. Consumers are advised to look for the HVI label in selecting a ceiling fan. The label assures that the product has been independently tested and that its performance level has been certified.

Aluminum Roof Shields From The Sun's Heat

The sun really punishes a dark, heat absorbing roof, boosting its temperature as much as 60 degrees higher than the air temperature. And the heat stays on, stored in the roofing, heating the attic below it. Because of the heat load, air conditioning can run longer.

But reflective colors will be 20 degrees cooler, reducing attic heat buildup, and helping reduce air conditioning loads. What color is your roof?

How to tell if you need a new roof.

If it's leaking, you obviously need a new roof. But most roofs, designed to last 15 or 20 years, show warning signs long before outright failure. Look for bare spots with no granules; they can make the shingle brittle and prone to wind damage.

Decor Tip.

Experts advise not using more than three colors — including the roof color — on the exterior of your home. When choosing a roof, consider how it'll match, accent or coordinate with other exterior colors.

Here's the look of a hand-hewn wood shingle — without wood's problems. Aluminum itself stores little heat, and light colors let you take advantage of its natural reflectivity for reduced summer heat gains. The big 1' x 4' panels go up fast over most ordinary roofs. There's no red rust with aluminum, and you have built-in fire resistance, class A, B, or C, depending on installation method. You also get resistance to rotting, chipping, splitting and warping. For practical beauty, choose Reynolds Aluminum Classic Shingle Shake Roofing.

New Small Refrigerators Help Use Limited Space Efficiently

Costs are rising, and the new reality is smaller houses where space is at a premium. General Electric also knows that smaller can be better.

Nowhere is space more precious than in the kitchen. Few and remodeled kitchens, therefore, demand creative planning, and such planning requires innovative product design, a GE specialty. For example, GE has a refrigerator that offers a 19.5 cu ft capacity with all the latest features including an ice dispenser which delivers ice cubes to the glass. The refrigerator fits into a space-saving 30 1/2" width.

The Food-Saver Refrigerator has many adjustable parts that can be arranged to suit individual tastes. The meat pan with a temperature control is easily converted into a bin for fruits and vegetables. Four easy-to-clean glass shelves can be adjusted to accommodate foods in all sizes and shapes.

The side-by-side freezer has 6.68 cu ft volume with a sliding storage bin. The removable ice container holds 8 lb of ice — about 210 cubes.

The same high quality engineering and design that make the Food-Saver innovative on the inside make it handsome and stylish on the outside, too. The refrigerator is available in several decorator colors, and the handles are done in walnut-grained vinyl that complements many dec-

Gas Range Guidebook

A new brochure for consumers on natural gas ranges is available from the American Gas Association.

The A.G.A. brochure, "Buyer's Guide: Efficient Gas Ranges," says that the informed consumer will be the one to save the most money on purchase price and operating and maintenance cost of a new, efficient gas range.

The most efficient gas ranges have pilotless ignition. The A.G.A. says that 30 percent of the natural gas normally consumed for cooking is saved by eliminating a pilot light. Gas ranges with a convection oven circulate hot air around the food and make preheating the range unnecessary. All models and features of gas ranges are discussed in the brochure and allow a consumer to choose the best value for specific needs.

The brochure also gives range-installation tips, such as the need to follow instructions on space clearances, carpeting and what to do about openings in walls and floors around ranges.

Copies of the brochure, "Buyer's Guide: Efficient Gas Ranges," can be obtained through A.G.A. Order and Billing, 1515 Wilson Boulevard, Arlington, VA 22209, telephone (703) 841-8559. Each copy costs 35 cents.

Cheney Claims Open Space Win

Michael T. Cheney, a candidate for the City Council from Ward 1, has claimed victory on behalf of the ward's residents in their fight to preserve open space.

"The recent proposal by Councillor Joanne Condon will be a substitute for the current plan that would have amended the city wide open space ordinance and had the potential of affecting our open space areas in Ward 1," he said.

"This is a significant victory for our area."

Condon's proposal would swap tracts of open space and planned unit development land in Ward 6 so that developers could build a second road to Boston Harbor Marina.

Earlier proposals were to amend the city's zoning ordinances so that roads could be put through open space.

"My only concern now," said Cheney, "is that the resolution of the open space issue in Ward 6 does not set a precedent for the remainder of our open space areas."

"I want to assure the residents of Ward 1 that I will continue to represent them on any issue that involves open space."

Reisberg Calls For More Police Visibility

Bernard Reisberg, a candidate for the City Council from Ward 1, has expressed concern for public safety in the ward.

"People have made me aware of the need for increased visibility of police in the area," he said, "not only foot patrolmen but also police in cruisers."

"The problems raised by the constituency in the ward revolve around the need to eliminate drug pushers and alcohol abusers from the streets."

"There have also been instances of harassment of elderly residents in the area."

"Furthermore an increase in police presence would better control excessive speeding on Sea St., a perennial problem in the ward."

While calling for an increase in the availability of police, Reisberg said he is not unaware of the problems and restraints confronting the Police Department.

"We need to give the police the tools with which to do the job correctly and to provide the additional services that are being called for," he said.

"A minimum manning clause in the police contract, which the Fire Department already has, could help them to respond to the needs of the citizens of our community."

"It is impossible to make one request without the other."

Rifle, Shotgun Taken

Frank Arbing of Holmes St., North Quincy, reported to police Monday that thieves took the lock out of his door and made off with a variety of items.

The loot was listed as a telephone, a cassette player, a 12 gauge shotgun, a .22 calibre rifle with scope, two gold chains, and a .33 mm camera.

Polara Recovered

A 1972 Dodge Polara, reported stolen earlier from Catherine A. Rash of 58 Brackett St., Quincy Center, at the laundromat on Washington St., was recovered Sunday "a short distance away."

Johnston Decries Salt Marsh Upkeep

Robert L. Johnston, a candidate for the City Council from Ward 1, has proposed that the salt water marshes in Houghs Neck be better maintained and rezoned to open space to improve the quality of the environment.

Johnston told a meeting at the home of James and Mary Doherty, 106 Rockland St., that the cause of flooding in the Rock Island Rd., Spring St. and Rockland St. area is the failure of the city to clean out the drainage ditches.

"Furthermore," said Johnston, "failure to maintain the marshes tends to halt the natural cycle process which feeds and sustains the ocean bed. This further impacts pollution in Quincy Bay."

"It is evident from talking with residents from Ward 1 that there is an escalating concern about any environmental issues and a renewed determination to support appropriate legislative action."

"The saltwater marshes should be re-zoned not only for their long term preservation but because they enhance the beauty of the neighborhoods."

Johnston noted that other candidates in the Ward 1 special election race have emphasized environmental issues but, he added, "I can make the difference."

Kavanaugh Named Planning Director At Salem

Gerry Kavanaugh, a member of the Quincy Planning Department for four and a half years, has been named planning director of the city of Salem.

The 30-year-old Kavanaugh, who has specialized in administering federal funds in Quincy, was confirmed in the $33,000 post by the Salem City Council Thursday night.

Michael Kelley Promoted To Chief

SERVICE? SURE.

Don't play the Lottery with your home mortgage.

Be safe - be sure with Colonial Federal's new Fixed Payment Low Interest Adjustable Rate Mortgage.

The adjustable interest rate home mortgages offered by most banks today have one major drawback. Because the interest rates vary, your monthly mortgage payments can vary. They can go up and they can go down. You have no way of knowing what your payments will be in the future. That's enough to discourage anybody.

To make it easier for you to finance your new home, we've designed a brand new adjustable rate mortgage which offers you guaranteed fixed monthly payments for the first ten years. After this the mortgage may be continued, modified or paid off without penalty.

You can borrow and budget with confidence, knowing that your payments are unconditionally guaranteed to remain the same for ten years. That's peace of mind! And if interest rates go down, as many economists believe they will in the next few years, you win big!

This new mortgage is available only from Colonial Federal Savings Bank. It's just one more example of our continuing dedication to giving our customers the very best in personal banking services.

QUESTION: I have just found a buyer for my home but he cannot close the purchase for three months. The replacement home I am buying has a closing date in only one month. In other words, there is a two month lag between the time I need the cash to purchase the replacement house and the time I will get the cash from the sale of my present home. Where do I go from here?

ANSWER: An experienced Realtor can often arrange interim financing, or what is known as a "bridge loan", for you. The money is advanced by your bank on a short term basis with interest computed daily. Your equity in your present home is the loan security

Gregoire Petitions For HN Swimming Pool

Mary Crowley Gregoire, a candidate for the City Council from Ward 1, has launched a petition drive to get the MDC to build a swimming pool on the site of the former Great Hill School in Houghs Neck.

Mrs. Gregoire wrote to MDC Commissioner William Geary earlier suggesting that the MDC owes it to the people of Quincy to create a recreational facility because its Nut Island plant has polluted Quincy Bay.

The petition is being circulated in stores, gas stations and door to door.

Mrs. Gregoire said she has also contacted Mayor Francis X. McCauley, Rep. Thomas F. Brownell and Sen. Paul D. Harold in the interests of the swimming pool.

Notarangelo Hurls One-Hitter As Quincy Blanks Brookline

Quincy's Mike Notarangelo came within one out of pitching a no-hitter Monday when the Presidents defeated Brookline, 2-0, in their Suburban League opener at Adams Field.

Quincy, now 2-1, played Brookton yesterday (Wednesday), will play at Cambridge Rindge and Latin today (Thursday) and will meet North Quincy Monday at 3:30 at Adams Field.

A pinch hit with two outs in the seventh ruined Notarangelo's no-hit bid. He struck out eight and walked four. He made only 98 pitches and the hit came on his 96th.

"This was an outstanding game and both teams played well," Quincy coach Bud Mosher said. "Notarangelo was just great and the whole team played extremely well."

The Presidents scored both runs in the fifth. Joe Conti singled but was forced at second. Joe Cullen was out stealing and there were two outs and the bases empty.

Joe Ciardi then doubled, Jerry Frazier had an infield hit and stole second and Pat Calabro doubled both runners home.

The only other hit for Quincy was Mark Chambers' triple in the sixth.

Raiders Defeat Weymouth N For 3rd Straight Win

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy's baseball team is off to a fast start with a 3-0 record following a 5-1 victory Monday over Weymouth North at Weymouth.

The Raiders captured their biggest win last Saturday when they handed Natick its first loss in two years, 3-2. Natick had been 4-0 and had averaged 10 runs a game.

Charlie Bunker's North team played at Newton North last night (Wednesday) in its Suburban League opener, will be home to Waltham Friday at 3:30 at Adams Field and will meet Quincy at 3:30

Monday at Adams.

Jack Outerbridge went all the way for a three-hitter at Weymouth, Weymouth's only run being unearned. Outerbridge struck out four and walked only one.

"I planned to use him for only four or five innings but he was going so well I decided to let him go all the way and he did an outstanding job," Bunker said.

Mark Hubbard was the hitting star for North, going four-for-four with two RBI. Jack Bolster hit a two-run homer in the seventh and Steve Higgins and Paul Cahill also had hits.

North turned in a fine all-around game in up-setting Natick Saturday. Defensively the Raiders made three double plays.

North took the lead in the third when Keith Smith, who had a triple and a double in the opening win over Abp. Williams, homered over the fence in right field.

A two-base error enabled Natick to tie the game in the top of the fourth. Higgins relieved starter John Comeau and a 6-4-3 double play ended the inning.

In the bottom half Steve Hogan walked, Chris Bunker singled to center and took second on the throw to third. Bolster hit a bad-hop single to left scoring. Hogan and Smith drove in what proved to be the winning run with a sacrifice fly to right.

Higgins struck out the side in the sixth and the first man up in the seventh but a wind-blown single to short center and a hit to left gave Natick a run. Hogan relieved Higgins and Natick had the tying run on third and tie-breaking run on first but Hogan retired the final batter on a force play to earn his second save. Higgins was the winner. The three North pitchers held the hard-hitting Natick team to four hits.

DEAN COLETTI of Quincy has been elected co-captain of the 1984-85 Suffolk University basketball team. Coletti, a 6-1 swing guard-forward, scored 327 points in 25 games this season for an average of 13.1 points a game and led the team in assists with 91.

A new award this year will go to the business that has the most employees participating, and an award will be given to the first employee to finish from that company.

Quincy Girls Bow In Tennis Opener

The Quincy girls' tennis team opened its Suburban League season Monday and dropped a hard-fought 3-2 decision to perennial league power Brookline.

The First Ladies host Cambridge Rindge today (Thursday) and Monday will be home to North Quincy.

"I was very pleased with the girls' performance as Brookline is always extremely strong," said Quincy coach Shirley Laing.

Joanne Doherty gave Quincy its lone singles win with a 1-6, 7-6, 6-3 victory.

Julie Coleman was defeated, 0-6, 0-6, and Maureen Seaman lost, 0-6, 4-6.

In doubles Quincy's second team of Patty Flaherty and Beth Doherty won, 6-5, 7-5, while Kathy Egan and Nancy Keane lost, 1-6, 1-6.

"Joanne Doherty did an excellent job rebounding from a bad first set and Maureen Seaman improved tremendously in the second set," Coach Laing said.

'Restless' Smith Hurls QJC To Win Over Wentworth

By PETE ZOIA

Quincy Junior College baseball coach Dave Burke took a chance and decided to use pitcher Joe Smith with only two days of rest against Wentworth last week and he responded with an outstanding performance to spark the Jaguars to an 8-2 victory.

QJC (2-1) hosts Blue Hills Technical today (Thursday) at 3:30 at O'Rourke Field and will play at North Shore Community College Monday at 3:15.

Smith blanked Wentworth for five innings before the visitors scored both runs in the sixth inning on a pair of hits, a fly ball and an error. Smith then pitched his strongest inning with two strikeouts and a ground ball in the seventh.

"We were ready to relieve if necessary, but Joe, after pitching Saturday, did a fine job and deserves a lot of credit," Burke said.

QJC scored two runs in the second on Brian Miller's single, a passed ball, an error on Steve Ondrick's grounder and a sacrifice fly by Mike Jaehnig. Miller walked in the fourth, stole second and scored on Jaehnig's single to center.

The Jaguars added two runs in the fifth when Tom O'Connell walked, stole second and scored on Paul Gordon's hit. Gordon later scored on Miller's sacrifice fly.

QJC scored three insurance runs in the sixth inning after two were out. McDonald walked, Bob McCabe singled, O'Connell walked and Tony Chiochio doubled.

McCabe had two hits and Chiochio, Gordon, Miller and Jaehnig one each.

The Central Middle School recently held an all-star tournament which is part of the physical education program that involves the entire school.

Every class competes during lunch time until there is one winner in each grade.

Jump Rope for Heart is an international program sponsored by the American Heart Association. The purpose of the Jump-a-Thon is to raise money for this worthy cause and, at the same time, promote cardio-vascular fitness through an aerobic exercise.

The 200-plus students enjoyed their three-hour jump-a-thon by creating jump rope games, viewing an instructive jump rope mini-movie, and attempting a variety of jump rope skills to music. Depending upon the amount of money collected from donations would determine the participant's prizes which included jump ropes, shirts, hats, stop watches and gym bags.

Marotta Hurls Quincy To 13-4 Win Over North

Larry Marotta, a junior seeking his first win, limited North Quincy to five hits while striking out 13 as the Quincy High School baseball team pounded out a 13-4 victory over the Raiders at Adams Field. The Presidents ran their Greater Boston League record to 2-1.

Marotta held the Raiders scoreless until the eighth inning when he tired and issued five straight walks which, along with a single by Lang Willis and a balk, gave North Quincy all four of its runs. Marotta walked nine in all.

Quincy scored five times in the fifth inning as Roy Ekbon and Chris Meyer walked and Bill Milono, Tom O'Connell, Bob Ayer and Jack McWilliams followed with consecutive singles.

The Presidents added three more in the sixth on singles by Ayer, Ekbon, Dan Raymondi and Meyer. Singles by Raymondi, his fourth of the game, and Jerry Lyons plus Meyer's sacrifice fly produced three more runs in the seventh.

Quincy had 14 hits, all singles.

The Quincy lineup included: Ayer 3b, McWilliams cf, Marotta p, Ekbon c, Raymondi lf, Meyer rf, Milono lb, O'Connell 2b, Gustavson ss.

The North Quincy lineup included: Greenlaw 2b, Cockran cf, Cox ss, Norton 3b, Willis rf, MacDonald lb, O'Malley lf, Kiley c, Giachetti p, Drake p, Lippins p.

PATS PROTEST

Charlie Long, offensive guard of the Boston Patriots, told a Quincy Rotary Club luncheon at the Neighborhood Club that the American Football League team was at least the equal of several National Football League clubs.

"There are four teams in the NFL that we'd beat consistently," he said. "The Dallas Cowboys, Philadelphia Eagles, Los Angeles Rams and San Francisco Forty Niners."

"It isn't unfair the way people are always asking if the Patriots could beat the New York Giants, Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers. No one in the NFL beats those teams."

ENC WALLOPED

Ricker College of Holton, Maine, put together three hits, four walks, five errors, four stolen bases and a balk for eight runs in the first inning and went on to a 13-0 victory over the Eastern Nazarene College baseball team.

The ENC lineup included: Snyder 2b, Harris ss, Hauge c, Shannon p, Lewis lf, McGowan 3b, Kirsman 3b, Sapp rf, Young rf, Sullivan cf, MacFarland p, Haas lb.

Marshall Standout Pitcher At University Of Tampa

Quincy's Mike Marshall, son of Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall, is having an excellent season pitching for the University of Tampa baseball team, which hopes to win the NCAA Division 2 title this season.

The rangy sophomore has contributed to the success of the Spartans, last week ranked fifth in the nation in Div. 2, who at this writing had a 30-11 record.

"Mike has done an outstanding job for us," said Coach Brian Seabean of the 19-year-old Quincy pitcher, the youngest on the Spartan staff. "He is one of the keys to our future. He is doing very well this season and I expect him to continue to improve."

A big reason for the rapid improvement of Quincy's Mike Marshall is the help of another Mike Marshall, pitching coach, the 1974 winner of the Cy Young Award while pitching for the Los Angeles Dodgers. He was the first relief pitcher to win the Cy Young Award.

"We are delighted to

have Mike as our pitching coach," said Tampa Athletic Director Robert Birrenkott. "He approaches pitching as a science, which it is. I think our athletes will benefit both as people and as players from the opportunity to be around someone like Mike Marshall."

Marshall has earned a Bachelor of Science and Masters degrees in physical education and a Ph.D.

in Exercise Physiology, all in his spare time while playing pro baseball with the Dodgers, Minnesota Twins and New York Mets. "My Ph.D. means more to me than any Cy Young Award," he said. "I wouldn't have won the Cy Young without the Ph.D. That is why I have any talent at all."

"I've learned a lot from Mike," said Quincy's Mike. "He is an outstanding coach who has given us all confidence and has taught us not to be afraid to throw certain pitches in different situations."

Mike and his brother, Paul, both played for Morrisette Legion last summer.

There are four other Massachusetts players on the Tampa team, infielder Joe Fernandes of Bridgewater, catcher Bill McEvoy of Needham, pitcher Bob Abramson of Newton and outfielder Tony Lorusso of Worcester.

Quincy Girls Bomb Brookline 23-7

The Quincy girls' softball team has only one senior and only a few veterans but the First Ladies, following a tough opening game loss, have won their last two.

Monday the First Ladies blasted Brookline, 23-7, at Faxon Field in their Suburban League opener.

The Quincy girls played at Brockton yesterday (Wednesday), host Cambridge Rindge and Latin today (Thursday) at Faxon Field and Monday will be home to North Quincy at Faxon. Both games start at 3:30.

In Monday's romp Kathy Thornton pitched her second straight win, giving up nine hits.

She was given plenty of support at the plate as Beth Veneto went 4-for-4, Chris Cucinattia was 3-for-6 with three RBI and Debbie Herron, playing her first season, also went 3-for-6.

Last week Quincy bounced back from an 11-10 loss to Boston Latin to edge East Boston, 2-0, in a well-played game. Thornton pitched a three-hitter and Quincy took advantage of East Boston errors to score two unearned runs.

Veneto, who had two hits, singled in the fourth, stole second and went to third when the catcher's throw went into center field. The relay from the outfield was also wild as Veneto scored the winning run.

Nine of Quincy's ten players are juniors. Coach Barbara Webster was forced to change around considerably due to graduation and other players not reporting.

"We lost our fine catcher, Sue Dacey, to the University of New Hampshire," she said. "I literally had to ask for volunteers. Andrea Griffin, our shortstop last year, volunteered and has done an exceptional job. She is very quick and has changed over nicely."

"Beth Veneto, our first baseman last year, has moved to shortstop, not an easy switch but so far, so good. Debbie Herron has not played softball before but has caught on quickly and is doing nicely in right field. Chris Cucinattia missed the first two weeks of the season but is back and is regaining her excellent form at third base."

Hank Conroy is again coaching the Quincy junior varsity team.

Raiderettes Bow To Weymouth N.

Mary Pratt's debut as North Quincy girls' softball coach was spoiled Monday when the Raiderettes lost to Weymouth North, 8-3, at Artery Field.

The North girls played Newton North yesterday (Wednesday), will play at Waltham Friday and will meet Quincy Monday at Faxon Field at 3:30.

Although Pratt, who has coached several sports at Quincy and North, was disappointed, she saw a lot to smile about.

"We hit the ball well and fielded well and we lost to an outstanding team," she said. "I saw a lot of good things and we'll do all right."

Weymouth started off with three runs in the top of the first and never looked back.

For the Raiderettes Ann Anderlionis, a ninth grader, had a triple and single, Michelle Ceurvels and Carolyn O'Reilly two singles each and Mary Holleran, Ann Duggan and Melissa DeAngelis a single apiece.

Lisa Ventola started pitching and was relieved by Noreen Connolly and Anderlionis.

KITE FLYING HAZARDS

With spring in the air, kite flying is a favorite pastime. However, helicopter pilots have reported seeing kites flying well above their elevations of 500 feet -- a serious problem should aircraft become entangled in a kite string.

The Federal Aviation Administration requires that persons intending to fly their kites over 150 feet notify the nearest F.A.A. facility 24 hours in advance.

Parents should be aware that the potential for civil liability also exists should damage or injury occur when kites are flown in violation of F.A.A. regulations.

An additional hazard which results each year in needless tragedies occurs when youngsters attempt to retrieve kites entangled in power lines. This hazard increases when materials that conduct electricity are used in place of string to allow the kites to gain these higher altitudes.

The Quincy Recreation Department all-city basketball championship in the Middle School Division will feature Montclair against Merrymount.

Atlantic Coach George Dunn called on Dan Hobin and Henry Seto defensively to stop Montclair while Ted Stevenson and Mike Ainsley each chipped in 13 points in the two-point heart breaker. P.J. Sylva also had seven second half points. Balance was the key to the Montclair win. Joe McCarthy had 12 points to lead Montclair but the Jerry Pratt trio of Kevin Henry, Matt McNamara, and Bill McDougall all had eight points. club. Doug Armstrong and Eric Marsters were strong on the boards, Tim Roach and Tom Reardon showed good hustle, while the Brian Buckley coached team received 16 points from Jamie Fennessey, six from Pete McLaughlin, and four from Anthony Rignetti.

Hartnett had six. Bobby Roach shut the door defensively and Jeff Denneen was strong on the boards. But, the key to the win may have been the all-around play and 14 assists of Mark Malloy.

The Council may then award grants to support local cultural activities and performing arts.

"The arts lottery distribution is a great program in that it allows local people to support local cultural activity," said Morrissey.

"In these difficult financial times our cultural organizations and the performing arts are often neglected in the funding process.

"This money is a direct grant to the local Council to distribute to local artists and enhance the cultural life of the community."

'The Glades' Program Historical Society Topic

A meeting of the Quincy Historical Society will be held today (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. in the Adams Academy Building, 8 Adams St., Quincy.

The evening's illustrated lecture, "The Glades", will be presented by Robert Amory Thorndike II, year-round caretaker in residence of the Scituate property.

The Glades was originally a group of small farms surrounded by the ocean. Sold for development as a hotel, the Glades proved to be only a limited financial success and was sold for use as a cooperative summer resort for Boston families in 1873.

John Quincy (1833-1894) and Charles Francis Adams, Jr. (1835-1915) bought into the Glades Club in 1880 and their families have remained there ever since.

Thorndike is a graduate of Phillips Academy and St. Lawrence University. His family has been involved with the Glades Club since its beginning and he has summered there since his birth.

As the Glades first year-round resident, Thorndike is writing a history of the Glades in cooperation with Susan Homans Elias, grand daughter of Abigail Adams Homans.

The public is invited. Admission is free. Refreshments will be served.

A portion of the Quincy Historical Society's operating funds for fiscal year 1983-1984 has been made possible with support from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency, and through a grant from the Institute of Museum Services, a Federal Agency in the Department of Education, which offers operating and program support to the nation's museums.

QUINCY CABLESYSTEMS • QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS 02169 • (617) 471-9611

QUINCY COMMUNITY TELEVISION volunteers, floor director Edna Solander and camera operator Judi Silver, graduates of OCTV production workshops, set up a shot for "Learning In The Community" series on Ch. 3.

Special Series To Aid Women Entering Job Market On Ch. 3

"It is expected that 82 per cent of all women will be working outside of the home by 1990. Better planning and preparation by women today will both enhance their job options and increase their job satisfaction."

Th's statement by Dr. Lonnie Carton is the basis for Learning in the Community or, LINC, a new five-part television series which Quincy Community Television will debut on Channel 3 May 1 and continue each Tuesday until May 21, at 10 a.m., repeated at 7:30 p.m.

LINC aims to assist women who plan entry into the job market. Part tape and part live programs and some of the topics they cover are:

The First Step: Making Changes: Awareness that change is normal and also difficult for most people, learning to control change.

Getting Through The Roadblocks: Resolving personal and family issues, change can be beneficial to families too.

Homework Is For Grown-ups Too: Determining personal interests and goals, learning about community and educational resources.

Making Choices: Learning to set priorities and to delegate, making goals realistic.

On Your Way: Measuring progress, making change work for you, being ready and persistent.

The first part of each program will show workshops led by Dr. Carton in which Quincy area women will participate. Dr. Carton, who is the broadcast journalist of the nationally syndicated radio program, "The Learning Center", is an authority on family relationships.

The second part will be a live follow-up after each workshop. Viewers will be able to participate actively by calling the studio and talking directly with guests who have working knowledge of area resources. Specialists such as Alicia Coletti, director of the Women's Center at Quincy Junior College, and Helen Ross, Placement Center Director, will be able to inform a caller of the community agency that can most effectively serve her.

A "next day" telephone number will be given for additional calls or for personal counseling.

Learning In The Community is a collaboration by Quincy Junior College, Dr. Lonnie Carton's Learning Center, and Quincy Community Television. It is sponsored by a grant from the Massachusetts Department of Education, Bureau of Student, Community and Adult Services.

Andrew Klein Guest On Ch. 3's Cable Talk

Andrew Klein, Chief Probation Officer of Quincy

District Court, will be the guest this week on Quincy Community Television's public affairs program Cabletalk.

Klein will discuss cases of drunk driving that come to Quincy Court and programs that are offered.

The program was videotaped on location at the Fore River Club House during the monthly meeting of the Ward 2 Civic Association.

Cabletalk can be seen Thursdays at 9 p.m. and Sundays at 9:30 p.m. on Quincy Community Television's Channel 3.

THE VIDEO CONNECTION.
by James S. Leach

HOLLYWOOD - One of last year's finest television mini-series will pick up where it left off when NBC airs "V: The Conclusion," the first week in May. Starring Marc Singer and Faye Grant the six-hour series will continue this outstanding science-fiction story of Earthlings' resistance to an alien takeover.

My video connections at NBC have tipped me off on this season's final episodes of two of the network's hottest shows. The romance between Sam and Diane on "Cheers" will come to a sudden halt when Diane stalks out of the bar on the arm of a new boyfriend played by Christopher Lloyd. Lloyd you might remember played the unique cab driver in "Taxi."

Occupational stress leads to a separation for "Bill Street Blues" newsweds, Frank and Joyce Furillo, and Renko exchanges wedding vows with his pregnant girlfriend, Daryl Ann. I'll bet you didn't know that in real life Renko (Charles Haid) and Daryl Ann (Debi Richter) are really romantically linked.

Over at CBS my video connections alert me to a season-ending plane crash which threatens the lives of "Falcon Crest's" entire cast. The final scene shows the wreckage of the Channing's chartered jet which was bound for Europe. "Dallas" hopes big rating lightning strikes twice when it ends its season with the familiar question, "Who shot J.R.?" This year's final curtain comes down as a shot rings out, and we are left to wonder not only if J.R. will survive, but also who did the dirty deed. Not to be outdone, ABC's prime-time soap "Dynasty" will leave us hanging with various unanswered questions including the identities of the new character played by Diahann Carroll. Don't forget, a few weeks ago in this space I told you she would join the cast as Kirby's troubled mother.

On the record scene, watch for new product with the old sound of the Everly Brothers. Arista Records is set to release a two-record 24-song anthology of Don and Phil's greatest hits from the past three decades, and Polygram Records is putting the finishing touches on an Everly album of brand new material written by members of the brother's fan club. This exclusive club includes Paul McCartney, Barry Gibb, Carole King, Bob Dylan, and Neil Diamond.

The resurgence of the sweet sound of the Everlys is in part due to the great response of their recent HBO reunion concert. Also PBS did an excellent retrospective of their lives and careers.

Another anthology of "24

Original Classics" from Arista Records will feature 1960's hit-maker Dion. The album will span Dion's entire recording career from his early days with the Belmonts to his comeback hit "Abraham, Martin and John."

Stevie Wonder will make his first television concert appearance this June on the Showtime pay TV channel. The concert called, "Stevie Wonder Comes Home" will highlight a recent concert in his hometown of Detroit.

Varon Spelling Productions and ABC are really excited about their latest joint venture slated for next season called, "Glitter." The show is said to be about a magazine staff and their daily trials and tribulations. Kind of a "Dynasty" look at PEOPLE Magazine.

Remember... to succeed, you've got to have connections.

Got a question for your favorite star? Patti track 'em down for you. Send questions and comments to James S. Leach c/o THE VIDEO CONNECTION, 22761 Pacific Coast Hwy., Malibu, Calif. 90265.

WEEK OF: APRIL 26

AQUARIUS - January 21-February 19
In relationships, check tendency to seem too anxious. Partner responds best to a casual, even approach. Communications tie-ups end by weekend. Monday favors modest financial windfall.

PISCES - February 20-March 20
Avoid tendency to make light of a touchy situation, especially a romantic situation. Weekend can be a bonanza time for attending or hosting garage sales, bazaars, etc.

ARIES - March 21-April 20
People tend to make many little demands, but don't neglect priorities. Modest speculation may pay off after the weekend, when financial judgment could be brighter than usual.

TAURUS - April 21-May 22
Friends may be preoccupied with private matters, it's important to know when not to intrude. At work or school, reputation peaks and your ideas are applauded.

GEMINI - May 23-June 21
Learn from a friend's experiences when making the next move in your own romantic situation. With a bit more logic and originality, you can sell your ideas to anyone.

CANCER - June 22-July 22
Short-distance travel is highlighted, alone or with your favorite partner. Mechanical breakdowns happen in pairs. Long-awaited announcement arrives by Tuesday or Wednesday.

LEO - July 23-August 22
Accent is on creative activities, for fun or profit. Reconciliation may take place on the weekend. Presently, it's more important to act from the heart than from the head.

VIRGO - August 23-September 22
Friend is surprisingly generous - there may be a couple of strings attached. Family relationships improve on the weekend. Troublesome coworker is fading into the background.

LIBRA - September 23-October 22
Confidence sags a bit; watch tendency to apologize unnecessarily. Selectivity is essential in a week that includes an abundance of social invitations and professional opportunities.

SCORPIO - October 23-November 21
Watch tendency to overextend yourself, making too many promises to too many people. New relationships are favorably spotlighted on weekend. Luck is with you from Monday on.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22-December 22
Ability to sort information is keen through the week, and property matters are generally favored. Watch out for friends and family members determined to make up your mind.

CAPRICORN - December 23-January 20
Before you reach the point of no return, tackle the chores you've been putting off and the phone calls you've been avoiding. Weekend sees you sharing limelight with a friendly rival.

$27,500 Wollaston Blaze Blamed On Vandals

Fire officials blame vandals for a two-alarm fire in Wollaston which resulted in an estimated $27,500 damage to a barn, home and car.

A vacant two-and-a-half story barn at the rear of 129 Grand View Ave., Wollaston, was fully engulfed in flames when fire apparatus arrived on the scene Sunday night, said Dep. Chief Karl Valenti.

Officials believe the blaze, which caused an estimated $15,000 damage, was the work of vandals in the wooden barn which is owned by John Bradford.

Bradford told officials he has had trouble with youths entering the barn.

The fire also ignited a rear porch at a single-family home owned by James Rendle at 133 Grand View Ave. That fire caused an estimated $12,000 fire and was confined to the porch.

An unregistered 1975 Lincoln Continental owned by Bradford and parked in the yard was scorched on the exterior causing an estimated $500 damage.

Bradford's wife, Verna, complained of difficulty breathing. Oxygen was administered and she was taken to Quincy City Hospital where she was treated and released.

Seven pieces of fire apparatus were at the scene.

Empty Bottles, Cans Stolen

Blame this one on the Bottle Bill. Thieves cut the chain and lock on a storage cage area of the Old Colony Liquor store on Southern Artery last week and made off with 17 bags of empty beer cans and six cases of empty beer bottles.

Manager Jim Runey placed the value of the loot at $210.60 -- $16.80 per bag of empty cans and $1.50 per case of empty bottles.

Rebids On Pollard School Planned

The abandoned Pollard School in Quincy Point will be put out to bid a second time.

Mayor Francis X. McCauley said the decision to rebid was made after a community group failed to come up with funding for a community center and a number of new developers expressed interest in it.

The high bid previously was by Manel Properties Trust, headed by Anthony Losordo of Quincy, whose offer of $152,600 for the building on Southern Artery was recommended for acceptance by the Planning Board.

But the City Council, heeding the pleas of the community group, rejected the bid to give them a chance to develop their plans for a community center. It didn't work out.

Both McCauley and Planning Director James Lydon said they feel there will be more bids for the property this time.

"A lot of potential bidders did not bid the last time because they felt that the community group had the inside track on the school," said McCauley.

Lydon said he thinks that if the interest rate remains constant there will be a lot more interest in bidding.

"My guess is that we will get a higher price this time," he said. The bidding process will take three or four months, McCauley said. Manel Properties Trust had planned to convert the school into condominiums.

Quarry Draining Starts, Stops, Resumes

The J. F. White Contracting Co. of Newton began draining Swingle's Quarry in West Quincy Friday but the activity came to a halt a few hours later when workmen ran into minor problems.

The problems, said Deputy Public Works Commissioner David Colton, were a snapped electrical line and a crane too small to lower a pump beyond an underwater ledge.

Both problems have been cleared up, he said, and the company was scheduled to resume draining Tuesday afternoon.

The quarry is being drained in search of the body of Paul Gooch, 17, of Brockton, who drowned June 20 after jumping into the water from a 50-foot ledge.

White has contracted to drain the quarry in eight months and then fill it in with clean fill over a period of 15 years, paying the city on the basis of tonnage.

McDonald's Gets License For North Quincy

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Despite a last minute attempt by the opposition, the City License Board voted unanimously, 5-0, Tuesday to grant a license for a McDonald's restaurant in North Quincy.

The board granted a common victualer license to John P. Gillig for the restaurant at 275-295 Hancock St. It will be managed by his son, Steve Gillig, who also manages McDonald's on Southern Artery, Quincy, and in Weymouth.

City Councillor John J. Lydon, Jr., who had requested that the hearing be continued so that he could address the board, said that McDonald's has "threatened, intimidated and bullied support for the project."

Lydon said that Wayne McCulley of North Quincy Taxi, who was originally opposed to the McDonald's because of the traffic that it would generate, was threatened with the loss of his right to bring cabs into the North Quincy office area.

However, Police Chief Francis Finn produced an investigation report in which McCulley stated that he had not been threatened by anyone.

Finn said that Det. Sgt. Daniel Lyons questioned McCulley about the alleged threats. At first, McCulley refused to discuss any threats and stated he was not being threatened and the whole situation was being blown out of proportion, said Lyons in his report.

"Mr. McCulley then proceeded to tell me," said Lyons, "that he along with Brendan Gallagher and other business men in the area had voiced their opinions against the McDonald restaurant.

"When asked if as a result of this had he been threatened, he said he had never been threatened by anyone."

Lydon also told the board of a Quincy Fire Department captain responsible for the North Quincy Fire Station who signed a petition which recognized no problems with the North Quincy McDonald's location and supported it.

Three months prior, the captain filed an official Quincy Fire Dept. communication stating that the traffic conditions at the station make it "increasingly difficult", said Lydon.

New Five-Year Contract For Comer

John P. (Jake) Comer has been given a new three-year contract with a two-year automatic renewal in the $32,385 a year post of executive director of the Quincy Housing Authority.

Comer said the contract includes a clause that would permit him to take a year's leave of absence should he be elected national commander of the American Legion.

JOHN P. COMER

which approved it last week.

At the time it was approved in February, Ralph Maher was a member of the board. He has since been replaced by Rosemary Wahlberg as the state-appointed commissioner.

The vote to approve Comer's contract was 4-0 with Commissioner Carmine D'Olimpio voting present.

Comer said the automatic two-year renewal clause in the contract is dependent upon him receiving an "average" rating from the state office on a scale of zero to 10.

"In my first year on the job I got an eight," said Comer, who has been director since March, 1982.

He said his original

Houghs Neck Forms 'Watchdog' Group On Drinking

The Houghs Neck Committee Against Street Pollution has formed a "watchdog" subcommittee headed by Jack Nigro to keep an eye on drinking by young people in the neighborhood.

The committee will organize neighbors in the nine or ten areas most frequented by 13 to 30 year old drinkers. They will call police and keep track of the action taken on their calls.

The main committee, headed by David MacMillan, met Sunday at the Manet Community Center and the consensus was that the area has quieted down since the police began taking action.

It was stressed that police must maintain the same high level of pressure through the spring and summer.

MacMillan's committee was formed after an incident outside Louis Cafe in which five sailors from the USS Fulton, three of them black, were assaulted by youths. Ten were arrested for the assault.

Meanwhile, a youth activities committee was formed under the leadership of Peg Nigro in an effort to provide healthy activities to replace drinking "because there is nothing else to do."

The Houghs Neck Legion Post has agreed to sponsor a dance for young people in May.

Harvey's Saltwater Fishing Club is planning an all day fishing trip for local teens.

The Quincy Yacht Club is planning sailing lessons for the summer and a possible outing on Peddocks Island.

The Houghs Neck Community Council is seeking to team up with the Bayside Youth Organization to conduct the annual Fourth of July celebration.

The Bayside group is planning a harbor cruise to view the Tall Ships in June, and a softball program for teens on Sunday is also in the planning stage.

License Board Briefs

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday morning's meeting at City Hall:

• Granted a one day all alcoholic license to the Woodward School Parent Club to be used in conjunction with a Las Vegas Night Saturday, May 12, 7 p.m. to midnight.

Richard M. Morrissey to his son, Brian J. Morrissey of Hingham.

• Continued for one week a request from Stop and Go Transmissions, 642 Washington St., Quincy, for a license for 250 gallons of gasoline in cars and transmission repairs.

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald will inspect the site, and Ward Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro will be notified of the request.

• Continued for two weeks, pending a routine police check, a request from Robert Cannata of Braintree and Karl Bould-oukian of Weymouth for a lodging house license for 22 Bigelow St., Quincy Center.

• Continued for one week a hearing on conditions of properties owned by William Needel in the Brewer's Corner area.

• Granted a motor (1 used car) license to C and L Auto Sales, 45 Copeland St., West Quincy, for a probationary period of six months.

The new lieutenants are Dennis Mannix and John McDonough.

Mayor Francis N. McCauley said he will also swear in Patrolmen Raymond Haskell and Guido Pettinelli as acting sergeants, pending the establishment of a new Civil Service list.

Haskell and Pettinelli are the senior patrolmen on the department, which will now have 23 sergeants.

Office Buildings Planned On Junk Yard Site

Adams Realty Trust of Braintree, a national consortium of investors, are planning to construct two office buildings of five or six stories each on the site of Goldie's Junk Yard in West Quincy.

One of the buildings would be in Braintree, the other on Willard St. in Quincy. No cost figure has been mentioned.

City Councillor James A. Sheets has called an informal meeting of neighbors Tuesday, May 22, at 7 p.m. in City Hall at which the developers will explain the project.

Planning Director James Lydon said the project will require a zoning change from Residence A probably to planned unit development (PUD) of the two-thirds of the land that is in Quincy.

The entire project will cover 10 acres. Lydon said the city probably would insist on a PUD instead of a business zoning so that the city would not lose control of it in case the land was sold.

Each of the proposed buildings would have 125,000 square feet of office space.

The project came to light Monday night when the developers appeared before the Braintree Sewer Commission for an initial presentation.

REP. THOMAS BROWNELL was honored as the Quincy Bar Association's "Man of the Year" at the organization's annual dinner meeting. From left, are Mrs. Marge Brownell, Brownell and Atty. Stephen Keefe.

Kinney To Take Over Parking Lots May 9

Kinney Systems Inc. takes over the downtown parking lots in Quincy Wednesday, May 9, and, said Mayor Francis X. McCauley, validated parking will be in full effect Monday May 14.

It is possible, said McCauley, that the meters will be pulled from the lots this coming weekend, May 5-6, or failing that, certainly during the weekend of May 11-12.

From May 9 -- or earlier if the meters are taken out -- parking will be free of charge until May 14, by which time the bugs will be worked out of the system and the collectors' booths manned.

Morton Levin, regional manager for Kinney, cleared up one thorny point on Tuesday -- there will be a charge for parking on Sunday, tentatively between the hours of 11 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Arthur Foley, the mayor's aide, noted that when negotiations began for Kinney to take over the lots, stores were open on Sunday only in the month preceding Christmas.

McCauley said parking lot hours have not been set but Kinney has been talking about 6 a.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 7 a.m. to 2 a.m. on Friday and Saturday.

"They may start with those hours," he said, "and then change them depending upon the demand."

Crime Prevention Southwest Topic

Residents of Southwest Quincy have been invited to discuss a neighborhood crime prevention program at a meeting Thursday, May 10, at 7:30 p.m. at the Faith Center, 65 Roberts St.

City Councillor James A. Sheets, members of the Quincy Police Department, in cooperation with Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services, will be present for the discussion.

"Such groups have been successful in NHS programs across the country," said

NHS Community Relations Committee head Ellen Hurley.

"Training neighbors to spot suspicious activities on their streets and adopt crime prevention techniques is an important part in making our streets and homes safe for all."

"QNHIS has done a great deal of work to improve the housing stock in Southwest Quincy and this is one further step in helping the area continue to be a great place to live."

Rabies Clinic Saturday

Health Commr. Dr. M. Grace Hussey announces that the Quincy Health Department will hold the annual Rabies Immunization Clinic for dogs and cats at the Public Works Department Garage, Sea St. Saturday, May 5, from noon to 4 p.m. rain or shine.

There will be a charge of $4 for each animal immunized.

The clinic will be staffed by Dr. Allan Morse, D.V.M. of North Quincy, and members of the Health Department.

Dr. Hussey urges all owners of dogs and cats to make use of this annual immunization.

Dr. Hussey stated, "Not only does this rabies immunization protect the citizens and the animals from rabies, but it provides the animal owners an opportunity to meet legal requirements that all dogs must be immunized against rabies before they can be licensed."

Licenses can be obtained at the clinic.

Marvin's Montclair Magic

Marvelous Marvin Hagler may be a tiger in the ring, but he's a pussycat outside it.

Quite a guy. A real gentleman. Talks softly. Friendly. Likes to mix with people and shake hands. A ready smile.

He invaded Montclair Saturday night and conquered it in two minutes.

The undisputed world middle-weight champion was honored by the Montclair Men's Club at its 32nd annual awards dinner.

Hagler received the John B. Gilooly Memorial Award given in honor of the late Boston Record-American sports columnist for achievement in the field of sports, the media, entertainment and activities in behalf of youth.

Before he entered the clubhouse he patiently autographed photos for some 50 youngsters who were outside waiting for him to arrive.

And, during the dinner, he patiently did the same for everyone who asked. And just about everyone asked. He didn't just sign his name but personalized the autograph to each person. And many who got one for himself, asked for one for a son or grandson.

That right hand got quite a workout but he enjoyed it. He enjoyed the night and told club members the warm reception "makes me feel good."

He hopes to take on Sugar Ray Leonard soon in what he says should be "the best fight of all time."

But he indicated he thinks Leonard is making a mistake coming back to the ring with that eye injury. And, he's not going to take it easy on Leonard because of it.

He recalled a fighter who had an eye injury but continued fighting. He went blind in that eye and nearly blind in the other.

"Leonard should have seen him like I did," Hagler said.

Hagler, incidentally, has legally changed his name to Marvclous Marvin Hagler.

Hagler, who looked in good shape, apparently doesn't worry about what or how much he eats.

He put away the roast beef and potatoes

But he seemed to go for the salad more than anything. Maybe he's what puts the zing into his punch.

STAFF SENATOR Paul Harold attended the wedding of a friend in Portland, Me. over the weekend. The wedding took place at the First Parish Church there.

Harold, a history buff, quickly noticed that the mahogany pulpit, resembled the one at First Parish Church in Quincy Sq. In fact, it was a virtual twin.

HAROLD

With the announcement, "We're the Caring Kind," Quincy City Hospital joins hospitals throughout the nation in celebrating National Hospital Week, May 6-12.

"The 1984 National Hospital Week theme pays tribute to the special kind of people we have at Quincy City Hospital," said William Henderson, director of Community Relations.

"Whether they be employees, volunteers, visitors, or Board of Managers, they are all people who are the caring kind."

"They are people who

Later, talking with the pastor, Harold said: "You must have copied that from First Parish Church in Quincy."

"No," the pastor said. "Actually, John Quincy Adams saw it here on a visit and liked it. So the Quincy church copied us."

FORMER Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly will be honored tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Bryan VFW Post. It's billed as a traditional testimonial but word is it will turn into a roast.

Sheriff Clifford Marshall will be the emcee. Speakers will include Mayor Francis McCauley, Senator Paul Harold, Rep. Thomas Brownell, City Clerk John Gillis, former Mayor Walter Hannon, Quincy Housing Director John (Jake) Comer, former Councillor Dennis Harrington, Gerry Kavanaugh and Jack Powers.

That's a long lineup but they promise to keep the talk short and do Kelly in early. (Watch out for Hannon, Leo).

THE WARD 4 City Democratic Committee has elected officers for 1984-88: Bernice Mader, chairman; Mario Traficante, co-chairman; Lawrence Falvey, vice chairman; Barbara Crowley, secretary and Thomas Vangel, treasurer.

The committee will meet June 21 and invites anyone interested to attend. The meetings are not restricted to those recently elected to the committee in the Presidential primary.

For more info contact Bernice Mader at 773-6881.

DURING THE Quincy Sun Ch. 8 interview with former Mayor Thomas Burgin on his 82nd birthday, he recalled the City Council of 1924 to which he was elected at age 22.

Only two of those councillors are still alive: Burgin, of course, and Angelo Birzozero, now about 90.

On that City Council were three future mayors: Thomas McGrath, Charles Ross and Burgin, elected to the mayor's office in that order.

THINGS we didn't know until now:

The state even takes its cut of the proceeds from a Little League raffle 5 per cent off the top.

Quincy Police Det. John Salamone, who is active in the Brookfield Little League in Brockton, figures his group raises about $3,000 annually by raffle. The state takes $150.

"That will buy 10 aluminum bats or six dozen baseballs," says John.

QCH To Observe Hospital Week

With the announcement, "We're the Caring Kind," Quincy City Hospital joins hospitals throughout the nation in celebrating National Hospital Week, May 6-12.

"The 1984 National Hospital Week theme pays tribute to the special kind of people we have at Quincy City Hospital," said William Henderson, director of Community Relations.

"Whether they be employees, volunteers, visitors, or Board of Managers, they are all people who are the caring kind."

"They are people who care about one another and about the community. It is their commitment to caring that we celebrate this week."

Quincy City Hospital has planned a number of activities to observe National Hospital Week and to honor and encourage employees and volunteers.

Included are: Monday, May 7, National Nurse Day, Wednesday, May 9, Open House and tour of the hospital from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. with displays of Hospital Programs and free blood pressure screening.

"We could not serve the community without the community's support," said Henderson, "and the dedicated effort of our employees. National Hospital Week 1984 is a celebration of both our employees and the community. Only by working together can we truly be the Caring Kind."

Job Fair '84 Set For May 5

South Shore and Boston area companies will be offering hundreds of employment opportunities at Job Fair '84 at State Street South, Newport Ave., North Quincy, Saturday, May 5, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Even though unemployment in Massachusetts is at a low level, over 4,000 prospective employees are expected to attend, said John C. Doody, president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, one of the sponsoring organizations of Job Fair '84.

"There are indications that employed people are going to be seeking to upgrade their jobs," said Doody. "We began to see this trend a year ago and we think it will be even more pronounced this year."

Doody notes the Job Fair is unique in making it possible for both companies and prospective employees to get together quickly.

"Someone looking for a job or wanting to know about a number of firms can do it in just a few hours at one location," Doody said.

More than 45 employers have arranged to have booths at the Job Fair. Among them will be the national Fire Protection Association, U.S. Army, General Dynamics, Quincy Shipbuilding Div., Boston Financial Data Services, New York Life, The Patriot Ledger, GTE Shareholders, FBI, BayBank/Norfolk, Jack Conway Co., Eastern Uniform, Friendly's, South Shore Bank, Bank of Boston, State Street Bank, American Automobile Association, and many more.

The Personnel Managers' Group of the South

Shore Chamber of Commerce will also be sponsoring a series of seminars aimed at providing those attending with helpful information on marketing themselves to employers.

Job Fair '84 is sponsored by the chamber, the Norfolk County Development and Tourist Council, Division of Employment Security-Quincy Job Match, and the South Coastal Private Industry Council.

More information is available by calling the South Shore Chamber at 479-1111.

Quincy's Yesterdays

By Tom Henshaw

Company Seizure Planned To End E Mass Bus Strike

Howard O. Gates, president of the bus drivers union said a bill will be filed in the State Legislature that would permit the governor to seize the Eastern Mass Street Railway and force compulsory arbitration in the 58-day old strike.

Gates and other union officials appeared before the Quincy City Council to protest what they called the "overprotection" being given to the Eastern Mass yards in Quincy. The police details, said Gates, were costing taxpayers $200 a day.

He noted that 20 policemen were on duty at the yards on Monday, May 6, when two daring gunmen staged Quincy's first major holdup in five years, escaping with $10,000 from the Gilchrist store in broad daylight.

Meanwhile, a move was afoot, spearheaded by the Salem Chamber of Commerce, to revoke the Eastern Mass franchise in 75 communities on grounds that the company had not exhausted all available means to fulfill its obligations to 500,000 riders.

COUNCIL CONTROL SOUGHT

Mayor David S. McIntosh proposed an ordinance that would prohibit city officials from making public statements of a controversial nature unless those statements were first cleared with the City Council.

The proposal came in the wake of critical comments on the award to the highest of two bidders on a contract for six police cars.

"It is my feeling that no such comments should be made or any other statements that would invite controversy," said McIntosh. "This is not the first time such statements have been issued with the resultant bad feelings."

PLAN E REPEAL

Mayor McIntosh said he plans to start circulating petitions next month asking for a referendum on the Nov. 4 state election ballot to repeal the Plan E government in Quincy. McIntosh campaigned for the City Council on a repeal platform.

DR. LEONE RETURNS

The City Hospital Board of Managers recommended that Dr. Joseph P. Leone, who headed the hospital from 1935 to 1946, return as director after Dr. Ensio K. F. Ronka was forced by the Board to resign effective April 1.

Chamber Opposes Prowse Farm Takeover

Directors of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce have gone on record against a state takeover of historic Prowse Farm in Canton as a state park.

Aging Council Sponsoring MBTA Pass Program

The Quincy Council on Aging in conjunction with the MBTA will sponsor the senior citizen MBTA pass program Tuesday, May 15.

The program is available to people 65 years of age or older, or those with handicaps.

Proof of age or a doctor's verification of disability will be required to receive an MBTA pass.

The MBTA pass program will take place at the senior citizen Drop-In-Center, 24 High School Ave., Quincy Center between 9:30 a.m.

The farm is owned by Codex Corp., which plans to construct its international headquarters on the site.

"They should be allowed to proceed on schedule," said Chamber President John C. Doody. "Once the building plans are completed there are safeguards to guarantee beauty and maintenance of the land."

"The Codex development is critical for the high tech industry on the South Shore. Due process has been served. The state has no right to step in as long as original plans are adhered to."

"Town boards and town meeting have spoken in support and have given their approval to plans submitted by Codex. A move to take over the land by eminent domain, at this point, is irresponsible."

MAYOR FRANCIS X. McCAULEY praised Headmaster Robert L. Johnston (left) and the Woodward School for contributions to the history of the city of Quincy. At center is state Sen. Paul Harold.

90TH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION — The Woodward School celebrated its 90th anniversary recently. Students paraded through Quincy Square dressed in garb representing the time of the founding of the school in the 1890's to the future. After the parade, a ceremony was held in front of the school. Shown here is a five-ton granite marker indicating where the school has buried a time capsule containing items such as an issue of Vogue magazine, a cassette of current songs and a picture of entertainer Michael Jackson. The time capsule will be opened in 2019, the 150th anniversary of the school.

REV. KEITH MUNSON, pastor of United First Parish Church, dressed as the school's benefactor, Dr. Ebenezer Woodward. During the parade he rode in a horse-drawn wagon driven by Chetta Kelly of Milton, a trustee of the school.

Woodward School Celebrates 90th Anniversary Of Founding

The Woodward School, 1102 Hancock St., Quincy, recently marked the 90th anniversary of the founding of the school with a series of events.

There was a parade of students and faculty dressed in period costumes from 1894 to the present.

Robert L. Johnston, headmaster, dressed as the 1910 headmaster. The Rev. Keith Munson, chairman of the school's Board of Managers, headed the parade as Dr. Ebenezer Woodward, the school's benefactor.

Trustee Chetta Kelly of Milton was costumed and rode in her horse and wagon.

The parade route went from the school to Quincy Square and back to the school.

There was also a ceremony in front of the school dedicating the new five-ton granite marker which contained a time capsule. Students placed items in the time capsule.

Mr. Munson read portions of Dr. Woodward's will which created the school.

Mayor Francis McCauley, Sen. Paul Harold and Rep. Thomas Brownell also took part. Miss Katherine Bacon, headmistress of Woodward for 43 years, was present.

Purpose of the event was to help Woodward students recognize their school's heritage and to communicate to the city of Quincy the role which The Woodward School has played in private education in the city.

The school currently has 150 female students in grades six through 12.

Take care of your own funeral arrangements now.

So your family won't have to later.

By not taking care of your own funeral in advance, you force someone close to you to do it for you.

For the person who accepts the responsibility, making arrangements at the time of need is likely to be filled with uncertainties. The uncertainty of not knowing what you really wanted. Your personal preferences. Perhaps, a favorite dress or suit. A special prayer. A clergyman with whom you are especially close. The uncertainties are endless.

The kindest thing you can do for your family is make your own funeral arrangements far in advance of need. That way everybody will know the kind of funeral you would like to have.

For more information on pre-arrangement or pre-financing, write for our free booklet.

Stay Alive!

HIGHWAY FATALITY FACTS

More than half of all traffic fatalities result from accidents involving only one vehicle.

In spite of icy road conditions, the highway death rate is lowest in January and February, and highest in August, September and October.

About one-sixth of all fatal traffic accidents occur on Friday or Saturday night between 10 p.m. and 3 a.m. It's a good time to stay off the highway.

The motor vehicle death rate is three times higher at night than it is during the day.

Almost two-thirds of all fatal traffic accidents take place in rural areas. But two-thirds of the accidents that result in an injury occur in urban areas.

Three of every eight persons who are killed in city traffic accidents are pedestrians.

From 1960 through 1975, motor vehicle deaths totaled 2,100,000. American battle deaths in all 20th century wars -- both World Wars, the Korean War and the Viet Nam War -- add up to less than one-fourth that number -- 425,783.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK.

Lady Luck, Luck of the Irish, Fate - whatever name we call it by - we all seem to be looking for it. Will this "one lucky break" change our lives? Will this "one lucky break" make our lives more exciting - more fulfilling? Is this "one lucky break" just around the corner? So we all hope and believe and eagerly await it - and stand still while we wait!

We all know that hard work (usually) results in success. Yet, sometimes the "hardworking" people seem to be lost in the rush of the "lucky" ones passing them by. We are not deriding the hardworking people. On the contrary, without hard work no success story would ever be written. We are saying that rigid engrossment in one area is not enough. We may be dead to the opportunities that are knocking.

The way to accomplishment is to have imagination, awareness of opportunity and the courage to attempt something new. It is said that being in the right place at the right time is the true definition of "luck."

This may be true. But I - have you ever thought the time and the place may be right - but you may not be ready? ... You can't say to "opportunity," "If I knew you were coming I'd have baked a cake!" Isn't it true that the "cake" composed of ability, knowledge, and courage must always be there and READY to be served?

All three: funeral planning, wills and life insurance are designed to help the family deal with the emotional and financial trauma that occurs when a family member dies.

Fun planning spares the family any additional anxiety when the inevitable actually happens. It gives positive assurance that the arrangements will represent the personal wishes of the deceased. It also reduces family members of any financial stress, assuring them that funds will be available when needed to offset or complete costly funeral expenses.

Johnson Installed As QJC President

Dr. O. Clayton Johnson has indicated that expansion of career programs will accompany a strengthened general education during his regime at the head of Quincy Junior College.

Johnson spoke at his installation as the third president of the college at ceremonies last Friday in First Parish Church.

"Many," he said, "will cling to the past values as the only road to travel because they essentially believe that the preparation of commonly educated students will replicate the renaissance person."

"But I caution all of you that the meaning of education today and in the future is not that simple any more.

"We have democratized our educational institutions, especially the community colleges, and have moved from an elite to a mass collegiate philosophy."

"Today, fewer students spend their study exclusively in liberal education, later advancing to specialized work."

"Many begin with equal learning emphasis on composition and computers, history and health care, mathematics and mechanics."

Johnson, who came to Quincy after four years as vice president at Worcester State College, said the future of education "must be less related to what we teach and more dependent on how we teach."

"In this day of changing human and social values," he said, "we must come to accept a greater emphasis for helping students through corporate eyes and develop concepts for lifelong participation."

"Today our college opens a new era of services to our community. Born in the spirit of Quincy, we have spread our wings. We bring with us hope for the future along the Greater South Shore."

Quincy Junior College took the occasion of Johnson's installation to award an honorary degree to Senate President William Bulger.

The principal address was delivered by John B. Duff, chancellor of the Board of Regents of Massachusetts.

Mayor Francis X. McCauley was the installing officer School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon welcomed the guests, and Marilyn Straus, vice president of the student government, made the introductions.

Reisberg Finds Space, Pollution Big Issues

Bernard Reisberg, a candidate for the City Council from Ward 1, says he has found that the issues that concern the people of the ward the most are open space and air pollution.

"At candidates nights and coffee hours throughout the ward, constituents have expressed their interest in my position on these two issues," he said.

"Open space, and the protection thereof, insure the environment both for us and for our children, those who will follow us.

"Once it's gone, it's gone and there are no more valuable assets to protect us and our wildlife."

Reisberg noted that there are ways to get around the preservation of open space with permits and he pledged as a councillor to work and fight to protect the open space areas in the community.

He has been working with the Health Department on programs for clean air in view of the fact that pollution from industry is such a problem to the neighborhoods.

"These issues are as close to my heart as they are to all the people of the ward and I pledge to commit myself to maintain and improve the environment in our community," he said.

William Gardocki Chosen N.H. Teacher Of The Year

A 1975 graduate of Norfolk Aggie, Gardocki continued his education at the Thompson School of Applied Science. In 1977, he went to the University of New Hampshire where he earned a B.S. degree in agricultural education in 1980.

Gardocki is in his fourth year of teaching, his third at Alvirne High School, Hudson, N.H. he was elected vice-president of the New Hampshire Vocational Agricultural Teachers' Association.

While living in Quincy, Gardocki was a member of the Koch Club Recreational programs and was a graduate of the Koch Club Baseball leagues in the North Quincy district.

contract called for a three-year term as director, expiring in March, 1985, but the commissioners decided that, since the state was giving three-year contracts with two-year renewals, they should go for it early.

Comer has been nominated for national commander of the American Legion, the first Massachusetts legionnaire to be so honored since Daniel Doherty of Woburn was elected in 1937.

Comer, who was state commander in 1975-76, said he is hoping to be elected national commander in 1987, the 50th anniversary of Doherty's term.

McDonald's Gets N. Quincy License

He also noted that Chief Finn was attending the meeting after a three week absence.

"We have a designated sitting member of a license board from the police department (Capt. Paul Nestor) express some concerns relative to traffic and give the appearance that he might be opposed to a granting of the license."

"All of a sudden, we have a police chief come all the way from Florida for the final meeting and vote. Does that cause you some question?"

Finn answered that he returned to the city because his vacation was over. While he was away, he kept abreast of the matter by reading The Quincy Sun and The Patriot Ledger, and talking with City Clerk John Gillis and members of the Police Department.

He also noted that Captain Nestor was correct to bring to the board's attention the possibility of problems with left hand turns into the restaurant, but that the turns would not be unsafe.

Lydon also said that the building owner sought approvals from the City Council and Local Industrial Finance Authority for a commercial revenue bond projects as an office building, not as a McDonald's.

Atty. Patricia Hunt, who represented McDonald's, told the board that the owner of the building did seek revenue bond project funding, but didn't go through with it and then used private financing.

Finn said that he, as well as police officers, observed the traffic flow at the proposed site and saw no deleterious impact if plans went through.

Finn said he tended to favor the request, though he was sympathetic to the neighbors who expressed concerns.

Fire Chief Edward Barry supported Finn. He said he and Building Inspector

Allan MacDonald also observed the traffic flow and saw no problems.

Barry said he preferred the parking area (of the restaurant) with regard to visibility near the fire station rather than a building.

MacDonald questioned the concern about traffic when there had been no such questions raised over a donut shop, North Quincy MBTA, Cathay Pacific and other businesses going into the area.

MacDonald did question an MBTA right-of-way on the McDonald's plan, and whether the parking area must be owned by the owner of the building.

The license was granted subject to the law department's ruling on those two questions.

After the meeting, Steve Gillig said he did not have an opening date for the restaurant which will be located on the first floor of the former Otis Elevator Building.

Brownell Bill Would Phase Out Surtax

Rep. Thomas I. Brownell testified recently on behalf of his own bill that would phase out the state income tax surcharge over a period of three years.

"The original purpose of the surtax in 1975 was to balance the budget," said Brownell. "It was supposed to be a temporary measure endine around 1980."

"Since then we've balanced the budget and this year we'll run a surplus if we don't repeal the surcharge. We just don't need the surplus any more so we can afford to give the taxpayers a break."

Brownell said the purpose of phasing out the surcharge instead of repealing it would recognize the revenue needs of the state and reflect the fact that past efforts at immediate repeal have failed.

Brownell's bill would reduce the surtax from 7.5 per cent to 5 per cent for the current year and 2.5 per cent in 1985 and abolish it thereafter.

Harold told a gathering of some 300 supporters at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, that he plans "to continue my efforts to help Massachusetts maintain its competitive edge among industrial states."

"The healthy economy we enjoy not only provides jobs for our citizens, but also enables us to provide the services our citizens depend upon."

Harold serves as chairman of the legislative Local Affairs Committee and is a member of the Transportation and Criminal Justice

PAUL HAROLD Committees.

He was cited as legislator of the year by the Massachusetts Municipal Association for his efforts in assisting city and town governments to operate within the fiscal constraints of Proposition 2½.

"We have made progress," said Harold in summing up the projects he has been working on in the district.

"In Quincy, we have brought the Quincy Mental Health Center to reality and we have the Burgin Parkway project ready for construction.

"I want to continue to work to upgrade the reliability of the Red Line and focus on the cleanup of Boston Harbor, including the phasing out of the Nut Island Treatment Plant and construction of a new plant on Deer Island."

Harold was one of 11 senators who filed the Senate rules reform package and was commended by Common Cause for his leadership in "making the Massachusetts Legislature a more open, democratic institution."

Harold, 35, is a graduate of Sacred Heart High School in Weymouth, the University of Massachusetts at Amherst and Suffolk Law School.

He has a master's degree in public administration from the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard and studied at the Johns Hopkins European Center in Italy and Worcester College at Oxford in England.

Golden Says Harold On Wrong Commuter Track

Richard Golden, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for State Senator, says Sen. Paul D. Harold "is on the wrong track" in recent remarks about a commuter right-of-way on the South Shore.

"Perhaps he should refamiliarize himself with the rail options available and preserved through Quincy," he said.

"A right-of-way certainly does exist and, if elected, I will work vigorously to see commuter rail service provided to the people of our district and the entire South Shore.

"One doesn't have to travel the world to see examples of creative transportation solutions. Our state is currently engaged in many ambitious railway projects.

"Dual rail service is being made available on the Orange Line into a modernized South Station. Similar rail service for the South Shore could be a reality to meet our growing transportation needs.

"A commuter rail would provide a fast, dependable and efficient transportation alternative. The Red Line is overcrowded and needs relief so quality service can be restored for Quincy and Braintree.

"Decent, dependable Red Line service is long overdue."

Rebuild Winthrop St., Greigore Pledges

Mary Crowley Greigore, a candidate for the City Council from Ward 1, has pledged to have Winthrop St. in Houghs Neck rebuilt and re-opened.

"When elected to the Council I will fight to get money appropriated and spent on rebuilding Winthrop St.," she told a gathering at a wine and cheese party.

"Residents of the area tell me the street has been closed for too long and that the barricades blocking it off make the neighborhood look like a perpetual construction site, yet no construction is taking place."

A portion of Winthrop St. was closed off to traffic after part of the road caved in, leaving a large rut.

"One of the most important things a ward councillor can do is fight for city services for her ward," said Greigore.

"When elected I intend to be constantly available to help citizens get the police and fire protection and public works services they deserve as tax payers."

Condon Renamed To National Post

City Councillor Joanne Condon has been reappointed to a second one-year term as a member of the Community and Economic Development Policy Committee of the National League of Cities.

Condon was nominated by the Massachusetts Municipal Association in which she serves as president of the City Council Association.

SARAH-ANN SHAW of WBZ-TV, keynote speaker at the annual Woman to Woman Day, addressed the audience of some 300 women. At right on stage is Harriet Goldman, chairwoman of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women.

(Quincy Sun photo by Jonathan Burdick)

300 Women Attend Woman To Woman Day

About 300 women attended the eighth annual Woman to Woman Day Saturday at the Woodward School, Quincy Center.

Chairwoman Harriet G. Goldman greeted the women and urged them to use their votes as a vehicle of power.

Mrs. Alicia Coletti, director of Quincy Junior College's Women's Center, gave a brief outline of the Key program which is a returning to career program, a joint venture of Quincy Cablestystems and the college.

Mayor Francis McCauley told of the importance of the commission's work and the excellent quality of Mrs. Goldman's work this year on behalf of the city's women.

Workshops on law, politics and religion were especially well received by the group.

Representatives Elizabeth Metayer and Barbara Gray helped the women get a taste of "life on the hill" and how to successfully achieve in a "male domain."

Judge Marilyn Sullivan, a Quincy native, gave a brief talk on her career.

Moderator Atty. Ruth Pavan, Atty. Loli Dickerman and Atty. Rona Goodman followed with stories of their legal experiences from a woman's vantage point.

The health work shop featured a presentation and slides by Dr. Susan Kelley of the Dana Farber Institute. New treatments for breast cancer were highlighted.

Dr. Luleen Anderson, Quincy Public Schools, discussed, "I have a dream... a projected look at how all women hope to improve their futures.

Keynote speaker Sarah-Ann Shaw of WBZ-TV told the group of her struggle up the TV ladder of success and how women need to ascend to top managerial positions in order to think of any sense of power in that medium.

A religious workshop featured Sr. Janet Eisner, president of Emmanuel College, the Rev. Alicia Corea, the Rev. Maureen Young and Zipporah Jacobs who told of women's role in religion today. A question and answer period followed.

Quincy Cooperative Bank sponsored a wine and cheese social at the end of the day.

It also provided speakers Doris Baker of Quincy Cooperative and Joan Gerrity, Assistant Insurance Commissioner of Massachusetts, who joined Rhonda Feldman, Boston Financial Data Service, to discuss how to use finances to benefit women.

A Refrigerator That Saves Space

Homeowners interested in saving kitchen space can see Hotpoint's latest 15 cu ft refrigerator at a local dealer show room.

The refrigerator's large volume helps save money through bulk purchases, and its narrow, 28-in. frame saves space in today's smaller kitchens or where space is limited. It also offers a 4.58 cu ft freezer, with ample space to serve the growing trend toward frozen foods.

Larger freezer space means less frequent shopping—a saving of time and energy to the busy shopper.

This refrigerator from Hotpoint is equipped to take the automatic ice maker, the option consumers demand most often. It combines no-frost convenience with popular energy-saver system. The unit is available in Almond, Harvest and White.

New Grill/Griddle And Microwave Ovens

Prospective homebuyers and remodelers looking for kitchens equipped with outstanding features will like Hotpoint's Grill/Griddle Range, with its versatile cooktop that lets you cook in many different and delicious ways.

Another feature is the Countersaver™ microwave oven and hood that saves valuable kitchen space by fitting over existing ranges in place of the standard hood.

The Grill/Griddle features front and back heat controls that allow cooking and warming at the same time. As a grill, the unit can cook sizzling, juicy steaks while, used as a griddle, it is the ideal cooking surface for bacon and eggs or pancakes.

A handy reference chart of frequently prepared foods is on the range backplash. A full-color cookbook is also included, with easy cooking techniques and many new recipes.

IT MAY BE SMALL, BUT IT'S AFFORDABLE

The words "affordable" and housing rarely seem to go together these days. But, "The Life House" developed by a California firm hopes to change that.

The pre-fab wooden house, which unfolds from an 8x8x20 foot shipping crate, offers 642 square feet of living space at a cost of $15,000 delivered. The home can be erected by four people over a long weekend and is designed to fit into a 50x50 foot lot.

Redwood decks and fences will stay straighter longer because U. S. Forest Products Laboratory reports show that redwood resists shrinking or swelling better than other commercially available wood species.

SAFE-T-CLOSET™ CREATES DO-IT-YOURSELF HOME SECURITY VAULT FOR VALUABLES.

Every 11 seconds, somewhere in the United States, a burglar strikes. Silverware, jewelry, furs—your most valued possessions can be lost forever in one unguarded moment.

Now you can stop thieves with the steel-into-steel protection of Safe-T-Closet. It's a new heavy duty steel door-and-frame unit that turns a closet into a home security vault.

Best of all, you can easily do-it-yourself. Using common hand tools.

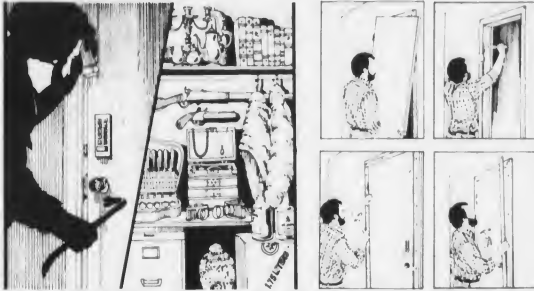

Safe-T-Closet fits neatly into existing closet openings. Its heavy duty steel frame is nailed and secured with screws to the wood frame. Its tough steel door is precision fitted and already hung on welded security hinges.

Its pushbutton deadbolt stops burglars in their tracks. The door can only be opened with the right combination of four numbers. There are no keys to get lost, misplaced or duplicated. A pushbutton release provides for exit from inside the closet.

Safe-T-Closet comes ready to install, complete in one carton. The base unit is pre-assembled, with pushbutton deadbolt already installed.

Both door and frame are pre-finished in high quality baked paint of pearl white color—ready to use or for repainting to match the room's decor.

For the home handyman, there's a set of illustrated, step-by-step instructions for installing in four basic operations.

The lowdown on home equity loans.

An equity loan (or second mortgage) is based on a factor of the difference between the present market value of your home and your current mortgage balance. Borrowing against the equity you have in your home is worth considering, if you can use some money for home improvements, college tuitions or other reasons.

If you're looking into an equity loan, look carefully.

Because rate isn't everything.

In fact, at some banks, a competitive rate is just the beginning of what your loan actually costs.

But not at Quincy Savings.

A 14% fixed rate* for 10 years, plus a modest legal fee, is all we charge for a second mortgage of up to $30,000.

Compare that with what other banks charge.

You'll often find they add some unexpected costs. Application fees of up to $200, for example. Variable rates that might increase your costs in the future. Appraisal fees, points and other miscellaneous charges as well.

Now that you have the real lowdown on equity loans, call our Consumer Loan Center at 471-3500 or visit our nearest office for an application.

Fans Well Suited To Today's Needs

Whole-House Fans

Foremost among the energy-saving powered ventilators is the whole-house fan. Situated near the center of the home, the fan can be used in summer months to draw in cooler evening air through open windows, lowering the temperature inside the house. The fan also creates cooling breezes which can make the temperature seem two to eight degrees cooler than it actually is.

An effective cooling device at temperatures into the 80's, the whole-house fan uses far

Whole-house fans offer cooling comfort and are far more economical to operate than air-conditioners, less energy than the airconditioner while achieving similar results. The fans use as little as one-tenth of the energy required to operate an air-conditioner, consequently the homeowner can realize dramatic savings in energy costs by using the fan to supplement or, in some climates, even replace the air-conditioner.

Attic Fans

In both summer and winter, powered attic space ventilators can offer important advantages to the homeowner.

In the summer, excessive heat can build up in the attic. This heat can penetrate to the house below, causing discomfort as it increases the temperature. Further, the heat can cause structural damage as it deteriorates building materials in the attic and roof.

By installing a powered attic space ventilator in the attic and equipping it with a thermostatic control, the homeowner can expel the excessive heat before it spreads or causes damage. The fan automatically turns on when the temperature exceeds safe levels and shuts off once the temperature has been sufficiently reduced.

Easy does it with these quick and simple housekeeping tips

So starting with a few tips for kitchen and laundry — easy does it:

- To remove ballpoint ink or newspaper ink from any hard surface — vinyl, painted walls — spray it with a little hair spray. Then wash off with Lysol® Pine Action™ and water.

- Hate to defrost the refrigerator and freezer? You'll need to do it far less often if you vacuum the back of the appliances. Vents clogged with dust and dirt interfere with ventilation, making the motor work harder. Result is more ice build-up.

- This tip is one your grandmother knew, but it's so effective it bears repeating. Discolored aluminum pots, even those black from mineral deposits, can be cleaned by filling pot with hot water. Add a few teaspoons of cream of tartar, depending upon size of pot. Boil. That's all you have to do.

- To remove grease build-up from painted walls and cabinets, mix ½ cup of Lysol® Pine Action™ with a gallon of hot water. Apply with sponge starting at the bottom of the wall and cabinet. Cover an area of two to three feet. Let it soak on the surface for about 15 seconds, then rinse with a sponge. If you give the solution time to penetrate the surface it will do most of the work for you.

IT'S EASY TO REMOVE GREASE BUILD-UP from painted walls and cabinets. Just mix ½ cup Pine Action with a gallon of hot water. Apply with sponge. Let solution soak on the surface for about 15 seconds, then rinse with a sponge. The clean scent of pine helps freshen up the whole room.

- After the plate on your iron is clean, rub on silver polish and rinse. Makes iron even cleaner, and faster and easier to use.

- Wine stains on table linen. Soak in hot milk that has been brought to a boiling point until stains fade sufficiently to be washed. If the stain is unusually stubborn sprinkle with salt and rub with a half of lemon.

- Keep your cleaning aids to a minimum, and start with the job that gives you a feeling of real accomplishment. For example, a heavy duty liquid cleaner like Lysol® Pine Action™ is all that's needed to clean and disinfect your kitchen floor, walls and enamel appliances, and it leaves a clean pine scent. Just apply. Give it a few seconds to work for you — and easy does it.

Gas Grill Cooking

The natural gas grill provides dependable outdoor cooking with a convenient fuel supply. The American Gas Association recommends these energy saving tips when using a gas grill:

- Limit preheating time.
- Use only one burner on dual burner grills unless both burners are needed.
- Use the lowest flame setting possible.
- Cook with the grill cover closed for more smoked flavor and shorter cooking times.
- Cook slow cooking foods on grill to keep heat out of the kitchen and save on air conditioning.
- Cook several foods or entire meals at one time on the grill.
- Cook a full grill of steaks or burgers. Reheat extras later.
- Thaw frozen foods before grilling unless otherwise directed.
- Use a thermometer or timer to eliminate over or under cooking.
- Keep "burn-off" cleaning time to a minimum.

How Homeowners Can Learn How To 'Quick Fix' Their Appliances

Homeowners can now go to participating General Electric dealers and pick up the knowledge and parts to fix their own GE or Hotpoint home appliances with confidence.

Through a new program—called Quick Fix™—the manufacturer fosters the nationwide do-it-yourself trend by training and equipping consumers to work on their own ranges, refrigerator-freezers, dishwashers, washers and dryers.

Quick Fix displays, located on retail dealers' sales floors, are self-service units that contain simplified instruction manuals for each of the five appliance categories and a selection of the 94 most-often-used replacement parts.

The five illustrated step-by-step repair books, written in layman's language, can tell a customer what's wrong with an appliance, what part is needed to fix it and exactly how to make the repair. Photo sequences guide the user visually through the repair processes.

Research Spawns Ideas

"The idea for Quick Fix grew out of our consumer research," says Bruce Albertson, manager of the GE Quick Fix Program. "We learned that nearly 40 percent of all major appliance repairs are currently performed by the consumer, and one in four of these do-it-yourselfers is a woman. And we learned why consumers choose to fix their own appliances—to save money, to save time, to avoid the inconvenience of waiting for a service technician to arrive and to experience self-satisfaction."

Response to Need

Why does GE, which operates the largest manufacturer-owned repair network in the nation, encourage and help you fix your own appliances? "We did it," says Bruce Albertson, "simply to respond to a growing consumer need. Our research showed that 40 percent of all major appliance repairs were already being performed by the consumer. Their reasons were fairly obvious: Inflation, recession and unemployment had ripped household budgets to shreds, and doing repair work at home was a relatively painless way to cut back on expenses."

An editor of Popular Science magazine, after analyzing the Quick Fix System, wrote that, "based on my own sampling, comparing parts prices with the cost of a repair job by qualified technician, some routine jobs could cost only 10 percent as much if you did them yourself."

To today's consumer, time is as important as money. With the emergence of the two-income family, having someone stay at home to wait for a serviceman is much more than an annoyance. Often people have to miss work, give up vacation time just to let a technician in the house to work. The do-it-yourselfer doesn't have to cope with that problem. And, of course, if you do the work yourself, you reduce the time you're without the service of the appliance.

Personal Satisfaction

But the present do-it-yourself movement in America was touched off not simply by economy or convenience. It was also born, studies show, from people's desire to experience the self-satisfaction of accomplishing a job with their own hands—the pride of fixing something even though they weren't mechanically inclined. For them, there's plenty of gratification in Quick Fix.

Overcoming the confidence barrier, GE found, is a big hurdle in tackling work on a major appliance. To most people a major appliance is a major investment, and they don't want to take a chance.

"That's where the step-by-step manuals really pay off," Mr. Albertson adds. "Simple language, uncluttered diagrams, step-by-step instructions and logical photo sequences take the reader by the hand through the entire diagnostic and repair process. And safety precautions are also a part of every instruction. We've simplified the job in a way that inspires self-assurance."

The key to a successful home repair job, of course, is an accurate diagnosis of the problem. The GE manuals, which retail for about $6.95 each, talk about symptoms of performance problems in plain, language, instead of technical jargon. In one diagnostic chart, for example, the symptom is listed as "range does not heat." Then it lists the causes of that problem in order of failure rate from the most likely down to the not so common. The book tells you to check the fuse first, in which case you flip to page 21 and see photos of both a fuse panel and a circuit breaker accompanied by instructions on what to do.

GE doesn't expect you as an average homeowner to have a professional tool box. The books contain information on tools and their use, but the basic kitchen-drawer variety is usually sufficient. For range repairs, for example, only nine tools are listed in the manual as being necessary for all repairs.

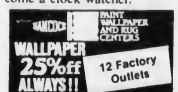

Color-Coded Packaging

The replacement parts in the Quick Fix self-service display come in boxes color-coded to match the manuals for each of the five appliances. And each part is packaged with a picture of the part on the outside, a picture of the tools you'll need and simplified installation instructions for that particular part, as well as an estimate of how long it will take to complete the repair. GE introduced Quick Fix to the public late last summer, and by the end of March the system will be available nationwide through authorized GE and Hotpoint dealers across the country. "Do-it-yourself is a powerful trend in the marketplace," Mr. Albertson notes, "and judging from customer reaction already, it's apparent that Quick Fix satisfies the home owner's hunger for more help in doing his own thing."

Homeowners can find out which dealers in their neighborhood offer the Quick Fix system by calling 1-800-447-4700 (Continental U.S.)

Don't keep opening the oven door to check on progress of baking food. According to the National Energy Watch, each time the oven door is opened, heat escapes and the temperature can be lowered as much as 75 degrees, so cooking takes longer and energy is wasted. Use a timer or become a clock watcher.

Johnston Accents Environmental Issues

Robert J. Johnston, a candidate for the City Council from Ward 1, hammered away at environmental issues at a campaign gathering at the home of Thomas and Margaret Ryan, 21 Woodward Ave., recently.

Johnston told the gathering that the Ward 1 councilor should serve as a watchdog in view of the MDC's "long history of irresponsible actions, including plans to erect a chlorination building at Nut Island."

"The people in Ward 1 have a right to determine their own destiny," said Johnston, advocating the formation of a citizens advisory committee to work with him as a monitoring and watchdog group.

Johnston decried the suggestion of another candidate that the MDC build a swimming pool at the site of the abandoned Great Hill School.

"One MDC facility in Houghs Neck is enough," he said, referring to the Nut Island Treatment Plant.

He proposed that when the school building is razed that the land be used for additional recreation facilities for youth and that trees be planted and picnic tables and benches be built for the enjoyment of all residents.

"As a city councillor I would seek federal funds for these improvements and would propose legislation to rezone the land for open space," he said.

Campaign chairman Peter Ryan and Alicia Coletti announced that several coffee hours for Johnston have been scheduled in the ward.

Airman Michael Lupo In Texas

Airman Michael Lupo, son of Mary F. and John Lupo of 33 Yardarm Lane, Rep. Michael W. Morrissey, pointing to a 99 per cent roll call record over eight years, has announced his candidacy for reelection in the First Norfolk District (North and West Quincy).

"I hope to continue to be active in the subject matter covered by my committees such as housing, development issues and matters concerning the MDC," said Morrissey.

He is vice chairman of the Housing and Urban Development Committee and a member of the Committee on Post Audit and Oversight.

Morrissey pledged continued accessibility to his constituents, including periodic office hours and his column, Mike's Corner, which seeks to keep them informed.

He also pointed out that his vote in support of televising House sessions as a further attempt to open up the political process and let people know what is going on.

He said one of his top

Morrissey Seeks Fifth House Term

MICHAEL MORRISSEY priorities is to continue to vote for change and reforms in the legislative process and in its leadership in the coming term.

He pledged to continue to lead the fight to retain the Norfolk County Recreational Facility as open space. He cited the overwhelming support the issue received in the recent county-wide vote as an issue that he would continue to pursue.

Morrissey said he was extremely pleased at the housing related issues he was involved in that dealt with condominium conversion and financial opportunities for first-time homebuyers.

"I have also tried to help the city of Quincy with development related issues," said Morrissey.

Morrissey pointed to legislation to allow Quincy to develop air rights over the MBTA tracks, successful lobbying to get the State Department of Education to locate in the downtown business district, and his role in securing the necessary funding for the completion of the Burgin Parkway Extension.

He stressed that he intends to continue to support efforts to reconstruct and redesign Willard St., continue his efforts with Cong. Brian J. Donnelly to raise the balance of abandoned housing at Squantum Gardens, and to continue efforts in securing funding for increased police patrols on Wollaston Beach.

Morrissey commented that while rules reform is a high priority, his biggest legislative goal is to clean up Quincy Bay, upgrade the MDC's ability to treat sewerage, and fight further attempts by communities to get into the MDC sewer district.

Squantum Group To Discuss Marina Road, Elect Officers

The Squantum Community Association will elect officers and discuss proposals for a second road into Boston Harbor Marina at a meeting Wednesday, May 9, at 7:30 p.m. in the Squantum School.

Arthur Chandler, president of the Quincy Citizens Association, and Peter O'Connell, one of the developers at the Marina, will be at the meeting to talk about the plans.

An official from the Environmental Protection Administration will also be on hand to discuss the MDC's option to locate a sewage treatment facility on Long Island.

QCA Annual 'Gripe Night'

The Quincy Citizens Association was scheduled to hold its annual "gripe night" yesterday (Wednesday) at 8 p.m. in the Montclair Men's Clubhouse on Holbrook Rd.

Members were to have the opportunity to express their concerns about the following questions:

Are local government officials sensitive to the wishes of the voters and act accordingly or do they have contempt for their constituents and do as they wish once in office?

Do you think Quincy should have an overall development plan, with citizen input, to maintain the quality of life in Quincy?

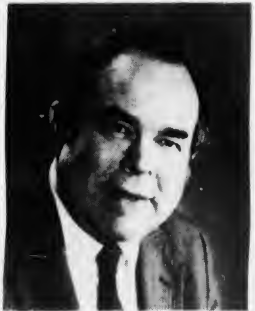

Are enough steps being taken to protect our environment, health and natural resources?

What suggestions do you have to improve our way of life in Quincy?

What don't you like about Quincy?

McCabe Tosses One-Hitter As QJC Bombs Blue Hills

By PETE IOIA

Bob McCabe pitched a one-hitter to pace the Quincy Junior College baseball team to a 13-3 victory over Blue Hills Technical last week, avenging an earlier defeat and improving its record to 3-1.

Dave Burke's Jaguars will host New Prep today (Thursday) at 3:15 and Wentworth next Tuesday at 3 o'clock, both games at O'Rourke Field.

M McCabe, who had pitched a four-hitter in his previous win over New Prep, struck out 10. McCabe had never started as pitcher for Abington High. He also had two hits, giving him a .538 average for the four games.

QJC lost no time in scoring with four runs in the first inning, adding three in the second, two in the third, three in the fourth and one in the sixth.

Meanwhile, McCabe coasted along until the third when an error, a walk, a double, its only hit, and a fly ball accounted for all three Blue Hills runs.

Burke again had praise for the Jaguars' defensive play. "McCabe made a great stab of a ground ball that looked like a sure hit and threw the runner out at first, and Tommy O'Connell made a perfect throw to nail a runner at the plate," he said. "The runner collided with catcher Tony Chiochio and the umpire had to make sure Chiochio held on to the ball."

Danny Dunn was a thorn in the side of Blue Hills, reaching base all four times at bat with two singles, a triple and an error. He also played well defensively. McCabe finished strong, striking out five batters in the last two innings, getting the side in the final inning.

Higgins In Pitching Debut

North Defeats Quincy, 6-2

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy's baseball team bounced back from its lone loss to defeat Quincy, 6-2, Monday and improve its record to 5-1.

Charlie Bunker's Raiders met Brookline yesterday (Wednesday), will play Abp. Williams Saturday morning at 10 at French's Common in Braintree and will be at unbeaten Brockton Monday at 3:30.

Southpaw Steve Higgins, North's regular left fielder, made his first pitching start Monday and for six innings was outstanding as he blanked Quincy on three hits. However, he tired in the seventh (he had previously pitched only two innings of relief) and when he walked three straight batters, Steve Hogan relieved with two balls on the batter. He finished walking the batter to force in a run and walked another to force in the second run.

North hopped on Quincy starter Joe Conti for four runs in the first inning on only two hits.

Higgins walked and Hogan was hit by the pitcher. Chris Bunker tripled deep to center field for two runs. Mark Hubbard doubled in another and the fourth run scored when the left fielder dropped a fly ball.

The Raiders added a run in the fourth when Higgins singled, stole second, went to third on an infield out and scored on a wild pitch.

In the sixth Higgins walked, advanced on a wild pitch and scored on Bunker's double to center.

Third baseman Mark Hubbard and first baseman Brian Gibbons made outstanding defensive plays for North in the second inning.

Last Friday North lost to Waltham, 10-5, after taking a 5-1 lead. Waltham scored nine runs in the last inning for the win after a North error opened the flood gates.

Earlier in the week North walloped New ton North, 10-3, as John Comeau pitched a six-hitter for his second win. He struck out seven and walked only two. He had a two-hit shutout going into the final inning.

The Raiders scored three in the second on four straight walks and a two-run double by Keith Smith. They added two in the third on Smith's single and a home run by Hubbard.

Presidents' 3rd Loss In Row

Since winning two of its first three games, the Quincy baseball team has fallen on hard times and Monday lost its third game in a row, 6-2, to North Quincy, lowering its record to 2-4.

Bud Mosher's Presidents played Newton North yesterday (Wednesday), will host Waltham Monday at 3:30 at Adams Field and next Wednesday will play at Silver Lake at 3:30.

fielder. Mike Notorangelo relieved Conti in the second inning and pitched excellent relief ball. He gave up a run in the fourth on a hit, stolen base, infield out and a wild pitch and another in the sixth on a walk, wild pitch and Bunker's double.

The Presidents were shut out on three hits for six innings. Joe Ciardi had the first hit in the third and Conti singled and Pat Calabro had a pop fly single in the sixth. Quincy lost a potential run when the runner on second was called out for leaving the base too soon on a fly to center.

In the seventh Higgins walked three batters in a row and had two balls on the next batter when Steve Hogan relieved. He finished walking the batter to force in a run and another walk forced in the second.

Last Friday Quincy dropped a wild 13-9 decision to Cambridge Rindge and Latin. Earlier in the week the Presidents lost to undefeated Brockton, 6-1, making only two hits.

Conti pitched six innings and allowed only six hits and struck out five.

Quincy scored its lone run in the seventh when Steve Austin reached on an error, went to third on Conti's double and scored on a ground ball. Calabro had the only other hit, a double in the fifth inning.

Jack Crowley scored from the faceoff at 2:32 into Bolster Hurls 2-Hitter

Former North Quincy standout Bob Bolster last Saturday pitched a two-hitter and struck out 10 in Salem State's 8-0 victory over U-Mass-Boston.

Bolster, a conference all-star a year ago, improved his record to 4-2. Salem State is having another banner season with a 19-8 record as of last week.

the second overtime session to give Grogan's Business Machines a 3-2 win over Adams Sports Monday night at the Youth Arena to capture the Executive Hockey League championship.

John Murphy gave Grogan's an early 1-0 lead with Crowley and Ed Grogan assisting, but Adams tied it on Bob Simonelli's goal. Tom Roberts assisted.

In the second period

Simonelli put Adams up with Roberts assisting but Dick McCabe tied it with Lee Staskiewicz getting the assist.

The score held through the third period and the first overtime until Crowley scored the winner with Murphy assisting.

Quincy, North No Hit Victims In 48 Hours

Both Quincy and North Quincy baseball teams were the victims of no-hitters at Adams Field within the space of 48 hours.

Dick Archer of Brockton pitched a near perfect game, allowing only two walks, as his teammates came up with four unearned runs in the ninth inning off the Raiders' Ron Frongello to beat North Quincy, 4-0.

The four-run Brockton ninth ended a 39-inning scoreless streak for Frongello who had blanked Braintree on three hits, Malden Catholic on two hits, Cathedral on two and hurled four innings of scoreless relief against Thayer.

Frongello had shutout Brockton for the first eight and a third innings until four North Quincy errors, a scratch hit by Ralph Chesnauskas and a solid safety by Lou Marchegiano produced the four runs.

The North Quincy lineup included: Hadlock cf, Atkinson ph, Colarusso rf, Forest ph, Spooner c, Coulaeos 1b, Frongello p, Paige 3b, Nogueira 2b, Croke II, Kelley ss, Rogers ph.

George Doucet, Rev're's 6-foot-2, 195-pound left-hander, emulated Archer two days later, turning back Quincy 3-0 without a safety. Doucet walked nine. The no-hitter spoiled a fine four-hit performance by Quincy's Al Collins.

The Quincy lineup included: Durante 2b, Salvucci ss, DePaulo 1b, Ojala cf, Tempesta rf, Parsley c, Hobiack ph, Twomey II, Volpe II, Prezioso 3b, Collins p.

SANSONE SETS MARK

George Sansone set a new school record in the shot put with a toss of 46 feet, 11½ inches but his Quincy High School track team was defeated by Brockton, 43-34, for its second straight setback after an opening victory.

Sanson's put broke the old mark of 46 feet, 8½ inches set by Al "Sonny" Nicholson in 1941.

Quincy runners who placed first in the various events were Bill Dirksmeier, 440, 57.4 seconds; Dave Murphy, half mile, two minutes, 14 seconds; Quincy's Tony Praznik placed second in the 100, the 220 and the broad jump.

FURNACE BROOK ON TOP

The teams of Capt. Charles Ford and George Allen and Billy McCarthy and Don Prouty scored three-point sweeps as the Furnace Brook Golf Club's four-ball team whipped Franklin, 10½ to 4½ to retain first place in the Norfolk County League.

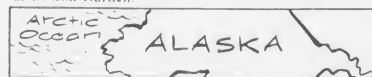

HURLEY RUNS

Harold Hurley turned in a terrific half mile in two minutes, four seconds but Malden Catholic had six first places for a 40-37 victory over the North Quincy High School track team. North's Bob Murphy and Vin Miller finished one-two in the high jump.

Marvelous Marvin Warns Leonard On Eye Danger

Marvelous Marvin Hagler says his proposed fight with Sugar Ray Leonard "would be the best fight in history" but he questions whether Leonard should risk his eyesight in the ring.

Hagler, the middle-weight boxing champion of the world, was honored Saturday by the Montclair Men's Club with its prestigious John B. Gillooly Memorial Award.

Hagler, who fights out of Brockton but lives in Hanover, told club members and their guests that one of the toughest men he fought was Sugar Ray Seales, who is now almost totally blind.

"Here's a man Sugar Ray Leonard should think very serious about," he said.

"I went up there (to Seattle) with Mohammed Ali and Sammy Davis Jr. for a fund-raising event for him to try to raise money for his eyesight. One eye is totally blind. The other eye is 8 per cent sight.

"Instead of myself being there, Sugar Ray Leonard should have been there to see how this guy felt and what he thought and maybe he could come across on him before Leonard steps back in the ring.

"But that's not my problem. That's Leonard's problem. I just think it's a sad thing."

But, should he sign to fight Leonard, Hagler said, he would not wear the new thumbless gloves unless they were sanctioned by the WBA or the WBC or the USBA or any other control agency.

"I'm not going to let Sugar Ray dictate to me and say the only way he'll fight is that I have to wear these gloves," he said.

"Every fighter is looking for an advantage and if that is going to mess him up psychologically I don't think we would use thumbless gloves."

Hagler noted that Leonard, who fights in Worcester later this month, visited the gym in Brockton where Hagler trained a few days ago in the interest of Hagler's scholarship fund.

"A lot of people were wondering how come we are not mad and throwing punches at each other," he said. "Well, we're two world class fighters."

Hagler said his scholarship fund has raised $2,000 over the past two years to help send 150 youngsters to Massasoit Junior College in Brockton. The goal this year is $25,000 to $50,000.

Two checks from the Montclair Men's Club were presented to the scholarship fund by Emcee Stan Kovalski, Sr.

Also honored by the Montclair Men's Club were Goody and Pat Petronelli, Hagler's handlers, and Eddie Germano, cartoonist for the Brockton Enterprise.

Joseph Gildea was the dinner chairman.

North Quincy Girls Defeat Quincy 13-6

The North Quincy girls' softball team has finally untracked after a slow start and Monday rolled to a 13-6 victory over Quincy at Faxon Field to improve its record to 2-2.

Mary Pratt's Raiderettes played Brookline yesterday (Wednesday) and Monday will host Brockton at Artery Field at 3:30.

Barbara Webster's First ladies played at Newton North yesterday (Wednesday), host Boston Latin today (Thursday) at 3:30 at Faxon and will be at Waltham Monday at 3:30.

North jumped off to a 4-0 lead in the opening inning Monday on two-run homers by Ann Sousa and Sheila Graham and never looked back. Later in the same game Sousa drove in two more runs with a long triple.

Lisa Ventola started pitching for the Raiderettes and coasted until the last inning when Quincy loaded the bases. Ninth grader Ann Anderlionis relieved and picked up a save.

Beth Veneto and Andrea Griffin each went 2-for-three for Quincy.

Last Friday North gained its first Suburban League win, 7-6, over Waltham with young Anderlionis pitching in relief to gain her first win. She is the regular center-fielder.

Again the Raiderettes hopped off to a 4-0 lead in the third inning as Mary Holleran hit a two-run triple. She followed this with a two-run homer in the second. Waltham fought back in the third to score two runs and took a 5-4 lead when it combined three walks with two hits and a North error.

North trailed, 6-4, after six innings. In the seventh Anderlionis singled with one out, Sousa walked and a wild pitch moved Anderlionis to third. North scored on a double steal and Graham then unloaded a tremendous two-run homer to give the Raiderettes their 7-6 lead. In dramatic fashion Anderlionis struck out the final Waltham batter with the tying and winning run on base.

Holleran and Graham had two hits each and Anderlionis and Ann Duggan had one each. Seven walks enabled North to threaten in every inning except the sixth.

Earlier in the week North lost its second in a row and first in the league, 7-1, to Newton North.

Newton scored six runs in the opening inning on four hits and four walks. Ventola, who has suffered the same disaster in an opening day non-league loss to Weymouth North, relieved starter Noreen Connolly and allowed only one run the rest of the way.

Anderlionis continued her hard hitting with two hits. Fine defensive plays were made by Carolyn O'Rielly at third base and Connolly at shortstop. Duggan in right field continued to come up with fine catches.

The lone North run came in the fifth when Holleran pulled a long double to score Sousa, who had singled.

Last Friday Quincy trampled Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 15-2, collecting 13 hits.

Kathy Thornton picked up the win, pitching six innings and Griffin had three hits. Veneto had two hits and two RBI and also stole two bases, as did Griffin.

Earlier in the week the First Ladies lost a 16-15 slugfest to Brockton. Quincy scored seven runs in the fifth inning to take a 7-3 lead but Brockton cruised for 11 runs in the bottom of the inning to lead, 14-7. Quincy came back to tie the score in the top of the sixth. With the score 15-15, Brockton scored the winner when a runner scored from second on a Quincy error.

Veneto had three hits and Griffin and Sue Morrison had two each.

North Girls Continue Track Win Streak

The North Quincy girls' track team, undefeated in cross country last fall and in winter track, continued its unbeaten streak last week with a 69-45 win over Brookline to make its record 2-0.

Jeff Hennessy's Raiderettes faced Waltham yesterday (Wednesday) and will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin Friday at 3:15 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Highlights of the win over Brookline included another outstanding effort by Eileen Crehan, who won the shot put and javelin, and fine performances by Tricia Leary and Missy Silkwood.

North's winners were Leary in the two mile (12:39, her best time ever); Tricia Barrett, mile; Leann Fitzgerald, 440; Georgia Traficante, long jump; Crehan, shot put and javelin, and Silkwood, discus.

Taking seconds were Ann Toland, two-mile; Tracy Corrigan, mile; Maryann Kelleher, a rare loss in the 880; Teresa Collings, 440; Laura Ciulla, 100, 220 and long jump; Traficante, javelin, and Lori Magrath, hurdles.

Placing third were Julie Walsh, mile; Diane Lindenfelzer, 880; Jennifer Rafferty, hurdles; Julia Killion, high jump; Silkwood, shot put (an excellent toss of 30-5), and Collings, discus.

Waltham edged Cambridge, 61-57, last week. "We have a shot of beating both, but neither meet will be easy," said first-year coach Hennessy. "I am pleased with the progress of our new people and those in events such as hurdles, high jump and discus."

"I was particularly pleased with the performance of Silkwood. A year ago she threw the shot 20 feet and she is now over 30 feet and placing in meets. She has progressed faster than anyone because of her hard work."

Last Saturday the Raiderettes took two first places, a second and two thirds to tie Needham for second place in the Class B state relays at Lawrence.

The winning javelin relay team consisted of Silkwood (71-10), Traficante (120-9) and Crehan (143-1), a new school record). The combined total of 335-8 was less than three feet off the state record set in 1977 by Bishop Stang.

North also won the shot with Crehan (36-9), Noreen Connolly (32-11) and Silkwood (28-2). The 97-10 total was 10 feet better than the second place team and was a meet record.

The distance medley relay team of Toland, Fitzgerald, Leary and Walsh took second with a 13:41.2 timing.

The mile relay of Crehan, Ciulla, Collings and Fitzgerald was third at 4:20.5 and the 4 x 880 team of Lindenfelzer, Leary, Corrigan and Kelleher was third at 10:11.4.

The North girls will compete in the Falmouth Invitational meet Sunday.

In the Waltham meet Mary Lou Wirtz and Kris Mullaney were the top performers, Wirtz winning the 220, taking second in the 100 and third in the long jump and Mullaney tying for first in the high jump and taking second in the mile.

Patti Wright was third in the hurdles, Julie Costa third in the mile and Sharon Steen second in the 880 and third in the 440.

In the Cambridge meet Wirtz won the long jump at 14-3, and was second in the 220 and 100.

Steen won the 880 in 2:33.41, Cindi Morrell was second in the shot put and third in the discus, Lauri Pitts was third in the javelin and third in the hurdles, Mullaney was second in the two-mile. Wright was second in the hurdles and Jennifer Golden, with a gutsy finish, was third in the 440 in 71.3 seconds. The winner was clocked in 71 seconds and the runnerup in 71.1.

"So far we are 0-3-1 and in order to have a chance to win meets, we need more kids to try out and stick with the team," said Coach Ralph Koelsch. "Depth is absolutely critical and we need more girls to compete in the relay."

Wirtz is leading the Quincy scorers with 44 points, followed by Morrell with 31, Mullaney with 23 1/2 and Steen with 19.

'Seniors In Action' To Air May Program

The May edition of Quincy Community Television's "Seniors In Action" program will air Fridays May 11 and 25, at 4 p.m. and Mondays May 14, 28, at 8 p.m. on cable Ch. 3.

Maida Moakley of Quincy hosts the program designed to respond to interests of area senior citizens.

The May program features an informational interview about a new service at Quincy City Hospital called Senior Health Watch. Linda Emerson, R.N., describes the purpose of Senior Health Watch as "helping Quincy senior citizens maintain an optimum level of wellness and independence."

During her interview Miss Emerson discusses the two components of the program: outreach to the community and the clinic. Miss Emerson also points out that much misinformation about growing old exists, even among senior citizens. For example, many older people still believe that it's normal to feel bad as they age.

The Senior Health Watch plans to dispel this type of misinformation through its unique approach of assigning a nurse, a physician and a social worker to each case it treats.

Also featured on May's "Seniors In Action" is an interview with candy making and cake decorating teacher, Isabelle Shea of West Quincy. Mrs. Shea, a teacher for 30 years, demonstrates candy molds, fillings and frostings. She also shows some of the popular decorative characters she creates for her candy designs.

"Seniors In Action" is a regular series on Quincy Community Television. The program is produced by a volunteer workshop group.

THE VIDEO CONNECTION.
by James S. Leach

HOLLIVOOD — In their latest bid to establish themselves as a full-fledged network, Metromedia has announced plans for a syndicated talk-variety late-night show hosted by none other than Jerry Lewis.

Metromedia, as you might remember, took on the big boys last year when it placed Alan Thicke in the thick of the late-night wars with his talk show which in many markets goes head-to-head with the king of the midnight hour, Johnny Carson.

Following various forms of re-design and re-evaluation, "Thicke of the Night" appears to have survived its initial year, and has found a small, but very loyal audience all across America. Much of the credit for the show's success must go to Thicke, whose good looks and unoffensive personality have attracted a very dedicated following.

In addition to the two late-nighters, Metromedia is gaining entrance into several networks with popular syndicated programs such as "On Stage America," "Star Search," "Health Beat," and "The Love Connection." In many areas of America's heartland, Metromedia's menu of diverse programming is putting a real dent in the ratings of the three major networks.

Bringing in a heavyweight like Jerry Lewis adds a new dimension, a heavy dose of credibility to Metromedia's goal of becoming a bonafide national network. Lewis is the type of talent who will attract big names as guests, and big numbers in the battle for rating points.

Watch for the prototype of Lewis' gah fest late in May or early in June, depending on your local stations. Win or lose with Lewis, you've got to admit Metromedia is making a very strong bid for national recognition. My advice to programmers at CBS, ABC, and especially NBC... take the new kid on the block seriously, if you don't you may just find yourself in a job search as you watch "Star Search."

After too long an absence, seven-time Emmy winner, Ed Asner is headed back to your living rooms. He'll be starring in two specials for CBS, while he's at work on a potential new ABC comedy series.

Playing the part of noted journalist, lecturer, and humanitarian, Norman Cousins in the upcoming CBS dramatic special "Anatomy of an Illness," Asner will be playing the part of a man afflicted with a crippling degenerative bone disease whose self-prescribed cure was large daily doses of humor and vitamin C. This tribute to the merits of positive thinking is based on the true story of Cousins and his duel with death.

Late in May, Asner along with 99 other stars will be found on CBS celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Screen Actors Guild. The former star of "Fun Grant," who is currently president of the guild, will head the star-studded cast as they showcase the colorful history and growth of their union.

Asner's return to the weekly grind of series television may be forthcoming as he has just completed a pilot for ABC Television called, "Off The Rack." Along with Eileen Brennan of "Pvt. Benjamin" fame, Asner plays what he describes as "a sleaze ball" garment manufacturer.

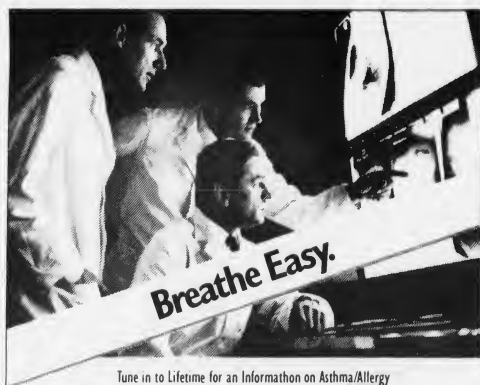

One last note, for all of you "Trivial Pursuit" fans, my video connection in Pittsburgh informs me that Vestron Video is releasing a made-for-home video called "Rich Little's Great Hollywood Trivia Game." I predict this will become the number one rental very soon.

I still need work, remember, to succeed, you've got to have connections.

Got a question for your favorite star? I'll track 'em down for you. Send questions and comments to James S. Leach c/o THE VIDEO CONNECTION, 22761 Pacific Coast Hwy., Malibu, Calif. 90265.

Davis Asks MDC To Sample Waters Of Quincy Beaches

Kevin B. Davis, a candidate for the City Council from Ward 1, has asked the MDC to expand its water sampling program from Wollaston Beach to include beaches in Squantum, Adams Shore, Merrymount and Houghs Neck.

Davis noted in a letter to MDC Commissioner William Geary that when Wollaston Beach is closed due to high bacteria count swimmers tend to gravitate to other beaches on the Quincy shoreline.

"It is my firm belief," he said, "that when the bacteria count is high at Wollaston Beach, so is the count in many of the aforementioned areas."

Davis said he feels the MDC has a moral and legal responsibility to include the other beaches to sample the waters at the other beaches.

"I say moral responsibility because the direct cause of the pollution in our waters in the Nut Island Sewage Treatment Plant in Houghs Neck," he said.

"I say legal responsibility because as a result of the lawsuit against the MDC by the city of Quincy, Judge (Paul) Garrity directed the MDC to seek methods of improving the quality of water in Boston and adjoining harbors.

"It is because of this legal responsibility that the costs for conducting such a water sampling program should be borne by the MDC and not the city of Quincy."

FALLING FOR FRILLS

QUESTION: My wife fell in love with a bull-in microwave oven and insists we buy a house that is overpriced and out of our financial range. Any advice?

ANSWER: This is one of the typical mistakes a househunter can make - buying the fill-in-inside of the house. All too often a family will fall in love with any eye-catching feature and buy the wrong house. Yielding to superficial attractions like these can result in your family ending up with a thoroughly unsuitable house. Bear in mind that the same alluring feature can usually be added to another house at a relatively small cost as considering the amount of the overall purchase

MAKE SURE YOU BUY THE HOUSE and not the fill. You may end up with the right fill and wrong house.

Toro mowers cut grass long after other mowers are pushing up daisies. Ask Arnold Palmer. The oldest tractor at Latrobe Country Club is Toro. And it's still working everyday.

When a mower is built to last as long as Toro, it has to be engineered so it won't go out of date... durable, reliable and dependable. And now Toro mowers are warranted for two years.

Early Returns Expected

25% Turnout Seen In Ward 1 Election

By TOM HENSHAW

A low turnout of voters is expected Tuesday, May 15, for Quincy's first special election in nearly a half century.

The preliminary election will trim from five to two the number of candidates in the race for the Ward 1 City Council seat vacated by the resignation of Leo J. Kelly.

The general election will be Tuesday, June 12.

City Clerk John Gillis said he expects only about 25 per cent of the 8,019

BERNARD REISBERG registered voters in Ward 1 to cast ballots in the six

KEVIN DAVIS polling places in Houghs Neck, Merrymount, Ger-

ROBERT JOHNSTON mawtown and Adams Shore.

MARY GREGOIRE "It's hard to whip up any interest in a preliminary

Tax Bills Due In Mail By Week's End

The first true tax bills under 100 per cent property revaluation will be in the mail by the end of the week to owners of some 22,000 parcels of land in the city.

"The bills will be out by Friday (tomorrow) at the latest," said Mayor Francis X. McCauley, "and they will be due 30 days later, June 30. "I am urging as many taxpayers as possible to pay their bills early so that we will not have to borrow any more money on a short term basis to operate the city."

McCauley said that, because the bills will be a month late, the city had to borrow $6 million in tax anticipation notes at 5.6 per cent interest in April.

The bills will be calculated at the new 100 per cent valuation tax rates of $21.95 for residential property and $32.50 for commercial, industrial and propersonal property.

Complaint Dept: Officials Insensitive

"Gripe Night" of the Quincy Citizens Association disclosed recently that the main complaint among Quincy residents is that city officials, once elected or appointed, are insensitive to the wishes of the people.

There is no accountability, other residents complained: too much buck-passing but no action; and rules and regulations are stretched beyond reason to accommodate special interests.

Other complaints included:

- Pride in the city and its appearance are lacking.
- It shouldn't be necessary to "bug" city officials to get things done.
- City Council meeting agendas need brief explanations of the items up for consideration.

The QCA said the consensus of the "Gripe Night" was that Quincy is being overdeveloped into a mini-Boston, populated by transients rather than stable small families.

QCA members voted to reiterate to the City Council their opposition to the zoning ordinance changes recently proposed by the Planning Department.

City Seeks $2 Million In Federal CDBG Funds

The City Council was asked Monday night to approve the city's community development block grant application for federal funds totalling $2,103,000 for various grassroots neighborhood projects.

The Council sent the plan to its Finance Committee. Under the program developed by the Planning Department, the funds will be spent in the following areas:

- Houghs Neck, $156,100
- Southwest, $291,100
- Atlantic, $264,200

- Wollaston, $142,250
- Montclair, $81,650
- Ward 2, $203,000
- Central Business District, $97,400
- Miscellaneous, $311,800.

A total of $1,547,500 will go into neighborhood funding, $285,000 for general administration, $30,000 for planning and engineering, $167,000 for indirect cost allocation plan, and $73,500 for contingencies.

Citywide, $500,000 will go to loans and grants for home rehabilitation and $270,000 for public works improvements, mostly to streets in the target areas.

"Quincy," said the CDBG application, "is making a firm commitment to all components of its neighborhoods --- its housing, infrastructure, park and playground facilities, public services and commercial development.

"In addition, the city has attempted to give maximum feasible priority to activities which are benefiting low and moderate income families and aid in the prevention or elimination of slums and blight."

Trail Of Blood In Wollaston Break

Thieves broke into the Wollaston Recreational Facility in North Quincy Monday night by breaking a first floor window and left trail of blood as they went around opening desk drawers in search of loot.

A cabinet was forced open, an empty money bag was found on the floor and several desks were opened but it was not determined what had been stolen.

'All Is Go' For Validated Parking

Some 1,200 parking meters disappeared from downtown Quincy parking lots over the weekend as the city and Kinney Systems Inc. prepared for the advent of validated parking Monday, May 14.

"All is ready to go tomorrow (Wednesday)," said Mayor Francis X. McCauley, referring to the day when Kinney was slated to take over management of the Hancock and Ross parking areas.

McCauley said the rest of the week will be a period of orientation during which parking will be free in the lot, although parking on the streets is a different story.

New meter heads were placed on the streets reflecting the new parking rates of 10 cents per quarter hour for up to a half hour of parking. For convenience, a quarter will get you a half hour, too.

And there will be no more feeding the meter when your time is up in an effort to free up the street spaces for shoppers who want to make a quick dash into a store for a pack of cigarettes or such.

Rates in the Hancock and Ross areas are 25 cents for an hour, $2 a day or $25 a month, with monthly tickets available at the Kinney office trailer in the Ross lot at Cliveden St.

An undetermined number of downtown merchants have purchased validation stamps which will allow them to pay for the parking of their customers.

'WHERE'S THE METER?' asks Terrence Bertrand, 8, of Quincy as he peers down the empty post that held a meter in the Hancock Parking Area for nearly 30 years. (Quincy Sun photos by Charles Flagg)

Federal Mediators Seek Mathewson Strike Settlement

Federal mediators in Boston have called a meeting today (Thursday) at 1 p.m. in an effort to reach a settlement in the nine-day old strike of machinists at the Mathewson Corp. in North Quincy.

It will be the fifth mediation session but the first since the strike began Tuesday, May 1, involving 86 members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, AFL-CIO.

Council Committee Hears Glowing Hospital Report

The City Council's Health and Hospital Committee received a glowing report Monday night on the financial condition of the City Hospital, which has been managed for the past four years by Hospital Corp. of America.

James Wing, a manager with the auditing firm of Touche Ross and Co., told the Councilors that "there is no material weakness in the hospital's position."

"Substantial strides have been made by the hospital," he said. "It's management is on a par with other hospitals in the state, if not better. The hospital is in reasonably good financial condition."

Director Mark Mundy said that hospital has had "an excellent year ... a positive cash flow ... a positive revenue and expense picture."

The report for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1983, showed $1,098,407 in excess of revenues over expenses, an increase over the $911,419 in fiscal 1982.

"The management letter is very encouraging to the City Council," said Patricia Toland, chairman of the Health and Hospital Committee. "The future looks bright for the operation of the hospital."

Wetland Hearing

The Conservation Commission was scheduled to hold a public hearing yesterday (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. at 100 Southern Artery to consider a request by Frank Bertoni to fill wetland for about 20 feet from an existing garage at 128 Rock Island Rd., Houghs Neck.

Readers Forum Disturbed Over News Reports On Rising Medical Costs

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

It is most unfortunate that through the news media all physicians have become the ogres! If we are to believe the majority of news releases we would believe that the rise in costs of medical care are the fault of only doctors - and that doctors, on the whole, are uncaring and mercenary creatures!

Yes, I am, indeed involved in the field of medicine as a secretary to a highly respected Quincy surgeon and I am deeply disturbed by the information which is being fed to the unsuspecting public and I would like to rebut some of the statements offering what I know to be facts.

First: neither Medicare nor Blue Shield pay for all medical services. Under the Medicare program, each beneficiary is responsible for a deductible to doctors and to hospitals on an annual basis. After the deductible has been satisfied, Medicare may make a payment of 80 per cent of an approved charge - only for a service they approve, not all services.

Second: Medicare and Blue Shield payments to participating physicians are based on a so-called profile and profiles are not updated on a regular basis. With reference to the profiles - physicians who have been in practice for several years are paid at a lower rate than those physicians who have just started practice. Example - Physician "A" may have an approved charge of $25 for an office visit - while Physician "B", less practical experience, may have an approved charge of $35, $45 or even higher. I am sure that this information can be confirmed by a telephone call to the office of the Professional Representative of Blue Shield, Newport Avenue, Quincy.

Third - The matter of "balance-billing" on Blue

Shield payments is a matter which can easily be settled by Blue Shield itself. When a physician becomes a participating member of the program he agrees to abide by its rules and they are clearly publicized in handbooks. Claims are submitted to Blue Shield for review, a decision is made as to the amount which will be approved (and approved fees for similar procedures vary for each physician) and payment is made to the physician, along with an explanation of benefits which indicates those figures, i.e. amount submitted, amount approved, amount paid and balance owed by patient, if any (and if allowed). If the physician chooses to ignore the rules and bylaws of Blue Shield and/or Medicare he can and should be removed from their lists of participating physicians and their right to further bill Blue Shield and/or Medicare for other patients should be terminated.

I believe, wholeheartedly, that you will find that there are many physicians who have not increased their charges for some time - even before the American Medical Association and Massachusetts Medical Society suggested a voluntary freeze.

I also know, as a matter of fact, that in most cases you will find that Blue Shield and Medicare make payments far below those fees approved by other insurance companies - I also know that other insurance companies upgrade approved charges as deemed advisable and within reason and that they pay the same charges to all physicians for similar procedures - not higher fees to new physicians and lower fees to those who are penalized because they have been in practice more years.

Condon's Clout Clipped?

Has her lost battle against McDonald's planned restaurant in North Quincy damaged City Councillor Joanne Condon's political image?

That's the question being asked around political circles in the wake of the 5-0 vote by the City License Board in favor of McDonald's.

Mrs. Condon made a big issue of the matter as she spearheaded the fight against the license.

If the license had been rejected it would have been considered a big political victory for her.

But if that is so, then is the fact that the license was granted a big political defeat for her?

Some observers think so.

Some don't. Those who don't say you can't win them all. Her supporters note she's gutsy and are sure she will come bouncing back.

But those who think she is politically wounded by the outcome see it this way: she turned the spotlight on the issue - and on herself, too.

If she had won, everyone would know she had won. But she lost. And everyone now knows she lost.

If the vote had been 3-2, they don't think it would have been so bad. It would have been a case of doing battle and losing a close one.

But going down 5-0, they say is like getting hit with a torpedo.

Usually a ward councillor has some influence on the License Board's vote. Not always. But usually.

Mrs. Condon has shown political clout in the past but it wasn't there this time. So, the speculation over whether she has been damaged politically.

She has made no secret of the fact that she wants to run for mayor and if elected, of course, would be Quincy's first woman mayor in history. If she picks the right time, she would be a candidate to reckon with.

But its a long way from ward council to the mayor's office and some observers think she has stubbed her toe temporarily at least on a Big Mac.

HERE'S A SIDELIGHT to the Montclair Men's Club dinner at which Marvelous Marvin Hagler was honored.

When Goody Petronelli, one of Hagler's trainers, and Dacka Aimola of Quincy were in the service, they fought twice.

At the dinner, Petronelli asked a friend, Joe Ciralo of Liberty St., Quincy, how Aimola was. The latter, Ciralo told him, is confined to a wheelchair.

When informed of that, Hagler took one of his photos and he and Petronelli wrote personal notes to

CONDON

Amola on it. Ciralo presented it to him and says: "You'd think he had won the Megabucks, he was so happy Goody remembered him."

AMONG THE HEAD table guests at the dinner was Tommy McCarthy who is now in his 52nd year as press box steward at Fenway Park.

Tommy, who now lives at Adams Place, Quincy, was asked who his all-time favorite Red Sox ballplayer is. "Ted Williams," he confided. "He did so many nice things without publicity. He visited kids in hospitals but always went up the back stairs or used the freight elevator because he didn't want the publicity. He even paid hospital bills for kids."

Tommy has two other favorites: Jimmy Foxx and Bobby Doer.

HUNDREDS OF SUN worshippers turned out Sunday along Wollaston Beach to take advantage of the summer-like weather.

So absorbed in working on the start of a tan, most of them didn't notice the two joggers running along Quincy Shore Drive: Atty. Gen. Francis Bellotti and Dist. Atty. William Delahunt.

BELLOTTI

None of the young people seemed to recognize them. Every so often, an old timer would look at the joggers and ask a colleague: "Isn't that so-and-so?"

So much for fame.

QUINCY HAD AT least three representatives in the Greater Boston Walk For Hunger: Mayor Francis McCauley, Joanne Morrissey, wife of Rep. Michael Morrissey and Matthew McDonnell, 15-year-old son of Atty. and Mrs. Matthew McDonnell. Joanne is the assistant director in the Commodities Division of the Bureau of Nutrition.

OBSERVATION via the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter: The amount of sleep required by the average person is about five minutes more.

Hearing May 30 On Marina Open Space Land Swap

The City Council's Ordinance Committee will meet Thursday, May 17, at 6:30 p.m. to discuss a proposal to swap open space for planned unit development land at Marina Bay to clear the way for an access road.

The Council voted to permit the committee meeting despite the fact that the proposal had been sent to the Planning Board and not to the Ordinance Committee when it was introduced April 17.

Councillor Joanne Condon, who introduced the proposal, objected mildly to the meeting, saying it would be less confusing to wait for the Planning Board and the Council to hold a joint hearing Wednesday, May 30.

But Councillor Patricia Toland, who chairs the Ordinance Committee, insisted on the meeting because she would like to learn the details of the proposal before the public sounds off at the hearing.

Condon noted that she was the originator of the proposal, not the Marina, and she added, "I have nothing to present to the Council except the proposal itself. I have nothing to explain."

"Perhaps," she added, "the Marina people would be willing to put together a proposal. If so, it's okay with me."

Condon called the proposal "simply a swap of land to accommodate a road, not anything more complicated than that."

"It does involve changing open space to PUD," retorted Toland. "That is a serious change."

Councillor Richard J. Koch, Jr. proposed the joint hearing May 30 and Condon wanted to know where that date fell in relation to Memorial Day.

"I have noticed in the past that we have held Marina hearings on holiday weekends," she said. She was assured that May 30 this year comes after the Memorial Day weekend.

Navy To Order Work Resumed On 'Ghost Ship'

Mayor Charles A. Ross said he had received word from Cong. Richard B. Wigglesworth that the Navy will order work resumed about July 1 on the Fore River shipyard's famed "ghost ship," the heavy cruiser USS Northampton.

If the Northampton were to be completed as a heavy cruiser, the work could be completed in a year and a half but if, as reported, she were finished as an experimental communications ship it would take twice as long.

It would mean more work for the 4,000 men currently employed at the Bethlehem Steel Co.'s yard.

The keel for the Northampton was laid in August, 1944, and work was stopped Aug. 13, 1945 with the ship 54 per cent completed. Three other ships, Kansas City, Bridgeport and Cambridge, were junked at earlier stages of construction.

May 10-16, 1947

SALES TAX OPPOSED

Both Mayor Ross and the City Council went on record in opposition to the state sales tax proposed by Gov. Robert Bradford. The Council action was taken at the behest of Councillor David J. Crowley.

"If the state needs added revenue," said Mayor Ross, "let it tax race tracks and other luxuries and keep its hands off the necessities. The man raising a family has certain expenditures he must meet, but he does not have to play the ponies."

SMOKE AT HOSPITAL

Smoke from burning rubbish invaded the rooms of patients at City Hospital and Public Works Commissioner James P. Donovan said there was little he could do about it as long as the city continues to use the old Barker quarry as a city dump.

PLAN E IMPETUS

Cambridge Atty. George H. McLaughlin spoke on the benefits of Plan E government at an open meeting of the Quincy Taxpayers Association, giving impetus to plans to have it on the November ballot. He said Plan E had resulted in a $10.50 drop in Cambridge's tax rate.

25% Voter Turnout Seen For Ward 1 Election

lis. "The vote will come out in Houghs Neck but there is not much interest in the rest of the ward."

The polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Gillis said he expects the counting and reporting to be wrapped up by 10:30 p.m.

The candidates, in the order they will appear on the ballot, are:

•Bernard Reisberg, 56, of 1399 Quincy Shore Drive, Merrymount, proprietor of Bernie's Modern Formal and former president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

•Kevin B. Davis, 33, of 226 Rock Island Rd., Houghs Neck, service manager of the American Telephone Co. Information Systems in Quincy.

•Robert Johnston, 51, of 46 Bay View Ave., Houghs Neck, headmaster of the Woodward School for Girls.

•Mary Crowley Gregoire, 48, of 58 Lenox St., Houghs Neck, employed by Union Warren Banks and the daughter of former Councillor David J. Crowley and City Treasurer Roberta Crowley.

•Michael Cheney, 30, of 94 Rock Island Rd., Houghs Neck, a diesel mechanic for the MBTA and president of the Atherton Hough School PTA.

None of the five has ever run for public office before.

The big issues in the campaign have been environmental but all candidates are in close agreement in favor of open space zoning ordinances and in opposition to the Nut Island Sewage Treatment plant.

Just about the only major difference to surface has been Gregoire's proposal that the MDC build a swimming pool on the site of the old Great Hill School. The others do not support the idea.

The last special elections in Quincy were May 21 and June 11, 1935, when Thomas S. Burgin defeated Council President Leo E. Mullin in a special race to succeed Charles A. Ross as mayor.

The Plan A city charter that was voted in 1955 ruled out special elections and required that vacancies be filled by vote of the remaining members of the City Council.

Kelly resigned his seat in January, only two weeks into his sixth term on the Council to take a post with the Quincy Housing Authority, and the State Legislature had to change the charter to permit the special election.

Pearl Quint Honored By United Way

Pearl Quint, 77, of Quincy was honored recently by the United Way of Massachusetts Bay's Voluntary Action Center (VAC) for 26 years of service with the Quincy office of the American Red Cross (ARC).

Mrs. Quint, of 196 Somerset Ave., was one of 11 outstanding volunteers recognized at VAC's eighth annual Volunteer Awards Ceremony at the Shawmut Bank, Boston. The ceremony coincides with National Volunteer Week (May 6-12), when organizations throughout the country honored their top volunteers.

Through the ARC, Mrs. Quint has put in almost 5,000 volunteer hours at Quincy Hospital since 1962 as a Red Cross "Gray Lady," helping nurses with their duties and attending to patients' needs.

Mrs. Quint has also run the canteen at Red Cross blood drives for 20 years.

PEARL QUINT

"She volunteers at all the Bloodmobiles on the South Shore," says Marie J. Constantino, regional director of volunteer services at the local ARC chapter.

"She has never refused any requests by the Red Cross for help when needed."

Mrs. Quint has represented the Red Cross at Quincy's annual flu prevention clinic, where she acted as registrar.

In addition to her work with the ARC, Mrs. Quint helps run the Quincy Hadsash Thrift Shop and is active in the local Temple Beth El.

In another volunteer project, she was involved in "patterning," a type of physical therapy for the emotionally and mentally handicapped. Through treatment, the three children she worked with learned to perform tasks like writing, jumping rope, and riding a bicycle.

"It's gratifying to know that I can help people and really make a difference in their lives," says Mrs. Quint. "I'll keep on doing it as long as I feel capable."

"Long-term volunteers like Mrs. Quint are becoming rare," says Christine Franklin, the United Way's director of VAC. "Today, more people are working, and it's hard to make big time commitments. But it is encouraging to see that, in spite of busy schedules, increasing numbers of people are devoting some time to volunteer programs."

Winners of the Volunteer Awards were chosen on the basis of the impact on clients, value of the service to the community, creative approach, and challenges to be overcome.

VAC, a direct service of the United Way, is the oldest volunteer bureau in the country, providing placement, training, and other support services. Individuals who want to volunteer can call VAC at 482-8370 ext. 214, to be matched with jobs appropriate to their skills and interests.

Paul Barbadoro Named Police Dept. Legal Advisor

Mayor Francis McCauley has appointed Atty. Paul N. Barbadoro of Quincy as Legal Advisor to the Quincy Police Department, succeeding Atty. William E. Hickey, who resigned recently due to the growing demands of his private practice.

Barbadoro is currently an assistant district attorney in the Office of Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt, where he is assigned to the six-person jury session. He has been associated with the District Attorney's office since 1978, having served previously as Manager/Analyst of the Criminal Career Unit and Administrative Assistant at the Quincy District Court.

In making the appointment, McCauley said: "I am delighted to invite someone of Paul Barbadoro's caliber to join the City of Quincy legal department. He is a lifelong Quincy resident, with an impressive academic background and a solid record of achievement as a government attorney. He will be a strong addition to the McCauley administration."

McCauley noted that Barbadoro was selected from among 30 applicants for the position in a screening process conducted for the Mayor and Police Chief Francis X. Finn by City Solicitor Dean P. Nicastro.

PAUL N. BARBADORO

who advertised the position and held a series of interviews.

Nicastro said: "Attorney Barbadoro brings an impressive set of credentials to the job and comes very highly recommended by the District Attorney's Office."

The position currently pays a salary of $24,911, which will increase to $25,658 on July 1, 1984.

Barbadoro is a 1982 cum laude graduate of Suffolk University Law School, with a J.D. degree, and has a B.S. degree in political science from the University of Massachusetts at Boston. He is also a graduate of the Massachusetts Bar.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"There are two days in every week which should be kept free from fear and apprehension. One is yesterday with its mistakes, its faults and blunders.

Yesterday has passed forever beyond our control. We cannot undo a single act we performed; we cannot erase a single word we said.

Yesterday is gone.

The other is tomorrow with its large promise and poor performance.

Tomorrow is also beyond our immediate control. Tomorrow's sun will rise, either in splendor or behind a mask of clouds - but it will rise.

Until it does, we have no stake in tomorrow, for it is as yet unborn.

This leaves only one day - today. Any man can fight the battles of just one day. It is only when you add the burdens of those two awful eternities - yesterday and tomorrow - that we break down.

Let us, therefore, live but one day at a time" ...

Gregoire Forwards Swim Pool Petition

Mary Crowley Gregoire, a candidate for the Quincy Council from Ward 1, has forwarded to MDC Commissioner William Geary a petition seeking a swimming pool on the site of the Old Great Hill School in Houghs Neck.

"These signatures were collected in less than two weeks," she said in a covering letter. "and I think they amply demonstrate community support for an MDC recreational facility in the Houghs Neck section of Quincy."

Geary recently told Gregoire that he had found some Houghs Neck residents who were opposed to the swimming pool proposal.

"Since you did not mention them by name," she said, "I assume these opponents are also my opponents in the Ward 1 City Council race."

"It seems clear that opposition to me suggestion us confined to my political opponents while support comes from hundreds of residents, young and old."

'Are We God's People?' First Presbyterian Theme

Three roses decorated the Communion Table for the Sunday morning worship service at First Presbyterian Church.

The congregation gave thanks to the Lord for the lives of Alyssa Marie Kuhnle, daughter of Roger and Mari Kuhnle; Rachel Ann Scibek, daughter of Thomas and Nancy Scibek; and Roger Douglas Baskin, son of Larry and B.J. Baskin.

Elder Donald Butman offered greetings and intimations and John VanHeghan, a divinity student at Gordon-Conwell, gave the call to worship.

The senior choir, under the direction of Choirmaster Lambert Brandes, sang "Come Thou Fount of Many Blessings" by DeCou.

The pastor, Dr. Roger Alden Kvam, chose as his sermon theme "Are We God's People?" based on I Peter 2:9.

Margaret Frechette and Barbara Waiten were received as new members of the church family.

Holy Communion was served by Elders Abram Blanken, Donald Butman, William Horie, Deborah Kvam, Paul Haight, John Shuster, Janet Powell, George Stephen, Donald Murray, Douglas Degelman, Sherry Dalton and Evan Gelo.

A coffee hour in Fellowship Hall followed the service.

'Tender Mercies' Sermon At Squantum Church

"Tender Mercies" was the title of the sermon preached by church pastor Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin at the early service of the First Church of Squantum.

The message was based on the recently acclaimed film by the same name.

Text for the morning was "Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!" (Luke 18:38b) This sermon will be given during the second service on the Sunday before Memorial Day.

Michele Lenston and Melissa Stamos were ushers. Patti Hurd and Ruth Swenson were responsible for refreshments.

The congregation at the later service Sunday heard a sermon entitled "What Comes Next?" based on Peter's experiences of Jesus' resurrection. This was the third of three Easter services at the church which began Easter Sunday.

Hymns included "Come, Yet Faithful, Raise the Strain!" "Christ Arose," "Alleluia!" "The Strife Is Over" and "Christ the Lord Is Risen Today." The Chancel Choir sang Boyce's "Alleluia" as the offertory anthem. Mary Ruth Scott directed.

The Lord's Supper was observed during the service. Seated at the Lord's Table with the pastor were Deacons Evelyn Ahearn, Stewart Scott, Katherine Hansen, Tom Williamson and Leon MacIntyre.

Greeters for the second service were Charles and Gloria Lester.

Ushers were Tere Wallin and Don Frazer. The Fellowship Hour after the second service was hosted by Ida VonRiegers and Del Dougherty.

This Sunday, there will be a Mother's Day Breakfast at the church at 9:15 a.m. followed by the Mother's Day service at 10:30 a.m. The breakfast is sponsored by young people in the church to raise money for projects of youth ministry around the church. Reservations can be called into the church office at 328-6649 before Friday at noon.

In the evening on Mother's Day, church members are encouraged to attend a discussion program at Memorial Congregational Church, North Quincy, to hear the Rev. Frank Dorman, the Peace Coordinator for the Metropolitan Boston Association, tell about the Christian witness for peace in Nicaragua. Rev. Dorman has spent time in that country recently. The program, which begins at 7:30 p.m., is open to the public.

The schedule of special services for the next few weeks at the First Church of Squantum includes Mother's Day, May 13; Children's Day, May 20; Memorial Day Sunday ("Tender Mercies")

THE 90TH ANNIVERSARY of the Incorporation of the Parish of St. Chrysostom and the laying of the cornerstone of the First Church Building was observed during a Festival Celebration of Holy Eucharist recently. Clergy participating in the observance included, from left, the Rev. William D. Underhill, Rector, and the Rev. Bruce B. Noyes. A bagpiper provided music.

'Who Is My Mother' Sermon Topic At Bethany

There will be one worship service Sunday, May 13, at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary of Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Centre. The regular 9 a.m. chapel service will not be held this week.

Instead, there will be a "Mother's Day" breakfast at 8:30 a.m. in the downstairs social hall. Members, friends, and whole families are welcome.

Since the meal is being sponsored and prepared by the Church Growth Team, there is an added dimension. All Bethany members are encouraged to bring a non-member to breakfast and both will receive a "free breakfast." Call the church office to make reservations (479-7300).

During the 10 a.m. worship service, the secular observance popularly known as Mother's Day, will be broadened and celebrated as the "Festival of the Christian Home."

The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will preach the sermon on the question, "Who Is My Mother?" based on Jesus' words in the Biblical text from Matthew 12:46-50. Lay scripture reader will be Jeams W. Ross. The associate minister, Rev. Joel F. Huntington will serve as liturgist.

The sacrament of Christian Baptism will be given to two children during the worship service: Amanda Lee Johnston, daughter of William J. Johnston and Susan (Spink) Johnston; and Kimberly Ann Rivera, daughter of Ronnie A. Rivera and Jacqueline (Bowers) Rivera.

The chancel choir, under the direction of Peter E. Krasinski, organist, will sing the 17th century Rouen melody, "Christ The Fair Glory," and as the second anthem, the Slovak hymn, "Ave Maria."

The worship service will be broadcast by delayed tape over WJDA, 1300 kc, at 11 a.m.

Sunday School will be in session from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. with classes for preschool through ninth grade. Nursery care will be provided for babies and toddlers.

At 11 a.m. there will be a coffee hour in the Allen Parlor. Individuals and families from the community are welcome to come and share in the worship and fellowship, and to enroll children in the Church School.

Take care of your own funeral arrangements now. So your family won't have to later.

By not taking care of your own funeral in advance, you force someone close to you to do it for you.

For the person who accepts the responsibility, making arrangements at the time of need is likely to be filled with uncertainties. The uncertainty of not knowing what you really wanted. Your personal preferences. Perhaps, a favorite dress or suit. A special prayer. A clergyman with whom you are especially close. The uncertainties are endless.

The kindest thing you can do for your family is make your own funeral arrangements far in advance of need. That way everybody will know the kind of funeral you would like to have.

Way Up Members Attend Prayer Breakfast

Twenty teenagers and youth leaders from The Way Up in Quincy attended the Annual Men's Prayer Breakfast Sunday morning at Valle's Steak House. They attended courtesy of a number of interested sponsors who are members of Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy, (United Church of Christ).

The young people heard music sung by "Obadiah", a contemporary Christian music group from Braintree, and a message by Ron Burton, former New England Patriots' star running back.

Sponsors included Ed Bohlen, Millard Cunningham, Doris Folger, Mary Lou Glaman, Lillian Glaman, Bill Greene, Lloyd Herring, Carlyle Jacob, Kinya Mikami, Mary Pearson, Mert Pomfret, Ken Rickson, Eleanor Shattuck, Jean Smart, Penual Sullivan, Gladys Sutherland and Maude Swift.

The Way Up is a program of Christian outreach to young people outside the local churches, providing teen-aged girls and boys with counseling, advocacy, juvenile court chaplaincy, service referral, recreation, employment, tutoring, home visits, and camping opportunities as well as Christian religious programs and opportunities for service.

The Way Up meets in Quincy at the First Church of Squantum where its director, the Rev. Gene Langevin, and American Baptist minister, is also pastor of the church.

However, it serves young people from throughout the South Shore, especially teens from Quincy, Weymouth, Milton and Braintree. Young people who live at a distance from the program are provided with free transportation to and from the activities.

Protestant churches from throughout the South Shore contribute to support this chaplaincy program to young people who are often referred to The Way Up by local law enforcement officials, probation officers, social workers, counselors or school officials. The program is open to young people and their parents without regard to their religious affiliation.

The Way Up also provides chaplaincy services to girls and boys who live in several nearby youth-serving schools and institutions.

Beechwood Center To Get CDBG Funds

City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath announces that the city's proposed Community Development Block Grant budget for fiscal 1984 includes $22,000 in funding for the Beechwood Community Life Center.

"I'm pleased that Mayor McCauley has approved this funding for the center," he said. "The Beechwood Community Life Center is an asset, not only to Wollaston, but of the entire city."

McGrath said some of the CDBG program will include money for an experimental "latch key" day care program, computer learning and senior activities.

He said he will be working with the League of Women voters to implement the "latch key" program.

"We will be working very closely with the executive director of the center, Betty Southwick, to determine how best to fund the various activities proposed," said McGrath.

New devices have been introduced that will permit many types of in-office blood tests in five minutes or less. Best of all, they work with just a drop of blood.

Improved hemorhoid treatment infrared photocoagulation, hits the unwanted tissue with a very-high-energy light beam. Method is said to be painless and virtually bloodless.

New dental research has found that saliva can "cure" small dental caries if sugary foods do not re-attack. Saliva contains calcium and phosphate to repair decay.

Cimetidine, long used for duodenal ulcers, seems to be effective against gastric ulcers, too, though these are usually harder to heal. In a cross-country test, the drug worked better than antacid or a placebo.

Aerosol antiviral drug, ribivarin, has been found to cut the discomfort and duration of colds and flu.

A 22-year-old Quincy Center man was injured shortly after midnight Sunday when his motorcycle was in collision with a car on Quarry St. near the Sons of Italy Hall.

Paul J. Tehan of 30 Deldorf St., was in good condition in the intensive care unit at Quincy City Hospital.

Police said Tehan's motorcycle was in collision with a car driven by Sandra L. Tessier, 17, of Brockton at the intersection of Quarry and Smith Sts.

Tessier and Mark Hutchinson, also of Brockton, a passenger in her car, were treated and released from the hospital.

McGrath Wants Beale St. Bridge Repaired

City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath would like to see a little action toward repairing the Beale St. bridge over the MBTA tracks in Wollaston.

"It is getting more and more dangerous," Public Works Commissioner Paul Anderson told the City Council Monday night.

The problem is, neither the MBTA nor the State Department of Public Works will accept jurisdiction over the bridge and responsibility for its upkeep.

Anderson said he wrote to the MBTA and the DPW asking for action and he received a letter from attorneys for the MBTA saying that, under 1968 or 1969 legislation, the DPW is responsible.

"In my opinion," said Anderson, "it is an MBTA bridge. The legislation creating the Red Line gives the MBTA ultimate responsibility for it."

McGrath filed a resolution asking that letters be sent to the MBTA, the DPW, the governor's office and the Quincy legislative delegation demanding that something be done to repair the bridge.

"Someone is going to end up getting hurt," said McGrath. "I want them at least to quit fooling around trying to decide who owns it."

Commuter Boat Service Reduced

Low ridership and high operating costs resulted in the reduction of Quincy to Boston commuter boat service beginning Monday.

The number of daily round trips to Boston was reduced from 12 to eight on the Liberty and Independence vessels that Harbour Crossing operates from Marina Bay, Squantum.

Arthur Casey, president of the Harbour Crossing Company, said that ridership has increased in the last two weeks, but at too slow a rate.

The 9:30, 10, 11 and 11:30 a.m. round trips from Quincy were eliminated. Boats will depart from Marina Bay at 7, 7:30, and 8 a.m., and at 1, 2:30, 4:30, 5:30 and 6:30 p.m.

Casey said he plans to add more trips during the summer.

Swingle's Quarry Drain Reaches 122 Feet

The J. F. White Contracting Co. of Newton has drained some 22 feet of water from Swingle's Quarry in the past 10 days in the search for the body of Paul Gooch, 17, of Brockton who drowned there June 20.

Deputy Public Works

Commissioner David Colton said the water level is down about 122 feet from where it was on the day that young Gooch jumped off a 50-foot ledge and disappeared in the depths.

The city began draining the quarry last summer but the effort ended Sept. 9 when a massive section of the quarry's granite wall collapsed into the water.

Colton said the level was down about 112 feet at the time of the cave-in, which brought the level up about eight feet. Since then, he said, about four more feet have filled with water.

The White company is using one pump capable of draining 2,000 gallons a minute but it is only going at a rate of 1,500 feet a minute due to the depth of the quarry.

The quarry is believed to be nearly 400 feet deep in some sections.

Meanwhile, in spite of a 24-hour security guard on the quarry site, police were summoned Monday morning to disperse some youths who were trying to tear down the fence around the hole.

A concerted effort has been made to keep youths from swimming in the water-filled quarry since the Gooch boy drowned.

Johnston Calls For Neighborhood Organization

Robert L. Johnston, a candidate for the City Council from Ward 1, has called for the formation of a neighborhood organization to see to the needs of the Quincy Center portion of Ward 1.

"This is the only section of Ward 1 without an organization to address residents' concerns and local needs," he told a campaign meeting at the home of Carolyn Madden, 23 Edgeworth Circle.

He promised to work with residents to establish such a group.

Johnston said he plans to contact the Public Works Department in regard to cleaning storm drains in the area to relieve the constant flooding of cellars and streets following rain storms.

He said he will also seek a long term solution to the problem.

Johnston urged that all persons interested in helping on primary day, May 15, contact his campaign co-chairmen Peter Ryan and Alicia Coletti.
